Army Won't 'Coddle' Draftees, Royall Says

30,000 a Month Will Be Called In 19-25 Bracket Beginning in October

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall yesterday promised prospective draftees that they neither will be "coddled nor kicked around."

Outlining plans for expanding the Army under the new selective service law, Royall said approximately 30,000 men aged 19 through 25 will be called monthly beginning in October. Initial inductions—on a small scale—will begin about September 22.

The Army chief gave detailed written answers to a series of prepared questions on the draft-many dealing with the life the peace-time inductee will live.

225,000 To Be Called in Year

He estimated that 225,000 to 250,000 men will be drafted by next June 30. With an expected 250,000 to 300,000 volunteers and 110,000 18-year-old trainees, the Army is expected to swell to 900,000 officers and men by that date. Funds for an additional 47,000 men are hoped for next year.

"When the Army is brought fully up to its new authorized strength," Royall said, "we will be able to organize for the first time since the close of hostilities a really effective mobile striking force, small but still effective."

Such a force, he added, would be able, with the support of the Navy and Air Force, "to seize and occupy overseas areas from which air attacks could be launched against our cities and essential industries."

Here's What Draftees Can Expect

Here's what the men called up under the draft can expect, according to Royall:

"Reasonably comfortable quarters" but "no luxuries." Wartime barracks will be used.

"Ample, well-cooked, nourishing meals of a simple, wholesome character."

"Adequate medical care."

"A normal, wholesome, busy and active life, though more carefully planned and supervised than he ever imagined."

Draftees and volunteers alike will go first to induction stations, where they will be given a physical examination and a preliminary interview. Men who are inducted will be able to choose their branch of service, jobs and assignments "only to a limited degree."

Then they go to one of eight training centers, most likely the one nearest their home. Four such centers run by new training divisions will be created. They are

54 Years in Jail, Italian Unnerved By Modern Life

Milan, June 28 (U.P.).—An Italian Rip Van Winkle came back to life today and the cost of living unnerved him.

Fifty-four years ago Enrico Giudici, then a 20-year-old confederate of a notorious bandit of the 1890's, was captured by police and sentenced to life imprisonment.

He served his time on the tiny island of Procida. All newspapers were kept from him and he never heard a radio.

Recently he was reprieved. Today he stepped out into Milan. He had known nothing of modern life except that once during the war he saw a United States Flying Fortress pass over the island.

He was amazed at automobiles and complained "everyone is in such a hurry."

"And I paid 20 lire for a street car ticket," he complained. "Why, when I went away I could buy a pair of pants and a coat and a silk shirt—all of them—for that much."

He sighed, then asked:

"By the way, what was this fascism they tell me about?"

In Tax Evasion Case

Former U. S. Attorney Calls Bribe Offer Report Fantastic

Newark, N. J., June 28 (AP).—Edgar H. Rossbach, former United States attorney for New Jersey, today termed "ridiculous and fantastic" reports of a bribe offered in an income tax evasion case during his term in office.

Rossbach told a press conference he had been questioned by FBI agents in reference to such a case. He said he welcomed the investigation.

The Newark attorney, who resigned suddenly from his post last month, said he had never spoken about the case to the judge who passed sentence.

"I never was asked for my opinion or for a recommendation as to sentence, and so far as I know no one in my office was," Rossbach said.

Senior Federal Judge Guy L. Fake said today that a Federal probation officer had reported receiving a bribe offer. The report, Fake said, was made to Federal Judge Thomas F. Meaney. Thereafter Fake, Meany and Federal Judge William Smith conferred, Fake said. After that conference, Fake added, the matter was reported to United States Attorney General Tom Clark.

In Washington, the Justice Department would not comment on the case.

Meanwhile, Meaney announced that he had cancelled his Friday sailing on a European vacation "in order that I might be here for anything that happens. I am doing this so that nobody can draw any inference that I am running away from anything."

The income tax evasion case that has been the center of the Rossbach inquiry was heard before Judge Meaney. A $10,000 fine and five years probation were meted out to the defendant, who pleaded guilty to a charge of evading $14,373.33 in taxes in 1941.

The defendant was told at the time of sentence that he would have to pay the government about $330,000 in unpaid taxes for 1942 through 1946.

The case in question came before Meaney a few weeks before Rossbach's unexpected resignation.

Rossbach resigned 16 months before his four-year term was to end.

He became an assistant United States attorney in 1943 and was appointed United States attorney in 1945.

Rossbach was succeeded by Isaiah Matlack, an Assistant Attorney General.

Pension Pay Ordered for Coal Miners

3 Fund Guardians Vote to Establish UMW Machinery

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Machinery was set in motion yesterday to start early payment of pensions to retired members of the United Mine Workers.

The three members of the Welfare Fund Board, John L. Lewis (miners), Ezra Van Horn (operators) and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), for the public, voted unanimously to establish rules and regulations governing payments. The board next week will draw up application blanks.

The board also voted to continue payment of distress and death benefits and to invest $29,500,000 of the fund in government bonds.

Question of Compliance

While the pension agreements were being made, one segment of the industry was discussing whether to contest the new contract agreed on by the UMW and commercial operators last week. Owners of "captive mines," mostly steel companies, were being questioned by Harry M. Moses, of the United States Steel's coal interests, on what attitude to take toward last week's agreement.

That agreement calls for a renewal of the 1947 contract, with a $1-per-day increase in the wage scale, and an increase from 10 to 20 cents a ton royalty for the welfare fund on all coal mined.

Closed Shop Issue

The "captive mine" owners say the clause requiring a closed shop is a violation of the Taft-Hartley law. That law requires an election under supervision of the National Labor Relations Board, before a closed shop can be enforced.

The UMW is not eligible for such an election, as it has not yet furnished the board with anti-Communist oaths from its officers as required by the law.

Moses has asked the other companies if they wish to take court action with a view to knocking out the contract. A decision may be reached today.

NLRB Counsel Urges Action Against ITU

Denham Recommends Finding Union Guilty Of T-H Act Violations

By the United Press

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, recommended last night that the AFL International Typographical Union be found guilty of violating the Taft-Hartley Act in its dealings with more than 800 newspapers.

In a long brief filed with Arthur Leff, NLRB trial examiner, Denham accused the typographical union of illegally demanding a closed shop from the newspapers, refusing to bargain in good faith, and attempting to force its local unions to act illegally in bargaining.

Leff has been hearing evidence on charges filed against the union by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, on behalf of most of the Nation's newspapers.

The hearings were ended last May and Leff currently is preparing to make public his findings and recommendations on the alleged violations of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Denham asked Leff to issue a broad order requiring the union to obey the law.

Specifically, the Typographical Union has been accused of violating the act by:

1. Refusing to bargain in good faith by insisting on working only under arbitrary union terms of employment;
2. Refusing to sign written contracts with the publishers;
3. Insisting on a closed shop;
4. Requiring local unions across the Nation to adopt international union policies in bargaining conferences;
5. Attempting to force publishers to discriminate against non-union workers.

Denham gave Leff a detailed legal order which, he said, would halt the illegal acts if it is put into effect.

"The actions of the union and its utilization of numerous devices, all designed to achieve the same illegal objectives, illustrate the necessity for a most comprehensive order directed against the union," Denham told Leff.

Leff's recommendations will be subject to review by the full Labor Board. If the board does not act, Leff's findings will become final. But the board is expected to review the case and issue its own decisions.

Two Men Released

Three Questioned in Slaying Of Girl in Rock Creek Park

A 41-year-old handyman was held for questioning yesterday in the slaying of blonde Carol Bardwell, 11, whose body was found Sunday in Rock Creek Park near 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw.

The man, who had been doing odd jobs in the vicinity of 1635 Webster st. nw., where the Bardwells lived, had left his gardening work at a neighboring home at 4:15 p. m. Sunday just about the same time Carol set out on a bicycle ride.

He failed to report to work yesterday morning at the home of another neighbor. Police picked him up about 2:45 p. m. and booked him on an open charge.

Apparently police had little evidence connecting the handyman with the crime for Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, homicide squad chief, announced the suspect may be released soon.

Two other men taken into custody for questioning were released earlier.

Coroner A. Magruder McDonald said an autopsy disclosed the girl had been slain nearly three hours before the body was found at 7:30 p. m. He said the girl's throat had been slashed from ear to ear with a thin-bladed instrument but that she had not been raped.

"Her jugular vein was severed but not her windpipe," the coroner said. He declared Carol died within a few minutes of the assault.

Meanwhile, Park Police Plainclothesmen W. W. Gunter and P. M. Beale combed the wooded area for hours with a United States Army Signal Corps mine detector in a fruitless effort to uncover the murder weapon. They quit at 8:30 p. m. and will continue the search today.

Hospitals Ask $1,153,760 in Chest Parley

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The hospital council of the National Capital area declared yesterday that it will need about $1,153,760 to meet Community Chest Federation demands in 1949.

The figure sought for inclusion in the chest's fund-raising goal this fall is nearly twice the $682,384 requested for 1948, and almost three times the $432,180 actually allocated the hospitals after last fall's fund-raising campaign fell short of its goal.

Yesterday's estimates were presented at the first open hearing by the federation budget committee in a session devoted exclusively to the hospitalization fund requests. The matter was taken under advisement by the committee.

Increased Costs Cited

Basis for the large difference between this year's requested sum and last year's was attributed by Robert P. Bryant, council director, to increased costs of hospitalization and "the fact that in previous years the hospitals have understated their needs."

The funds provided by the federation for hospitalization are for payment to the hospitals for the care and treatment of nontax-eligible patients, the medically indigent who are not wards of State or Federal governments.

Bryant produced charts to show that area hospitals can expect to provide 87,000 patient-day care for adults; 14,000 patient-day care for infants, and 96,000 clinic visits in 1949 to patients certified by Health Security Administration as unable to pay for themselves.

$14.48 Per Adult Patient-Day

Based on audited costs of $14.48 for an adult patient-day; $2 for an infant patient-day, and $1 a clinic visit, Bryant said, the hospitals will require $1,383,760 for their services.

This figure was reduced later by $230,000 after Willard C. Smith, Health Security administrator, estimated his hospital service agency would return that sum to the fund from collections from patients able to bear part of their hospital costs.

Bryant, in explanation of the $14.48 average patient-day cost, said the figure was set by actual audit of the hospitals' operations during 1947 at $13.48, and that the extra $1 was added on the basis of cost increases experienced by the hospitals during the first five months of this year.

Even if the Chest Federation budget makers decided to use the 1947 audited cost rate, Bryant said, the hospitals would still need $1,296,760 from the federation. And if the federation decided the

Russians Lift Ban on Travel by Germans But Continue Railroad Blockade of Berlin

Berlin (Tuesday) June 29 (AP).—The Russians lifted their ban on interzonal travel by Germans early today but announced that rail traffic to blockaded Berlin could not be resumed "for some time."

The Soviet-licensed news agency ADN which reported the Russian announcement, said repairs on the Helmstedt-Berlin line which brought vital supplies from the west "will still take some time."

The Russians suspended rail traffic from Helmstedt to the German capital eight days ago for "technical reasons."

The ADN report added that resumption of train traffic between Berlin and the western zones had met with further obstacles "because of the introduction of the new western zone currency into the western sectors of Berlin."

This, the Russian-licensed agency said, "is aimed at the destruction of the economy of the Soviet occupation zone and Berlin."

The lifting of the ban on interzonal travel apparently applies only to automobile and pedestrian traffic.

United States Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper, jr., and Lieut. Gen. A. C. Wedemeyer of the United States General Staff, arrived in Berlin last night for conferences with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American commander in Germany.

The United States and Britain began yesterday to try to work an aviation miracle by flying food to 2,500,000 Berliners over the Soviet land blockade. After 100 United States planes had flown a shuttle service to the city all day, American authorities announced the service was being put on a 24-hour-a-day schedule. The after-dark operation mostly will involve planes returning to their base at Frankfurt from Berlin.

A British spokesman said it might be necessary to parachute food into the city if the air traffic becomes too heavy for British and United States airfields to handle. Only 13 British planes carrying supplies for the British community arrived today.

(The Caribbean Air Command headquarters in Panama announced last night the first two C-54 Skymasters of the United States Twentieth Troop Carrier Squadron will leave Albrock air base early today for Frankfurt. The full complement of 12 planes will take off as soon as crews can gather up their equipment. It was estimated this squadron could fly approximately 335,000 pounds of cargo to the Berlin area daily.)

There was no mention whether Allied personnel would now be able to drive to Berlin on the autobahn. This highway has been closed to eastbound military traffic since June 19 when the currency reform began in western Germany.

The Soviet report stressed that only Germans with "valid" interzonal passes would be allowed into the Russian zone.

Unconfirmed reports circulated in Berlin that Clay had conferred

2 Recovery Milestones

6 Billion Aid Measure Signed, Italy and Ireland Affirm Pacts

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

Western Europe and the United States passed two milestones yesterday on the road to European economic recovery.

In the morning, President Truman signed the Foreign Aid Appropriation Act, providing four billion dollars for European recovery and more than two billion for relief and military assistance in other areas.

Shortly afterward, Ireland and Italy became the first European countries to sign formal agreements with the United States, promising the utmost self-help and cooperation with others during the period of American assistance.

The President's signature brought the European recovery program to the end of its first long and stormy legislative journey. Next January the process will have to be repeated, for the new Congress will then review the whole enterprise before authorizing and appropriating for the second year's work.

Mr. Truman issued a statement saying that the final act was "substantially in accord with what he had first outlined to Congress more than six months ago. He praised the "spirit of cooperation and not of partisanship" with which the executive branch and Congress had evolved the program, and added:

"It furnishes concrete evidence and assurance to the free peoples of the world that we stand ready to work side by side with them to preserve free institutions in stability and peace."

While the signing of the Appropriation Act was a mere formality, the bilateral agreements were new and of the highest importance. They amounted to long-rage charters of cooperation with the United States in putting Europe back on its feet and in making Europe, ultimately, independent of American aid.

They reaffirmed pledges of self-help, already made collectively by the 16 European countries involved, and they set forth the methods by which American help will supplement Europe's own recovery efforts. In this sense they were the European counterparts of the obligations assumed by Congress when ERP was created and financed.

Marshall's Comment

Secretary Marshall described the new agreements yesterday as "one more step in the development of the program for European recovery." He said the success of the effort depended on "the determination of the people of Europe to work together to achieve recovery."

He recalled that the basic pledges in the new agreements were "essentially the same" as those already assumed by the European countries when they set up their new economic organization at Paris.

"Important progress has been made since the historic meeting in Paris last summer," the Secretary said. "A framework has been es-

Warm and Humid, Possible Rain Predicted Today

There is a 50-50 chance it may rain today.

British Call Dock Strike 'Emergency'

Cabinet Receives Sweeping Powers To Act in Crisis

London, June 28 (AP).—King George VI armed Prime Minister Attlee's Labor Government tonight with sweeping powers to wage a finish fight with leaders of Britain's spreading dock strike.

At the government's request the King declared a state of national emergency. His proclamation, when published tomorrow in the Royal Gazette, will enable Attlee's cabinet to invoke the national emergency act of 1920. That act has not been used since the British general strike of 1926.

The strike began without the sanction of the Dock Workers Union as a protest against the penalizing of 11 men who refused to handle a cargo of zinc oxide without extra pay.

"Communist Mischief"

Attlee regards "Communist mischief" as being partly reponsible for the unauthorized 15-day-old walkout. In a radio address tonight he declared his government "must see that the people are fed."

Addressing himself directly to the dockworkers, he described the walkout as "a strike against your mates, a strike against the housewives and a strike against the ordinary common people."

"Who advised you to do this?" Attlee asked the strikers.

"No people of great influence," he continued, "but only a small nucleus instructed for political reasons to take advantage of any situation for the disruption of the British economy and the undermining of the government."

Will Not Compromise

Earlier, Attlee told the Commons he had no intention of suggesting a compromise with the strike leaders.

Under the National Emergency Act his government can requisition buildings and equipment and take over billeting for troops or voluntary workers. As an extreme measure, persons guilty of offenses against regulations set up under the act can be jailed for three months and fined $400.

U. S. Warship Shells Arabs In Palestine, Syria Charges

Cairo, June 28 (AP). The Syrian government has protested that a United States warship off the Palestine coast shelled Arab lines, a high Syrian official said tonight.

The protest was made to the United States and to Count Folke Bernadotte, the United Nations Palestine mediator, the official said.

This disclosure was made by Muhsen al Barazi, Syrian Minister of the Interior, who described the warship as one of those which the United States recently placed at the disposal of Bernadotte.

Al Barazi, who claimed the action occurred during an Arab-Jewish battle in northern Palestine two days ago, arrived in Cairo today for tomorrow's Arab League political committee meeting. He told this story to newsmen:

"Zionist forces recently attacked the town of Al Barwa, about 12 kilometers along the coast inside Palestine, and occupied it in spite of the truce.

"The Arab liberation army headed by Fawzi Pasha al Kaukji launched a counterattack, restoring the positions to those as when the truce started. During the battle, American planes circled over the Arab forces. A short while later Arab lines were shelled by an American warship placed at Bernadotte's disposal, resulting in casualties. We sent a strong protest today to American authorities in Damascus as well as to Count Bernadotte."

[At Washington the Navy Department said last night that "not a word" had come in about the Syrian charges, the New York Herald Tribune reported.]

Al Barazi said Syria also had protested against a United States exchange of diplomatic representatives with Israel on grounds the action gives the Jews a political advantage during the truce.

Speculation Has Action Already Taken Against Slav; Lacks Confirmation

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 28 (AP).—The Cominform denounced Marshal Tito's leadership of Yugoslav Communists today and declared he and other top Communists at Belgrade must hew to the Moscow line or get out.

The Cominform is the Moscow-blessed Communist International Information Bureau. It accused the Yugoslav leaders of pursuing a hateful and slanderous policy toward Russia and leaning their sympathies toward western methods.

The blast came in a 3000-word resolution adopted at a meeting of the Cominform this month in Romania—a meeting where Yugoslav Communists, among the Cominform's founders, were not represented. It was published here today.

Action Against Tito Possible

Marshal Tito and his top aides were accused of retreating from Marxism-Leninism by "undertaking an entirely wrong policy on the principal question of foreign and internal politics." The statement called for "either a true return to Marxist policy or a change of Communist leaders in Yugoslavia."

One section of the resolution indicated Tito and his chiefs might be given a chance to mend their ways before final action is taken. The resolution said in part:

"The aim of these sound elements of the Communist Party of Yugoslavia is to force their present leading factors to confess openly and honestly their faults and correct them; to part from nationalism; to return to internationalism and in every way to fix the united socialistic front against imperialism. Or if the present leaders of the Communist Party of Yugoslavia prove unable to do this task, to change them and to raise from below a new internationalistic leadership of the Communist Party in Yugoslavia. The Information Bureau does not doubt that the Communist Party can fulfill this task."

Anti-Soviet Action Charged

Singled out for criticism were Tito, Vice Premier Edvard Kardelj—one of the founders of the Cominform—Milovan Djilas, Minister for Montenegro, one of the Yugoslav states, and Lieut. Gen. Alexander Rankovic, who as Minister of the Interior has bossed Yugoslavia's police force.

There was immediate speculation that such a blast would be issued only after specific action had been taken against Tito, but no confirmation of this came from Belgrade. Carefully phrased dispatches from that capital said Tito was believed to be at his summer home at Bled.

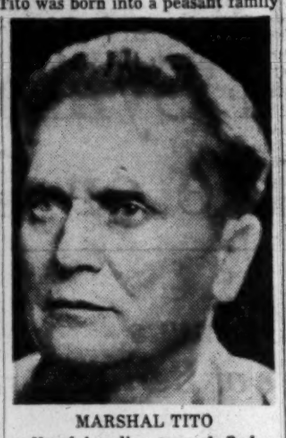
PEOPLE In The NEWS

Tito Was Called the 'Stalin of Yugoslavia,' Held Most Ardent Communist Outside Russia

Outside of Russia there is no world figure who was held to be more ardent and dynamic a Communist than Marshal (Josip Broz) Tito, the "Stalin of Yugoslavia."

Like Stalin, whom he emulated, Tito was born into a peasant family and later was imprisoned for Communist activity. Like Stalin, he rose in turbulence through ruthless firmness to become a nation's leader who condemned "bourgeois weaknesses" and dreamed of pan-Slavism.



MARSHAL TITO
Hateful policy toward Reds

His meteoric rise to power began in World War II, during which the world came to know him as a bold, wily, military leader whose stern demeanor revealed little of what interviewers described as a broad insight into international affairs.

If he is still alive (his sharp repudiation by the Communist Cominform immediately brought hints to the contrary), Tito is now 56 and still an impressive figure with a sharply sculptured face and a shock of graying blond hair.

A son of Croatian peasants, Tito (he is said to have adopted that common Croatian nickname to sign articles in the Communist press) was born in the Austro-Hungarian empire as Josip Broz in a tiny village near Zagreb.

Conscripted at 22 in World War I, after learning the trade of metal worker, he eventually wound up in the Russian army. Accounts differ as to that transposition, but it is indicated that he surrendered to the Russians as soon as possible. He is said to have served two years in a Russian prison camp, joined the Red army in the Bolshevik revolution, and later married a Russian woman.

A son of that marriage and Tito's only child, Zarko, lost a hand in World War II while serving as an infantry lieutenant in the Red army. Tito remarried after his first wife died.

When he returned to his homeland in 1921, Tito was thoroughly trained in Communist doctrines and assumed leadership in the metal workers union, becoming a marked man to the Yugoslav government. Seven years later, he was charged with Communist activity and sentenced to either four or six years imprisonment.

His prison term only added to his stature in Communist circles, and he soon assumed leadership of the illegal movement. When civil war came to Spain in 1936, Tito is reputed to have had a large role in sending leftist sympathizers into Spain to join international brigades fighting for the government.

In 1941, when German troops entered Yugoslavia, Tito was secretary-general of that country's Communist Party, and made immediate plans for his Partisan forces' defense of Yugoslavia. The Partisan fighters were organized in Communist fashion, with political commissars and mass propaganda tactics.

For a time, another resistance leader, Gen. Draja Mihailovic—who after the war was charged by Tito's government with collaborating with the Nazis, and was executed—held the world limelight as Yugoslavia's defender, but Tito later won Allied support. Many times the Germans made desperate efforts to kill or capture the elusive Tito, but he always managed to escape in dramatic fashion, and his irregulars eventually were credited with pinning down as many as 18 German divisions.

With peace, Tito headed the government of his war-ravaged country as Premier, with ambitions to weld his country into an economic entity, subverting traditional differences between Serb and Croat.

Early in the postwar period came his battle with the Catholic Church over the imprisonment of Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac on charges of collaborating with the Axis, and the sharp dispute with the United States over the shooting down of two unarmed American transport planes, in 1946. The Yugoslav government later paid $150,000 in indemnities for the lives of five Americans lost in one of the crashes.

Yugoslavia, meanwhile, had moved from a monarchy to a "federated republic," in the name of the "Peoples' Republic of Yugoslavia," and the reign of King Peter II was proclaimed at an end. Tito's Yougslavia went on to strengthen its bonds with Russia—and sever its bonds with the West.

Tito asked for aid from the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, then attacked that help as "blackmail." He condemned United States' aid to Greece as Anglo-American imperialism."

With the support of the Kremlin, Tito spoke of unified Slavism, echoing Stalin, and in the eyes of most of the world he was thoroughly and firmly ensconced in the uppermost reaches of the Communist hierarchy.

Somewhere along that path, perhaps in recent months, he made a misstep. Probably Tito alone can say where, and how he—to the outside world the "ideal" Communist—could have so offended his fellows that they now have heaped upon him the unbridled communistic wrath—MURREY MARDER.

U. S. Officials Silent on Red Blast on Tito

(From Press Dispatches)

The State Department was officially silent and apparently officially in the dark about the Soviet-Yugoslav split revealed by the Cominform in Prague.

There was an obvious delight, however, over the split in the Soviet sphere.

For some weeks, officials had been reporting a growing disaffection of the Tito regime with Moscow. They were surprised, however, by the violence and abruptness of the Cominform attack on Yugoslavia's Communist leaders.

There was doubt, but no information, about the fate of Marshal Tito and his colleagues attacked by the Cominform. The last word received here was that he was at a summer resort at Bled, Yugoslavia, in accordance with his custom.

There was no word from the American Embassy at Belgrade on the situation. The failure of the Yugoslav press to publish the Prague report indicated to some officials that Tito probably still was in control.

There was speculation, with no supporting evidence, in some quarters that Tito and his comrades might already be in the hands of Soviet agents. This was based purely on the notion that the split would not have been announced unless the Soviets had the situation under control.

Officials here believe Tito in recent months has been slipping out from under Soviet domination and not cooperating sufficiently to please Moscow. One phase of his non-cooperation was said to be a failure adequately to support guerillas in Greece.

Yugoslavia has an army of several hundred thousand and there was speculation its leaders would be hard to deal with from Moscow.

One thing seemed certain: The 10-nation conference on opening the Danube River to free navigation scheduled for Belgrade July 30 will be held somewhere else.

The condemnation of Tito hit the U. N. quite a jolt.

Joze Vilfan, Yugoslav delegate to the U. N., said he did not believe the reports.

Dr. Jan Papanek, Czech diplomat of the Benes era, commented, "If the story is true, I believe Marshal Tito is in grave personal danger. Should he be replaced, I wouldn't be surprised if Ales Bebler succeeded to the head of the government."

Bebler is a Yugoslav deputy foreign minister.

The Soviet row with Yugoslavia was regarded in Paris as an ugly internal disagreement that will be settled without wrecking the foundations of the Soviet bloc of eastern European states.

It is pointed out Yugoslavia participated in the recent Warsaw conference of Eastern foreign ministers which denounced the London agreement on Germany.

It is argued also that Yugoslavia has not, as the communique charged, begun "a series of retreats before the capitalist states" in an attempt "to come to an agreement with them." On many questions, observers say, Tito has shown himself more intransigeant than Moscow itself, notably regarding the future of Trieste and the possession of Austrian Carinthia.

Food for Berlin by Air with Marshall Vassily D. Sokolovsky, Russian commander in Germany. If true, it would be the first time the two have met since the Russians walked out of the Allied control council March 20.

The Russian-sponsored Social Unity Party of East Berlin appealed to the Russians to provide fresh milk for children and sick persons in all four sectors of the capital. The Russians have halted the flow of food from their zone into western Berlin.

Western Berliners looked to Washington for some word of decisive action to break the eight-day food blockade. In the Russian zone a minor disorder occurred when Germans lined up to change old marks for new Soviet money.

[The United Press reported that an estimated 15,000 Germans rioted in the Soviet sector of Berlin today in frantic attempts to change old reichsmarks for new ones. The U. P. said the Russian-licensed ADN news agency sought to minimize the seriousness of the outbreak. Germans reported six to eight persons were killed in a stampede in which women were trampled and an 8-foot fence collapsed.]

Four persons were seriously hurt and three others were injured to a lesser degree when they were trampled in a crowd seeking to exchange old money for new Russian currency at Karlshorst, seat of Soviet military headquarters in Berlin. Police said between 4000 and 5000 persons were at the Soviet exchange office.

Today the American Air Service sent planes into Templehof Airdrome at a rate of one every eight minutes.

But officials said 120 planes flying up the corridor to Berlin could bring a maximum of only 300 tons of supplies. For the population of the American, British and French occupation sectors the western Allies used to bring in 2000 tons daily by freight train.

Berliners expressed increasing concern at the silence in Washington. Some noted there has been nothing out of Washington officially to support a recent statement of Clay that the Russians can not drive the Americans from Berlin by any action short of war.

High Americans in Berlin shared the Germans' worries. Some said Washington was too interested in the Republican national convention last week to keep up with the Berlin crisis.

There was no sign from the Russians on how long they are prepared to keep the lid on traffic. Marshal Sokolovsky has still to reply to the protest sent to him Saturday by Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the British commander.

Unexplainably, the Russians allowed 10 barges to come into Berlin during the weekend with supplies for the British sector. The barges carried 1000 tons of flour and cereals, four times the size of the air-borne cargo brought in today by the United States Air Force.

A British transport official said the Russian action baffled him.

"Maybe they haven't thought up a good reason for blocking off water routes," he said. Rail communications were cut off by the Russians "for technical reasons."

'Capitalist' Press Scoops Reds on Cominform Blast

By The Associated Press

First news of the Cominform's blast at Marshal Tito arrived here from Prague yesterday shortly after 11 a. m., quoting the Communist newspaper Rude Pravo. For hours afterward there was no word from Moscow or other Communist centers.

The reason, apparently, lay in a peculiarity of Prague publishing practices. The statement was scheduled for Communist papers of Tuesday morning. Rude Pravo, however, prints up first editions in advance to send them to the provinces. A limited number of these are usually available to party functionaries in advance, and are seen by foreign correspondents in Prague.

Yesterday correspondents in Prague saw the statement in Rude Pravo about 12 hours before the regular sale of the paper there.

Big 3 Prepare Berlin Protest To Moscow

From Press Dispatches

The United States, Britain and France are framing a protest to Moscow over the Berlin situation, authoritative sources said last night, but they thought it might be several days before joint action is taken.

London conferences are working out details of the protest, with France apparently hesitant about how far the three powers should go in the squeeze at Berlin, it was indicated.

In line with its say-nothing policy on the ticklish Berlin situation, the State Department had no official comment. Previously, the department has emphasized that Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany, was in charge.

Now Up to Douglas

Now, however, the ball seems to have passed to Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas in London in negotiations with the British and French. The State Department is primarily responsible for occupation policy but the Army is the administrative authority.

Undersecretary of State Robert J. Lovett conferred yesterday with President Truman on the Berlin situation in the absence of Secretary of State George C. Marshall, who is in Walter Reed Hospital for a physical checkup.

The London conferences indicate that the State Department has abandoned its position that the Berlin crisis could be handled locally in Germany and now has decided to exercise its authority and move to a government level in the dispute.

Must Be Approved

Whatever form of protest is worked out in London, it will be cabled here for approval, including that of President Truman, before the protest actually is made.

At London U. S. Undersecretary of Army William Draper and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin met at a conference arranged by Ambassador Douglas. Draper stopped here en route to Berlin for a personal inspection of the situation.

Draper was accompanied by Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, director of plans and operations of the U. S. Department of Army.

Tito Minister Promises Belgrade Statement

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 28 (U.P.).—The office of Milovan Djilas, minister without portfolio, said tonight that an important announcement would be issued Tuesday. No subject was specified, but it was believed the statement would be a commentary on the Cominform criticism of Yugslav leaders.

Djilas is one of the few top leaders of the Tito regime believed to be in Belgrade.

British Call Strike Action

down followed a government survey which showed that fewer than 6000 of 25,000 dock workers reported for work today in the Port of London.

Meanwhile, strike leaders pleaded with some success for sympathy walkouts in Britain's 70 other ports. At Liverpool and nearby Birkenhead more than 8000 of a total force of 16,000 dockers walked off their jobs.

About 160 ships were held up in London today and another 50 were idle in Liverpool.

The government already has used troops to move food supplies. Attlee said Army, Navy and Air Force men will be called upon to restore the flow of export goods.

United States authorities in London said the strike will have a bad effect on Britain's part in the European Recovery Program. They began a check to find if any goods bought by Marshall Plan funds are involved in the tie-up.

During the day the strike committee tried unsuccessfully to open talks with the transport union. General Secretary Arthur Deakin said the union will not take part in any discussion until the strike has been called off.

Ministers May Convene

of the three most powerful men in the Soviet Union, attended the Cominform meeting and signed its official statement. As published in Rude Pravo, official newspaper of the Czechoslovak Communist Party, it said the Yugoslav Communist leaders "created a hateful policy in relation to Soviet Russia and to the all-Communist union of Bolsheviks."

An "undignified policy of underestimating Soviet military specialists was allowed" and members of the Russian army were discredited, it said.

Russian "private specialists" in Yugoslavia were put under guard "of the organs of state security and they were watched," the statement said, adding that the Soviet representative to the Cominform in Belgrade also was watched and guarded.

The Cominform further contended that a slander propaganda campaign "borrowed from the arsenal of counter-revolutionary Trotzkyism" was conducted against Russia. This campaign, it said, pictured Russia as degenerate.

"All these facts," the statement said, "prove that the leading persons in the Communist Party of Yugoslavia took a standpoint unworthy of Communists."

As a result of all this, the statement said, "The central committee of the Communist Party of Yugoslavia puts itself and the Yugoslav Communist Party outside the family of brotherly Communist parties, outside the United Communist Front and, therefore, outside the rank of the Information Bureau."

It said they began to identify Russia's foreign policy "with that of the imperialistic powers" and to treat Russia "in the same manner as they treat the bourgeois states."

Inside Yugoslavia, the statement said, Communist leaders "are retreating from positions of the working class and are parting from the Marxist theory of class war. Capitalist elements in their country are growing." It added:

"The Cominform believes that the present leadership of the Yugoslav Communist Party is revising the Marxist-Lenin theory of the Communist Party. Whereas this theory says that the Communist Party stands for the leading and guarding strength in a country, in Yugoslavia the People's Front, not the Communist Party, is considered the main, principal strength. This means devaluating the Communist Party."

The statement condemned the "purging and arresting" of two Yugoslav Communists "because they had dared to criticize the anti-Soviet conceptions of the leaders and to express themselves for the friendship of Yugoslavia with Soviet Russia." (M. Zujovic was dismissed as Finance Minister and Andre Hebrang as chairman of light industry in a government shakeup last month.)

The statement said Yugoslav delegates "refused to defend their actions before the Cominform and to listen to criticism and reproaches from other Communist parties. This may be considered as a violation of equality among Communist parties and as calling for creation of a privileged attitude of the Yugoslav Communist Party in the Cominform."

The Cominform was set up by Russia and eight eastern European nations in Poland last year. Its headquarters is in Belgrade.

Tito long has been regarded as one of the stanchest pillars of communism outside the Soviet Union. He catapulted to the head of Yugoslavia's government from command of that country's wartime partisans.

His government once was described by United State Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), as "a red puppet dancing to Joe Stalin's tune." Tito has conferred many times in the Kremlin.

The statement cast a new light on earlier reports of trouble in Yugoslav Communist circles. The Manchester Guardian's diplomatic correspondents wrote Saturday that reports from southeastern Europe "strongly suggest a serious political crisis has arisin in Yugoslavia." The British newspaper added:

"Marshal Tito's relations with Moscow are believed to be strained, largely because of conflicting views on relations with the west. Even the question of Tito's whereabouts is being discussed."

Top United States diplomats in Washington interpreted the Cominform blast as meaning that Tito already has been "taken care of" and is no longer in active leadership in Belgrade.

Washington sources said Tito and the others denounced might have been placed under house arrest, thrown in jail, shot or otherwise "immobilized" so that their power and freedom would be denied and their ability to talk back to their official Communist accusers would be destroyed.

But a high Yugoslav diplomatic source in Rome told a reporter today that Tito "is still in power in Yugoslavia."

The Cominform statement had not been heard late today in Yugoslavia. Although it appeared in the Communist press outside Yugoslavia, there was no indication it would be reprinted in Borba, the official organ of the Yugoslav Communist Party.

It was recalled there was some gossip six weeks ago that Premier Stalin had not sent his customary telegram of congratulations to Tito on the latter's birthday. That story has not been confirmed.

On June 21, Tito notified the American Government that his country was ready and willing to sponsor a 10-nation Danube River conference in Belgrade. This represented a reversal of previous information, received from Russia, that Yugoslav Foreign Minister Stanoje Simic had said Belgrade could not serve as the conference site because of technical difficulties. As a result, the Russians suggested some other Balkan capital might be selected.

Simic subsequently notified the American Charge d'Affaires in Belgrade that he had been instructed to say that his earlier rejection was only his "personal opinion, not shared by the government." Government officials in Washington said Tito apparently had overruled his Foreign Minister.

Dewey Believes In Well Paid Aides

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Pawling, N. Y., June 28.—High level Federal salaries would be due for a big jump if New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is elected and carries through from the White house the pay policies he has applied to his State administration.

Not that such policies would mean much to the people now in top Federal jobs—Dewey has promised that if the GOP nomination finally lands him in the Presidency, Washington will see the biggest housecleaning ever.

Dewey as yet has not discussed boosting high level Federal salaries, and in any event such a program would have to clear through Congress.

N. Y. Jobs Pay High

But the fact is that if Dewey goes to the White House, some of the men in his State administration could follow him to Washington jobs only at a reduction in pay. A second fact is that Dewey took the lead in demanding that State department heads be given a rousing salary boost within the past year. He has recommended raising the Governor's pay from $25,000 to as high as $40,000 but said he would not take that increase while he was in the office.

As a result of his program, top jobs in the New York State government pay more than those of Congressmen.

Head of the New York State departments of Public Works Service, the latter handling regulation of public utilities, receive $17,500 plus a $2400 expense allowance for travel within the State.

Most of the department heads get $16,500 plus a $2400 travel allowance.

Congressional Salaries Compared

These pay rates compared with Congressional salaries of $12,500 plus a tax free expense allowance of $2500.

Before the State department heads reached their present salary levels about a year ago, the rule was $12,000 a year, with rules varying on expense allowances.

Deputy department heads get salaries up to $12,000.

At these rates, Dewey has brought top flight men into his State administration at fractions of what they could and have received in private practice in their professions. Dewey himself could be included in the list because in his one year of private law practice in 1942, his income was more than $100,000. His pay as Governor is $25,000, plus $2500 as an expense allowance and $11,500 for operation of the Executive Mansion.

He does not have an outside income, aides said.

Examples Are Cited

Dr. Frederick MacCurdy, New York State Commissioner of Mental Hygiene, took over that job in 1943, fresh from heading one of the world's largest clinics, the Vanderbilt clinic in New York City. His income was reported as more than $50,000 a year.

Alger B. Chapman became State commissioner of taxation three years ago at a salary of $12,000 a year. He had paid taxes on an income of $150,000 for the preceding year.

Chester H. Sells, one of the Nation's leading engineers and wartime head of all engineering work projects for the Allies in Iran, heads the State Department of Public Works.

Pay Levels Up 50 Per Cent

How does Dewey persuade top men to join him at reduced pay—"He just talks to them," according to his press secretary, James C. Hagerty. He tells them what he wants, tells them they'll have full power to do the job, he talks to them until usually the fellow feels he can't refuse."

Hagerty, as the Governor's press representative, was a political writer for the New York Times when he joined Dewey in 1943. His salary: $12,500 plus $2400 for expenses.

The approximately 60,000 employes in the New York State service have received an over-all increase in pay levels of about 50 per cent since 1942, according to Hagerty.

Dewey Confers With Warren Today on Plans

By a Post Reporter

Pawling, N. Y., June 28.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Gov. Earl Warren of California will meet here Tuesday to discuss campaign strategy for their GOP coast-to-coast presidential ticket.

Warren and his family are expected to arrive about 11:30 by automobile from New York. They will be guests of the Dewey family at the Governor's 486-acre farm near Pawling. The Warrens will stay until evening, and may remain overnight.

The meeting will give the two candidates their first opportunity for a full-scale conference on the campaign since Dewey won the GOP presidential nomination and Warren became his running mate at the Philadelphia convention last week.

Dewey said he wanted to make a complete canvass of the political situation with Warren before the latter returns to California.

Expected with Governor Warren for the visit here are Mrs. Warren and their three daughters, Virginia, 19; Dorothy, 17, and Nina, 14.

Governor and Mrs. Dewey have been at their farm since Saturday with their two sons, Thomas, jr., 15, and John, 12.

Gay Daughters Lead Warrens On Lively Tour of N. Y. Sights

New York, June 28 (AP).—Politics ran a dismal second to the kids during Gov. Earl Warren's first day in New York.

The California Governor, Republican nominee for Vice President, capitulated to his three lively blonde daughters for a brisk round of night life tonight—proving himself no different than any other indulgent father of girls.

Parental foot was put down only on the choice of shows. He ruled out any which he considered too sophisticated, and settled on a musical, "Finian's Rainbow", for the initial Broadway venture.

Darlings of the Reporters

The girls—Virginia, 19, Dorothy, 17, and Nina Elizabeth (Honeybear), 14— at once became the darlings of the New York reporters. An arrangement finally had to be worked out by the Governor whereby no attempt would be made to accompany them on an afternoon shopping tour with Mrs. Warren.

After the show tonight the Warren family was the supper club guest of James H. McCabe, manager of the Hotel Pennsylvania where the Warren party is staying. McCabe is a former Californian.

Tomorrow morning Warren travels to the Pawling, N. Y., farm of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for relaxed and private consultations with the Republican standard bearer of 1948. Warren already has voiced a willingness to jump into the campaign early.

Today, however, was given over to Mrs. Warren and the girls.

It was a busy one. After a late breakfast, the family moved in a confusion of photographers, reporters, shopping, subway rides, and finally the theater and late supper. New York's steamy heat failed to wilt the girls.

There are two other children at the executive mansion in Sacramento—Bobby, the youngest, and Earl, 18. Another son, James, 29, is married.

"A Three-Ring Circus"

"It's a three-ring circus," Warren said, when asked what his home life was like with five children.

The Governor talked to Bobby by telephone.

"I asked him if he would like to move to Washington. He said, 'I don't know.' I think he's worried about his horse. So I told him that we would consult Porky when we get home."

Mrs. Warren, busy shepherding her sun-kissed daughters, has a project of her own, too.

"I've got to get Earl some ties as a Father's Day present—three from each of the girls"—then she added:

"Earl is so hard on ties—if he wouldn't knot them so tightly."

15 States Rights Governors Plan Preconvention Caucus

McComb, Miss., June 28 (AP).—The director of the States' rights campaign announced today that 14 Governors of Southern and border-South States have indicated they will attend a Philadelphia caucus July 11 prior to the Democratic convention.

J. O. Emmerich, McComb publisher, and director of the campaign, made the announcement when he returned from a conference in Little Rock, Ark., with Gov. Ben Laney, chairman of the States' Rights Campaign Committee.

"All of the 15 Governors are hostile to the nomination of President Truman for the presidential candidacy by the Democratic convention," Emmerich asserted.

Decision to hold the caucus was made by the Dixie conference of States' rights supporters in Jackson May 10. The State' rights movement opposes the nomination of President Truman or any other candidate favoring Truman's civil rights program.

Truman on 1st Ballot Predicted by McGrath

New York, June 28 (AP).—Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the Democratic National Committee, today predicted President Truman would receive a first-ballot nomination at the Democratic National Convention. He also said he did not regard Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as a candidate.

McGrath, asked whether he expected President Truman to be nominated, replied:

"On the first ballot."

Asked, then, if he expected Mr. Truman to be elected, the party chairman answered with a smile:

"Yes, also on the first ballot."

Kentucky Miners Told To Turn Down Truman

Pikeville, Ky., June 28 (AP).—A United Mine Workers meeting here today to explain provisions of the new coal contract was turned into a political rally against the Democrats. Union leaders:

1. Urged labor to support Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.) instead of President Truman for the presidency.

2. Suggested that miners in captive mines which have not yet signed the new contract could do what they wanted when the miners' vacation ends.

3. Described President Truman on his recent Western tour as "grinning like a Missouri mule eating sawbriers."

Sam Caddy of Lexington, president of UMW District 30, and Tom Raney of Pikeville, UMW field representative, addressed more than 1000 miners.

Democratic Leaders Seeing Eisenhower

Meriden, N. H., June 28 (AP).—New Hampshire's Democratic national committeeman, Harry Carlson, said he and other Democratic Party leaders from various parts of the country would confer in New York with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday.

Carlson said he would join with groups from Alabama, Florida, South Carolina and New York "among others" to talk with Eisenhower.

The report was met only by a statement from the general's office that his calendar "is filled Tuesday with university appointments."

Douglas Is Boomed By Michigan Group

A move is on to boom Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for the Democratic presidential nomination in opposition to President Truman.

Despite doubt as to whether the 49-year-old jurist has sanctioned the move, Democrats for Douglas, a group organized at the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, has circularized delegates to the Democratic National Convention in favor of Justice Douglas.

"The Democratic Party has no hope for success in November with Harry Truman as its candidate," a statement sent to the delegates said. "William O. Douglas is the only real hope of the party and the Nation."

Justice Douglas recently wrote the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that the campaign for him was being conducted against his wishes. The justice is now vacationing in the West.

Joe Louis Not for Wallace

Retiring Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis was reported yesterday as "not for Wallace" and otherwise still uncommitted politically.

A source close to the fighter told The Washington Post by telephone from New York that Louis disavowed a statement which placed him "squarely with both feet" in the corner with singer Paul Robeson, a Wallace supporter.

The statement was attributed to Louis in a letter, purportedly from him, which was read to an audience of some 1500 persons at a Ulmie Arena veterans' rally Saturday night.

The fighter's spokesman also said that Louis "will make no commitments until after the Democratic convention." He said the long-time champion intends to "take a part in the Presidential campaign but will not work with the third party."

He also will not run for Congress, "on anybody's ticket," the spokesman said.

This was the first statement on the titleholder's political leanings since he announced after his final bout last Friday—with Jersey Joe Walcott—that he intends to enter the political arena.

The disputed letter was read at a meeting sponsored by the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America.

Although placards advertising the veterans' meeting announced that Louis would appear with Robeson, the fighter did not attend the rally. The statement was read by Richard Bancroft, former president of Local 471, United Cafeteria Workers (CIO.)

Bancroft, queried yesterday, said he went to the meeting with his wife and children to "enjoy the singing" and was asked while there by Winston C. Edwards, acting national commander of the group, to read the statement.

Ship Operators Agree to Keep Hiring Hall

New York, June 28 .—Ship operators and an AFL seamen's union agreed today to retain the controversial hiring hall system of employment.

This was announced jointly by the Seafarers International Union and the Atlantic and Gulf Coast Operators Association. The agreement involves some 30,000 union members.

It was the question of the hiring hall, through which the unions supply employes to the shipping companies, that recently brought on a threat of a national maritime strike by seven maritime unions. The strike was averted for the present by injunctions obtained by the Government 14 days ago.

Wages Still to Be Negotiated

The SIU was not a party to the strike threat.

The agreement to retain the hiring halls was contained in a clause of a new contract being negotiated to replace the present contract between the SIU and the association. Wages and working conditions remain to be negotiated.

Under contract provisions the operators continue to have right to reject unsatisfactotry employes sent by the halls.

The union said negotiations will continue on unsettled clauses. If full accord is not obtained by July 30, a spokesman said, the present contract will continue in force until complete agreement is reached or until either party notifies the other in writing that negotiations are stalemated.

3 Days After Great Lakes Ruling

The announcement of the retention of the hiring halls came three days after a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner in Washington, ruling on a Great Lakes case, held that the CIO National Maritime Union had violated the Taft-Hartley Act by insisting on retaining the hiring halls.

The effect of this ruling on the SIU agreement, if any, was not immediately known.

The union said the companies involved in the agreement comprise only a minority of the "SIU contracted operators, but this hiring hall clause will be submitted in short order to the other union companies."

Harvester Negotiators Strive to Avert Strike

Chicago, June 28 (U.P.).—Negotiators reported no progress today in their last-ditch effort to avert a strike of 40,000 workers in 12 plants of the International Harvester Company tomorrow.

Representatives of the company and the CIO United Farm Equipment Workers' Union continued the meeting in an attempt to arrive at a settlement.

Creation of UCS Praised

Creation of the United Community Services was described yesterday as the beginning of the realization of a dream born 27 years ago.

It was so characterized by Capt. Rhoda Milliken at the twenty-seventh—and last—annual meeting of the Council of Social Agencies as the group prepared to be absorbed into UCS.

The United Community Services absorbs the Council of Social Agencies and the Washington Community Chest, and is a member of the Community Chest Federation, govering the Greater Washington area.

She declared the merit of the council lay in its ability to "make people think together."

High praise was paid Mrs. Catharine H. Norton, acting executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies.

Miss Jane Hoey, who presided, declared Mrs. Norton has made the "greatest single contribution to the new organization."

"FROM $20 A DAY TO $2,000,000 A YEAR"

Chapter Four—"The Liquor Business in War"

Previous installments told of our beginning in the tiny corner of a drug store, our growth to a store of our own.

The oft-sung notoriety of the spirit of '76 pales before the memory of the spirits of '45—not to mention '44, '43, '42, and '41. And when we say spirits, we mean potato spirits, fruit spirits, cane spirits, imported spirits, domestic spirits—everything but grain spirits! Oh, it's not nostalgia that makes us choke up when we glance down wartime's memory lane . . . it's the thought of those ersatz beverages.

Did we say memory lane? . . . we meant nightmare alley! Good whiskey was scarce. Good gin was scarce. Let's face it—anything good was non-existent. And as the shortage became more critical, gin loomed upon the scene in rare shades of yellow, orange and green. It was pretty, but was it gin?

Home front veterans of the war of nerves bought it without a murmur. The more discriminate held it up to the light to note the color, but never a word was spoken. Some of the gin sold in those days even mellowed the memories of the old bathtub variety. Yes, sir, it was a rough war.

Then Rum rhumbaed into the American bar in the wake of synthetic gin and the good neighbor policy was in full swing. Those were the days you drank rum coke—if you knew where you could buy coke.

Then we were faced with rum's dying popularity, so we asked ourselves, "Confidentially, what's the matter with wine?" With the taste of gin and rum still lingering, there was no answer. So we sold wine. Soon the water companies were protesting the wine consumption saying they were going bankrupt. And in desperation the fickle American public turned to tequila, vodka, rye and bourbon liquers, and various and sundry other concoctions, but enough-enough! The list of wartime beverages is too gruesome for comment.

Plain Old Pearson's was having a tough time pleasing its long list of customers. In those days it was an impossible task. We argued, we evaded—we did everything possible to smooth the rough path of shortage. A strange, new term made its way into the liquor business jargon—maybe you've heard of the "tie-in sale?" But of course you don't think Plain Old Pearson's knew anything about that???

Certain hours were designated for the sale of whiskey. Long lines formed outside the store. Man and wife, so recently life-long partners, stood total strangers—at least 10 people separated them in line while they waited for their bottles. Personal friendships became common talk over our counters—we had so many friends in those days!

Beer customers even had to bring back the bottles and caps before they could buy more beer. Sugar was scarce, gingerale and coca cola were scarcer. If the war had lasted much longer we could have moved the shelves to the back room and brought the stock room up front!

This was no business for Plain Old Pearson's. We thrived on sensational volume . . . small profit on each sale, but a lot of sales . . . 10c on 10,000 bottles, instead of 50c each on 500. We were desperately scraping the bottom of the barrel. And then fate smiled upon us. We found (?) 50 big, beautiful cases of I. W. Harper in a secluded corner of the stock room. They had been there for several years covered up by other merchandise. (To whom it may concern: I. W. Harper is a Bottled in Bond Kentucky Straight Bourbon—100 proof—no neutral spirits—and the whiskey was all five years old.) Amen.

Plain Old Pearson's advertised I. W. Harper at $2.97 a full fifth—come and get it. The line you see pictured here tells the story. We had only one disappointed customer that day . . . she left in disgust when, after standing in line for two hours, she discovered we were not selling nylons!

One canny host even entertained 15 guests at dinner, and for dessert brought them down to the I. W. Harper line at Plain Old Pearson's.

Oh, those were the days, all right . . . remember?

Strike Closes Flour Mills In Wheat Belt

Kansas City, June 28 (AP).—Flour mills here and in several Kansas and Missouri towns were paralyzed today by a strike which threatened to spread to elevators just as the first heavy 1948 wheat run hit town.

A strike of 1900 workers came as negotiations broke down between the American Federation of Grain Processors (AFL) and seven milling companies.

Workers at 14 terminal elevators worked feverishly to unload 1049 cars of wheat, the record day's run of the season, as they themselves prepared to walk out tomorrow over a wage dispute.

Mills in Other Cities Affected

J. A. Leveridge, international vice president of the union, held a last-minute meeting with elevator operators in an effort to avert the walkout which would tie up grain operations here at a time when the Southwest's wheat harvest is nearing full swing.

Mills affected by today's walkout are the Commander-Larabee Milling Company, Standard Milling Company, Flour Mills of America, Inc., Rodney Milling Company, Midland Flour Milling Company, General Mills, Inc., and Continental Baking Company.

In addition to Kansas City, the companies' mills in St. Joseph, Clinton and North Kansas City in Missouri and Fort Scott, Hutchinson and Topeka in Kansas are affected.

W. J. Hoofe of Minneapolis, a vice president of the Larabee Flour Mills Co. and chairman of the operators' negotiating committee, said the union now was demanding a 20-cent-an-hour wage hike and the company had offered 10 cents. Originally the union asked a 45-cent hike.

Elevator Strike Set

A spokesman for elevator operators said they also had offered a 10-cent-an-hour increase but the union was demanding 18 cents more an hour. The elevator strike was set for 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Elevators still had storage space and the mill strike would not interfere with wheat shipments here for a time at least. Should they be tied up by a strike, however, grain normally coming here from the Southwest would have to be diverted to other processing centers.

Columbus Firemen, Police Send Ultimatum

Columbus, Ohio, June 28 (AP).—Some 200 police and firemen sent their resignations to City Council today effective July 8—unless they get pay raises and uniform allowances.

Jerry O'Neal, a fireman and chairman of a committee representing the group, said the men are asking $50 a month pay raises and that if they are not granted ultimately some 75 per cent of the men in two departments would resign.

Draftees Won't Be 'Coddled,' 'Kicked Around,' Royall Says

Seventeenth Airborne Division at Camp Pickett in southern Virginia; Tenth Infantry (Mountain) Division, Fort Riley, Kans.; Fifth Armored Division, Camp Chaffee, Ark.; 101st Airborne Division, Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

The four training divisions now operating are: Fourth Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif.; Fifth Infantry Division, Fort Jackson, S. C.; Ninth Infantry Division, Fort Dix, N. J., and Third Armored Division, Fort Knox, Ky.

Eight Weeks of Basic Training

After being "processed"—inoculated, outfitted with clothing, etc.—the draftee will receive eight weeks of basic training with one of the training divisions or a combat or service unit, Fort Meade, Md., will receive some of the new men.

After basic, some of the new soldiers will be sent overseas to serve with occupation forces, others will join combat units in the United States or island bases, and still others will take advanced, technical training.

Promotion to a sergeant's stripes is open as well as assignment to Officers Candidates School. Men commissioned from OCS will serve the same term as other draftees—21 months active duty followed by transfer to the reserves. The top 10 per cent of OCS graduates can win Regular Army commissions.

Volunteers for the one-year terms open to 18-year-olds will take their basic training and subsequent service with a combat unit in continental United States.

After basic training, a man is eligible for furloughs up to 30 days leave a year.

When off duty, the Army policy is "that whenever possible, a man will be allowed to leave the post." The Army will caution him to keep out of trouble, but will not "chaperone his off post activities." A new civilian committee has been set up to help set up service clubs in cities like the old USOs.

On the post, athletic facilities will be provided for off duty recreation. Service clubs will be operated. Soldier dances will be held with "high-type girls" obtained through nearby churches or clubs.

Answering specific written questions, the Army said: (1) draftees should not be "influenced" by "hard-bitten old Army men," as the average age of the men in the ranks is 22; (2) no one will be "kicked around" or made "brutal and tough"; (3) rather, acceptance of "just and reasonable type of discipline" will make the draftees a "more orderly, self-reliant and law-abiding citizen."

Royall acknowledged the Army faced many problems in attempting to expand 542,000 to 900,000 men within a year. Here are some of the problems:

1. Getting at least 6000 additional doctors and dentists. As a "last resort," he said, the Army may have to "call back" medical men whose education was paid for in whole or part by the Government.

(2) Obtaining some 20,000 reserve lieutenants and captains to come to active duty to help train the new men.

(3) What to do about Communists. The Draft Act does not permit them to be exempted, but Royall hinted they may be able to refuse those with "subversive records."

(4) The present system of racial segregation will be continued, but the Army wants to disregard race in making draft calls.

Nearby Posts to Be Expanded

Military posts in Maryland and Virginia are to be expanded substantially. Troops at Fort Belvoir, Va., will be more than doubled—from 5000 to 11,000 men. Camp Pickett will be reopened about September 1, with an airborne division of 16,000 officers and men. Some 1600 WACs will begin training at Camp Lee, Va., October 1. Women Marine officers will be trained at Quantico, Va., and Marine enlisted women at Henderson Hall in Arlington.

D. C. Guard Halts Enlistment

The D. C. National Guard yesterday halted any further enlistments after receiving orders to do so from the Pentagon by mail a couple of days after they were flashed to other Guard units from Maine to California.

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, D. C. Guard adjutant general, said the unit's ceiling of 2633 officers and men had been exceeded by 83 at the latest count. The ceiling established is based on budget limitations and is less than the so-called "authorized strength" of the Guard here, which is 4067.

More than 800 men were signed up last week.

Figures from Colonel Nevitt show the air units to be somewhat below their ceiling of 1020 officers and men, with a personnel of 768. The Army units, on the other hand, have a personnel of 1948, compared to a quota of 1613.

Sandy Spring Firemen To Hold Carnival

A four-day carnival sponsored by the Sandy Spring Maryland Volunteer Fire Department will open on Wednesday with a parade featuring floats and fire equipment from all over Maryland and parts of Pennsylvania and Virginia.

A fried chicken and country ham dinner will be held at Sherwood High School Wednesday night and music, games and entertainment will be offered during the four days.

On Saturday, the final day, highlights will be a baseball game, a greased pig contest, and a bathing beauty contest to select "Miss Sandy Spring."

Man of Diversified U. S. Activities to Quit Wednesday

A man who has been a fireman, a policeman, a presidential bodyguard and a counterfeiting sleuth will retire from Government service Wednesday.

Shepherd

Harry C. Shepherd, 70, of 4801 10th rd. N. Arlington, who lately has been receiving presidential callers at the east entrance of the White House, can at last relax and look back on a colorful past, which began in 1903.

He was a fireman then, but later he joined the District Police Force. Police rode horseback in those days—and for six years he covered that section of M st. that stretches into Georgetown.

In the spring of 1917 he entered the Secret Service as a special motorcycle guard to Woodrow Wilson.

Later he was assigned to investigate counterfeiting activities in Norfolk.

Shepherd lives with his wife, Lottie L. Shepherd, and his 96-year-old mother-in-law.

Girl Abductions Laid To Indian Troubles

Karachi, Pakistan, June 28 (AP).—Raja Ghazanfar Ali Khan, Pakistani Minister of Refugees, said today 50,000 young Moslem girls were abducted during last year's communal trouble in India.

He said only about 8000 of them have been recovered.

Ghazanfar Ali Khan said he had definite proof many of the girls were taken overseas by Sikhs. Large numbers of them, he added, were kept by high Indian police and army officials in their harems.

"I help put 8 million dollars a year into action here at home!"

"That 8 million is Pepco's annual payroll—paid out to folks like me! We live right around here, raise families, pay taxes. Practically everything we buy is bought here—the family car, food, clothes, furniture—the long list of 'musts' that mean comfort and good living. Our tickets swell the gate to see the Senators . . . our contributions back civic welfare. Local banks hold our savings and a good many of us are among Pepco's stockholders. Multiply me by the 2500 men and women who collect that 8 million annually and you get a pretty fair picture of what happens to the Pepco payroll. It circulates here at home in the Washington area—helps business, creates jobs, has a hand in making 'home' an even better place. Veterans to Wait Year for 2 Billion

Nearly 19 million veterans got a disappointing answer to the $100 question today.

The Veterans' Administration expects it will be more than a year before refund checks are mailed out to holders of national service life insurance policies.

The VA has a surplus of about two billion dollars in its insurance till. The kitty was built up because the premiums paid by servicemen and veterans since 1940 were based on an old mortality table ,and turned out to be too high.

Surplus to Be Split

Since the law stipulates that the government mustn't make a profit on insurance, the VA plans to divide up the surplus among policyholders.

How much each veteran gets will depend on the amount of service insurance he held, and how long he has paid premiums on it. The average would be about $100.

The delay in splitting the surplus was disclosed when Chairman Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.) of the House Veterans Committee, urged VA Chief Carl R. Gray, jr., to start mailing out the refund checks as soon as possible.

Mrs. Rogers told Gray she had heard "distressing" reports that it might be January, 1950, before the checks went out. She said that news was "most disappointing."

A spokesman for the VA replied that Mrs. Rogers' information was over-pessimistic, but he added that it probably will be several months past June, 1949, before the big clerical job can be finished, and blamed a cut in budget.

Airline Pilot Reports Sighting 'Raft' at Sea

New York, June 28 (AP).—An airline pilot today reported sighting northwest of Bermuda what appeared to be a raft "with moving objects on it." The Coast Guard said a service plane was dispatched to search for it.

Pan American World Airways reported the captain of one of its Clipper planes had sighted the object about 150 miles northwest of Bermuda.

He first reported seeing a "dark floating object in the water." After descending, he reported "it looks like a raft with moving objects on it."

New Chevrons Ordered for Noncoms

By The Associated Press

Shortly after July 1, an Army G. I. Joe will be able to tell at a glance whether a "top kick" is possibly a platoon commander or maybe a mess sergeant. (There have been times, before making comments on chow, when that would have been handy to know.)

New and smaller grade chevrons for noncommissioned officers, distinguishing between "combat" and "noncombat" corporals and sergeants, are to be worn July 1 or as soon after as the new combat chevrons are in general supply.

This is part of the Army's "career guidance" program.

Blue Chevrons for Combat

After the changeover, men in combat jobs will wear chevrons of dark blue on a gold colored embroidered background, and noncombat soldiers will wear insignia of gold on a dark blue background. The new emblems will be about two-thirds the size of the present insignia.

In addition to the distinction in color, those noncommissioned officers designated as combat leaders —squad sergeant and platoon sergeant, for example—will wear an inch wide green tab on the middle of each shoulder loop.

The new chevrons will be prescribed on an individual, rather than on a unit basis. For instance, while a rifleman of Company A will wear the blue on gold of a combat man, the company clerk of the same unit will wear the gold on blue of a nonombat soldier.

May Change Chevrons

If a man changes from a combat to noncombat job, he may be required to change his chevrons. However, combat men on special types of duty, such as recruiting, National Guard training or reserve instruction, will continue to wear their combat chevrons.

Wacs are down as noncombat soldiers—so their corporals and sergeants will wear the gold on blue.

Grand Jury Probe Centers on Shooting

Washington's gambling probe yesterday remained centered on the "Brass Rail" shooting for the second successive week of testimony-taking in that already once-investigated affray.

Six more witnesses who gave testimony relating to the double-shooting at the Brass Rail cafe five months ago were heard yesterday.

The special grand jury investigating gambling last week spent all its sessions apparently probing for gambling aspects to the shooting in which charges of attempt to kill already have been placed against Henry M. Leake, 39, of 194 R st. ne., and Charles Henry Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne.

Yesterday's witnesses were:

Captain Robert V. Murray, former head of the robbery squad, now second in command of the Detective Bureau, declined to comment. Murray is believed to have participated in some aspects of the shooting investigation.

Pvt. Jacob L. Rinker of the Second Precinct, who participated in the first stages of investigating the shooting, receiving a radio call directing his scout car to the shooting scene, 1739 7th st. nw. When he left the grand jury room yesterday, Rinker held a revolver as evidence, apparently one of the weapons involved.

Cornelius C. Parker, 30, of 150 Seaton pl. nw., who said he was an eye-witness to the affair in which Nelson and Leake allegedly shot each other.

Lieut. Anna M. Amos, now assigned to Fort Bragg, N. C., and formerly a nurse at Freedmen's Hospital where Nelson and Leake were treated.

Melvin Johnson, believed to be an acquaintance of one of the principals in the shooting. He refused any comment.

Remaining witness of the day was an unidentified doctor, who treated one or both of the shooting defendants.

Outside the jury room, and waiting to be called, were Nelson and Leake. They did not testify yesterday, however, and will be recalled.

Despite the fact that they are charged with attempting to kill each other, they conversed and appeared friendly. Leake is known to have a numbers record, while Nelson was described as an employe at the Brass Rail at the time of the shooting.

Leake was called before the special grand last week but refused to testify on grounds he was improperly subpoenaed.

Postlude

Hot Weather Has Effect On Pianist

By Paul Hume

It was just too hot to play the piano last night.

Sally West designed a good, though unfortunately non-American program for her Phillips Gallery concert, but who can make music in such temperatures? Consequently, the music requiring the least amount of physical effort, and the smallest degree of concentration from the listeners, succeeded most.

Bach's engaging French Suite in G Major seemed perfect for the occasion. So was Chopin's quiet Prelude in G flat, and Ravel's Play of the Waters was highly suggestive of its rippling sounds. (I only wish I had been right in there swimming around.)

Sally West is well known in Washington for her excellent services as accompanist for the Washington Choral Society. Her playing last night showed technical facility but little penetration into the subleties of such large works as the next to the last piano sonata of Beethoven. In this, as in the final Chopin Prelude, notes came out but no drama.

It is imperative for any pianist to play both hands precisely together unless a composer specifies to the contrary. This and other stylistic matters marked Miss West as not yet prepared for such a concert as last evening's. But it was a warm night, and we appreciated her good efforts.

20 Slot Machines Getting Big Play at Marshall Hall

Twenty cash-paying slot machines are clicking merrily away at Marsall Hall, Md., summer amusement park on the Potomac 20 miles below Washington.

The machines—the type which pay off in coins—are operating openly in the resort's arcade, which yesterday was attracting more customers than the park's assortment of rides and other amusement concessions.

Yesterday was "Kiddies' Day." Some players were children who had come to the park to take advantage of the special prices offered to youngsters every Monday and Friday.

Some parents joined the children in playing the machines.

The amusement park is in Charles County, Md., where all coin-operated machines which pay off in cash are illegal. Last month a county grand jury, after completing its regular duties, asked that it be recalled in 90 days so that it might act on a proposed study of alleged gambling violations in the county. The jury is slated to reconvene August 16.

State's Attorney Thomas Carrico said he had not "received any information" that the machines were being operated. He refused further comment.

Calvert Votes Slot Machines

Prince Frederick, Md., June 28 (AP).—Calvert County voters authorized licensing of slot machines by the county commissioners today. In a referendum, they cast 1724 votes in favor of licensing and 986 against, a complete unofficial tally showed.

Under a local bill pushed through a special General Assembly session a month ago by Senator Louis L. Goldstein, a licensing law will become effective at once as a result of today's referendum.

The charge will net $150 annually for each of the first four machines. Operators of more than four will pay $150 for each additional machine costing up to 1000.

Persons under 16 will not be permitted to play the machines.

"Nearly all the playing of slot machines is done by Washington people," the statement added.

Canal Rd. Project To Get Under Way About August 1

Widening of Canal rd. nw., between 37th st. and Foxhall rd., to provide a dual, four-lane approach to the K st. elevated highway will begin about August 1, Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst revealed yesterday.

Bids on the project will be asked next week, Whitehurst said. Highway officials originally had expected to begin the widening work July 1, but Whitehurst said the month's delay was merely a matter of "planning."

Officials hope to finish the project by December 1. Completion of the K st. elevated highway, however, probably will be delayed until about March 1, 1949, due to difficulties in obtaining steel, H. R. Howser, engineer of bridges, said.

Mrs. Boettiger Sells Her Arizona Paper

Phoenix, Ariz., June 28 (AP).—Anna Roosevelt Boettiger today announced the sale of her interest in the Arizona Times, Phoenix afternoon daily newspaper.

Columbus P. Giragi, veteran Arizona newspaper owner, succeeds her as owner.

John Boettiger a few months ago turned over management of the Times to his wife. He has been on a writing assignment in Europe.

Sen. McCarran Leaves Hospital; Feels Better

Rochester, Minn., June 28 (AP).—United States Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada left Colonial Hospital today with the comment that he is feeling better "than I have felt in a long time."

The Senator underwent an operation for a prostrate ailment a week ago today.

Theft Suspect Held for Jury In Ax Slaying

A 41-year-old man, picked up by police Sunday night in connection with a larceny case, was charged yesterday with the ax slaying last March of John Lomax, 65, of 15 Lamond pl. ne.

Booked on a murder charge as Charles Clarence Richardson, of 2403 14th st. nw. (basement), he was ordered held for grand jury action by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage .

Tenth Precinct police took Richardson into custody for questioning about the larceny Sunday, but did not discover he was wanted for Lomax's murder until yesterday morning, when they checked the records at headquarters.

He was turned over to the homicide squad, where he admitted the murder, police said.

Lomax was found suffering from severe head wounds in his home March 30. He died the next day at Gallinger Hospital. A coroner's inquest in his death was held April 3, at which he slayer was ordered held for the grand jury in absentia.

Rush of Essays Crowds Deadline In Traffic Contest

Last-minute entries in the District's summer traffic safety essay contest yesterday were flooding the contest office at Room 1008 at Municipal Center.

Nearly 200 essays from Greater Washington children arrived in one mail delivery alone.

Deadline for the contest, sponsored jointly by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board and the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, is midnight July 1.

Any Greater Washington child 14 years old or under is eligible to enter the contest. Approximately 50 prizes, including a $100 bond, bicycles, sports equipment, dolls and wrist watches, will be awarded to children who write the best 100-word essays on what boys and girls should do to avoid traffic accidents.

Potato Chip Salesman Wins Love Verdict

A potato chip salesman yesterday won a $20,000 verdict here because his wife's love was stolen by a grocery clerk.

The District Court verdict was in favor of Carl B. Smyser, 39, 1228 Trinidad ave. ne., against the grocery clerk, Joseph Godwin, 35, of Falls Church, Va. Godwin didn't appear in court to contest the action.

Smyster, meanwhile, has received temporary custody of his three children pending a limited divorce suit against his wife, Martha, 36.

Truman Membership

The Marine Corps Reserve Officers' Association yesterday made President Truman an honorary life member. In ceremonies at the White House, Col. Melvin J. Maas, national president of the organization, gave the President a silver engraved life membership card.

Two Policemen Are Let Off

Two District policemen found guilty of negligence in the escape of two convicted murderers from District Jail in April, 1946, were given suspended fines of $500 each by Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court yesterday.

The two policemen, who are suspended from the force, are Pvt. Hubert C. Davis and Pvt. Oscar C. Sanderlin.

Assigned to guard Joseph Medley and Earl McFarland, who since were recaptured and executed, the policemen were tricked as they were playing cards with the convicts and found themselves locked in death house cells in their place.

A District jury found Davis and Sanderlin responsible for the escape, but Justice Holtzoff set the verdict aside, going back to English common law to find that only the sheriff or the person in charge of a prison would be subject to prosecution in such an escape case.

The Court of Appeals' reversal decision said it would be "distinctly unreasonable" to have the jail superintendent alone responsible for prisoners' escape caused by the negligence of police officers.

Atom Commission Makes Warren Engineering Head

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday announced that Frederick H. Warren, chief of its production facilities control branch, has been switched to the job of chief of the engineering-construction branch.

In his former role, Warren had the job of organizing the commission's export control program. His new post will put him at the head of the commission's vast atomic construction program, for which Congress has provided additional money.

Kirby K. Wyatt, former chief of the engineering-construction branch, will remain on the engineering staff to advise the commission on construction management and special construction contract problems.

Psychiatrists Invited to Assist Health Bureau

Seven Washington psychiatrists have been invited to serve as advisers to the Health Department on "technical" matters concerning mental health, Health Officer George C. Ruhland announced yesterday.

Dr. Ruhland said he will seek the group's advice first on the possibility of cutting the "veto" power of the Citizens' Advisory Committee, which the commissioners have made a permanent part of the alcoholic clinic setup.

The health officer said he believed "policy should be a matter for this office" and not subject to approval of the citizens' group. If the new advisory committee of psychiatristts concurs in this opinion, he said he may ask the Commissioners to lessen the power of the citizens' committee.

Six-Cent Air Mail

It was scarcely to be expected that the $450 pay raise for postal employes voted by Congress could be accomplished without some increase in cost to the public. It may be doubted, however, that the expedient of tacking an increase in postal rates onto the pay-raise bill was the proper way to approach the problem. Although the rate changes were considered in committee last year, they were not debated on their merits by Congress as a whole. Instead, they passed almost unnoticed in the eleventh-hour scramble. As a result, beginning July 1 the public will pay 6 cents an ounce for air mail and 15 cents for special delivery, an increase of 1 and 2 cents, respectively, over present charges.

Ostensibly there is justification for these changes. During fiscal 1947, before the pay increases, the Postoffice showed a deficit of 6 million dollars on special delivery service and nearly 19 million on air mail. There is a gimmick, however, in the air-mail figure. The Postoffice Department is charged with paying subsidies to the airlines at rates set by the Civil Aeronautics Board, and there is no breakdown as to what is actually the cost of carrying the mail and what is subsidy. There is good reason to believe that the present 5-cent rate actually covers the air-mail cost. The same problem enters into the newly authorized air parcel post rates, which are set arbitrarily without relation to haulage cost.

The hike in air-mail rates is particularly vexatious at this time because of the many recent changes. Before the war the charge was 6 cents; during the war 8 cents. Since then it has been set at 6 cents, then 5 cents, and now 6 cents again. The 6-8-6-5-6 sequence sounds more like football signals than a supposedly stable postage rate structure. Aside from the inconvenience, the new change will mean added costs in printing new stamps and changing posters which have been drawn up emphasizing the standard rate of a nickel. About the only consolation will be for those persons who never manage to have air-mail stamps with them and habitually put on two threes anyhow. The confusion emphasizes the anomaly of a payment system that camouflages air-mail service charges with subsidy. Surely the public has a right to an honest accounting as to what it is paying to keep the airlines in business.

Dollar-Poor Argentine

The devaluation of the peso is apparently one answer of the Peron government to the disappointment over the failure of Argentina so far to receive any tangible benefits from the European Recovery Program. The Peronistas had expected an influx of dollars under the offshore buying provisions of ERP to augment their own dwindling supply. Recently it has been made clear to them that no ERP purchases from Argentina will come for several months and that in any case they will be made by the individual countries participating in ERP and not by the United States.

No great rush by other countries to buy from Argentina can be expected if essential food supplies are available elsewhere. For the highwayman tactics which the Peron government has employed with respect to wheat have created widespread ill will. While the United States was sending every available bushel abroad at the going rate, Peron was coolly profiteering from the seller's market—exacting $5 and more a bushel, twice the world price for wheat. Recently the Peron government has evidenced a more reasonable attitude in negotiations, but there is relatively little outside buying of Argentine wheat except on contract, and contract purchases usually are not paid for in dollars. Indeed, this is one reason why the Peron nationalist financial policies are running into serious difficulty with respect to dollar resources. The indications are that the United States will have another large wheat crop for export, and it is not improbable that many European nations will continue to buy from us, even if Argentine wheat is available at the same price, just to teach Peron a lesson.

The peso devaluation itself principally concerns Argentine manufactured exports, on which the rate has been changed from 3.35 to 5 pesos to the dollar. This is apparently an effort to encourage the sale of Argentine industrial goods to her neighbors, supposedly in return for dollars. On agricultural commodities, which are the really important Argentine exports, the rate remains 3.35. The establishment of varied rates of exchange creates a financial mess, and it would not be surprising to see Peron yield eventually to the wheat boycott that has been building up by including agricultural exports in the more favorable rate.

Perhaps the most significant aspect of the peso devaluation is the announcement that restrictions have been lifted on the payment of profits on foreign investments in Argentina. This appears to be a move to attract more foreign capital, and is in line with the repeated efforts of the United States to obtain an easing of the hodgepodge of regulations which have discouraged new investment at the very time that Peron has been pleading for help. The success of this move will depend, of course, on whether the Peron government makes dollars available for return of profits. It is a step along the right course, but there will have to be a lot more before Peron can hope to obtain the confidence of other nations.

Turn The Rascals Out

Governor Dewey's postnomination promise to conduct "the biggest housecleaning you have ever seen in Washington next January" has led some people to jump to the conclusion that a Republican victory in November will be followed by wholesale firings. Of course, nothing of that sort is in prospect. Nobody knows better than the Governor of New York State that good administration is not compatible with the spoils system. And even if he were disposed to follow the old discredited practice of "turning the rascals out" to make way for political favorites, his hands would be tied. For, as Jerry Kluttz noted in his Sunday column, 92 per cent of the 1.8 million Federal officeholders are now under Civil Service, while the agencies not so covered have merit systems of their own. No responsible Republican Administration would dare to effect a house cleaning by removing the protection accorded employes under Civil Service laws.

It would be possible, to be sure, to follow the practice of preceding Administrations of setting up new agencies, manning them with political appointees, and subsequently giving those appointees Civil Service status. However, that kind of political juggling was much easier a few years ago when the Government services were being rapidly expanded than it would be under an Administration pledged to economy and reduction in personnel. Nor is Governor Dewey that kind of administrator. In Albany he had the reputation of appointing persons to government posts with an eye to fitness alone.

Governor Dewey was evidently referring to his intention to rid the Government of the Communists and other subversive elements who, according to extreme Republican belief and contrary to the FBI report, crowd the Government services. A recent report by Mr. J. Edgar Hoover disclosed questionable information in 4137 cases, or a little more than two tenths of 1 per cent of the total number of persons checked. Full-scale investigations are being conducted in these 4137 cases, and 1391 have been completed. Some 231 employes resigned during the course of the probes, and in 13 other cases the workers are no longer with the Government. The remaining 1147 completed investigations have been turned over to the Civil Service Commission for evaluation, and it is a reasonable assumption that by no means all these persons will be denied Federal employment. If there is any weeding to be done in respect of subversives, therefore, Governor Dewey may find that it has already been done when and if he becomes President.

The blunt fact is that Governor Dewey, if elected to the Presidency, will have a hard enough task finding qualified men to fill the positions at his disposal, in view of the low salaries paid to high-ranking, policy-making officials of the Government. This does not mean there will be no changes if the Republicans come into power. But there is little reason to fear that those changes will adversely affect the lives and livelihood of the great body of Federal employes here and in other parts of the country.

The Undefeated

There is no reason to suppose that Mr. Joe Louis did not mean what he said when he asserted the other evening that he had made his last professional appearance in the prize ring. There was a time, of course, when the advertised retirement of boxing champions could not be taken any more seriously than the "farewell appearances" of actors and actresses; but that was before "the manly art of modified murder," as the late W. O. McGeehan was fond of calling it, had become big business with a mechanism of organized blather as elaborate as that of Hollywood.

In the days when it was called "the fancy," it was usual enough for an undefeated champion to announce his retirement in one year and to be back fighting in the next. For the art then flourished mainly in England where the land enclosures and the industrial revolution had made honest work hard to come by, but where there were always enough bloods of the sporting sort to make possible a purse. This is not to say that the big fellows who stood up to scratch and slugged it out with naked knuckles, did not—at any rate when they were winning—relish the business almost as much as the spectators. It is even more probable that they enjoyed the patronage and adulation of the bloods. But it seems to have been mainly sheer necessity that kept them at it after animal prudence counseled them to retire while their brains were still in one piece and their faces still recognizable by their wives and children.

That is probably still true of many fighters who lack the various natural endowments that go into the making of a champion. Professional boxing is evidently a vocation which requires the full interest and zeal of its practitioners. Few of those who fail to put by enough money to set themselves up with a saloon, or billiard room or modest gymnasium have any trade to fall back upon. With champions, and especially those who have enjoyed a long tenure of championship, it is another matter. Here it is a question of how much resistance the champion has shown to the various ingenious devices that exist for separating him from his money. Most champions, alas, have not resisted either very long or very firmly, but the exceptions among heavyweights include Mr. Tunney and Mr. Louis who have thereby been able to afford the luxury of retiring undefeated. Mr. Tunney's subsequent career as a Shakespearean scholar and literary critic was somewhat less impressive than his career as a boxer, but doubtless more pleasurable. At this time Mr. Louis seems somewhat unclear about his post-professional plans, although he has said something about going into politics.

The great problem of the boxing-industry will now be to find a suitable successor to Mr. Louis. The history of Mr. Louis' matches for the last four or five years testifies to an utter dearth of talented heavyweights. This in turn seems to testify, not so much to any decline of brawn on the part of young American manhood, but rather to an increase of intelligence and discretion. The remote hope of becoming a champion and celebrity is evidently no longer sufficient to attract any considerable number of strapping young fellows into an ugly business which is nine parts crude avarice to one part manly prowess, despite the specious glamour given to it by the sports pages and the slick magazines.

Blindness On Books

A curious lack of imagination on the part of our occupation officials in Germany appears to be reflected in a complaint that is coming out of Vienna. Some months ago books publishers of the Austrian capital approached the authorities of Bizonia for an arrangement under which Austrian books might be exchanged in Germany for non-essential commodities. Those authorities were not interested. But the Russians controlling eastern Germany have let the Austrian publishers know that they would be delighted to have books in the German language in exchange for commodities. The present prospect is that the large Vienna publishing business will be taken over for publication of books bearing Moscow's approval.

Austria is too small a country to support large publishing firms unless they have substantial export outlets. If the Vienna publishers are to remain in business, therefore, they must export their books to Germany. With liberalism and love of freedom once more dominant and unfettered in Austria, at least in the non-Soviet sector, a flow of Austrian books and pamphlets into Germany and other neighboring countries would seem to be a factor of no little importance in the restoration of sanity and stability to Europe. But if such books cannot be exported to western Germany they are not likely to be published at all. Vienna's publishing houses will have to kowtow to the dictates of Moscow or go out of business. Except for the authentic reports as to the short-sighted action of the Joint Export-Import Agency rejecting Austrian books as of no importance, one would scarcely believe that the servants of great democratic powers could be so blind to their interests.

U. N. Police Force

There is good reason to emphasize the long-range forces that are working for peace through better understanding among nations and general improvement of the conditions under which people live. One can readily applaud Warren R. Austin, chief United States representative to the United Nations, therefore, when he says that progress toward peace must be achieved on a spiritual basis. But it is difficult to understand why Mr. Austin should choose this time to belittle the importance of an international police force under the U. N. If he was correctly quoted, he told a church group in Burlington, Vt., after he had received the social action churchmanship award, that the failure of the U. N. to establish a police force did not worry him—that the temptation to use such a force might have plunged the world into another war before this, if it had been available.

This sort of defeatist attitude seems to us to come with poor grace from the chief American representative to the United Nations. Surely the creation of a United Nations police force remains one of the chief objectives of this country. Russia's success in thwarting that aim to date has not changed the desirability of having such a force. Nor can we conceive of such a force, under firm control of the Security Council, becoming a menace to peace. On the contrary, its very existence would give weight to the voice of the Security Council and doubtless enhance the council's own sense of responsibility. In no event could a U. N. police force be used under the Charter without the consent of all the big powers. So the danger that it might be put into action arbitrarily by trigger-happy statesmen seems to us remote.

No doubt Mr. Austin was merely trying to put the best face upon an unfortunate failure of the U. N. But this sort of rationalization has the dangerous tendency of confusing in the public mind the objective toward which the U. N. is still striving. It is one thing to recognize the impossibility of creating a U. N. peace force at present and quite another thing to pour cold water on the idea of a standing international army to put down aggression on orders from the Security Council.

Wife For Uncle Sam?

It was with growing alarm that I read Marie McNair's column of June 25 wherein it was suggested that Uncle Sam should be provided with a wife, possibly a lady known as Aunt Sally.

Any such idea must be throttled in its cradle.

Uncle Sam, as he is in single blessedness, is precisely what all of us would like to have—a bachelor uncle. They are among the handiest of all relatives. They have time to listen to the troubles of their nieces and nephews; they indulge them in their absurdities, and they take their part against their parents when need arises. On occasions they are good for a touch.

What happens when the bachelor uncle takes a wife? As a proper man should, he cleaves unto her, and presently the nieces and nephews know him no more as he was. The new "Aunt Sally" has checkrein on him; she looks down her nose at the youngsters he was wont to coddle; she does not encourage him to take the day off and play host at the circus for the small fry of his brothers and sisters. Definitely, she stitches up his pockets, and there are no more quarters, not even nickels.

Lacking a real bachelor uncle of our own in most cases, it was we the people who created Uncle Sam in the image of our hearts' desire.

Administrations come and go. Wars and depressions rip and tear at us. We squabble among ourselves. Sometimes we feel a little hopeless, but Uncle Sam is always there, unchanging, steady, and even the most mature of us have a childlike trust in him, a quaint idea that at the moment of the worst imaginable disaster he would suddenly materialize, Paul Bunyan size, sweep us all into his protecting arms and scatter our enemies or our troubles with a casual flick of his left foot.

Marry off Uncle Sam? Ten thousand times no!

HIS NEPHEW.

How to Be A Candidate

The task of becoming a presidential candidate is, after all, a relatively simple one, and one which any conscientious follower of the formula can conquer. First of all, you must in your youth do something sensational and evocative of Nation-wide attention—like breaking up the rackets in a big city. After this you're all set if you just play your cards right.

You will now run for Governor, which is a sure-fire bet because most of the voters in your State have never been outside their apple orchards and the only thing they understand is that they must be loyal to the party eagle in the voting booth. From now on it is merely a question of remaining eminently respectable.

Take frequent pictures with your family, or your wife pouring milk into your tea. Make concessions here and there. Create an FEPC, but not so strong that it offends the right people.

Do veterans want housing? Appropriate $10.37 for the renovation of old school buildings. Do they want a bonus? Give it to them—you can tax their cigarettes so they wind up paying for it themselves. Are schools handicapped because teachers are quitting for decent-salaried jobs? Forget it—how many votes do teachers swing anyway? Better give an income-tax refund to your solid middle class supporters. Remember, you're a friend of the people.

Above all, keep your mouth shut and don't commit yourself on any controversial issues. Still you've got to keep yourself before the public. So when the question of high prices is being discussed—dedicate a new fire engine in Podunk. Is public housing being debated? Address the Women's Club on "Contract Bridge—Is It Here to Stay?" Are the issues of war and peace rending the country? Come out stanchly and unequivocally against kicking old ladies in the shins.

In this way you avoid making political enemies. Of course at the convention no one may admire you, but no one will hate you either, and what better way is there to get the nomination? Follow this formula and you can't lose. For it is crystal clear that you are eminently qualified to be the leader of a great Nation in a great crisis.

"The Scientific Method"

My thanks to the man who wrote the June 25 editorial "The Scientific Method." It is a scream. I have to stop writing this to enjoy another big laugh. "The Scientific Method" is the most delightful piece of hilarious nonsense that I have seen in a long, long time.

I'm reading it over again and laughing out loud again. To the writer I give the degree "Master of Laughter"—it takes me back to the delicious nonsense of John Kendrick Bangs (how I did enjoy Coffee, Repartee and the Idiot!)

"Strange Byrd"

Your despicable editorial of June 22, "Strange Byrd," puts you and your paper in the lowest bracket of loathsome journalism, as I see it.

Senator Byrd is one of our few statesmen honestly working for the best interests of his fellow citizens, and courageously endeavoring to prevent bankruptcy of our Federal Treasury.

To vent your spleen of un-Americanism against one of our finest all-Americans makes your paper unfit for circulation in the United States, as I see it.

Smoking Hazards

An eminent Washington physician wrote a letter to the President, with a copy to each member of the President's Cabinet, and to the three Civil Service Commissioners, in which he asked that smoking in Government offices be prohibited or else that smokers be separated from people who object to breathing foul air. This same doctor asked other physicians, as well as ministers and various organizations, to cooperate by making a similar request.

Since it may be difficult to prevail upon our lawmakers, some of whom are heavy smokers, to pass a law forbidding smoking in public, one of the surest ways to combat this evil is for people who disapprove of this practice to register their complaints with employers, transportation companies, restaurateurs, ministers, the medical profession, and publishers.

Smoking should be permitted only where it does not affect the health and the efficiency of other persons. Smokers, as a whole, are the most inconsiderate of all people. The loss of lives, property and forests caused by them is incalculable.

Vandenberg's Role At Philadelphia

To progressive Republicans and to persons of independent thought regardless of party, the convention just ended at Philadelphia was highly gratifying.

The platform was for the most part constructive and forward looking. The foreign policy plank was particularly good. The tone of the convention was above that of many conventions in the past. There were moments when it rose to nonpartisan heights, as in the statesmanlike address of former President Hoover at the beginning and in the dramatic pledge made by Harold Stassen in the closing hours to give his loyal support to the winners and to continue his work for liberal policies. Governor Dewey's acceptance speech was admirable and on a high plane.

The nominees for President and Vice President are from the liberal wing of the party. Both are men of outstanding ability and integrity with splendid records of achievement in the public service. Although the Stassen supporters were keenly disappointed that their hero, while winning the admiration and friendship of the delegates, failed to get the necessary votes, they can be proud of his manly acceptance of the decision. They can also feel assured that he will be heard from in the future.

Many admirers of Senator Vandenberg who hoped he would be drafted for the presidential nomination, felt that he should have been invited to address the delegates at the closing session. That would have been a fitting conclusion for a convention that was in so many respects above the ordinary. Perhaps, however, that was not necessary. For his voice was heard, efficient though indirect, and his influence felt throughout the convention.

It was felt in the drafting of the platform plank on international relations, and no doubt even before that, in the selection of a man like Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., as chairman of the drafting committee. It was felt in the unwillingness to participate in a "stop-Dewey" drive—an unwillingness which contributed in no small measure to the unanimous vote which gave Dewey the nomination on the third ballot. It was felt in the appeal for a man like Stassen or Warren for the second place on the ticket.

The success in getting a man of real stature as nominee for Vice President is in itself an achievement of the first magnitude. Many feared when Dewey, himself a man of exceptional ability and high character, got the presidential nomination, that the old guard would succeed in naming one of its own men for Vice President. To have two men of presidential caliber on the same ticket at the same time has been the exception rather than the rule, both with the Republican and the Democratic Parties.

To none, it may be suspected, is the outcome more gratifying than to Senator Vandenberg. When months ago he replied in answer to an inquiry that although he was not a candidate and did not want the nomination, he would not refuse a draft, he added an interesting comment. This was to the effect that he had never heard of an instance where a man was drafted for public office without any participation on his part. And, despite the pressure from his friends, he made it clear all along that he did not intend to participate even though he could have had the nomination had he done so.

His stature is in no way diminished by the result; rather it is enhanced. His leadership in the Congress is unimpaired. He has rendered high service there to his country and to the world. He is needed there as urgently as at any time in the past. Perhaps it was his realization of this that enabled him to maintain throughout his calm detachment from the heat of contest, his wise counsel and his statesmanlike judgment. The country is fortunate in having men like Senator Vandenberg in the public service.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Candidate Truman

WITH THE Democratic convention two weeks away, it now seems as certain as anything in politics can be that President Truman will be renominated to oppose Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

This is not because the labor-liberal wing of the Democratic Party has given up the hope of sidetracking Mr. Truman. Leaders of this action are still casting about for methods and a man.

But the plain fact is that their hope is very nearly foreclosed. The situation in Philadelphia will have its parallels with that prevailing during the Republican conclave just ended. No one will be enthusiastic for Truman, as candidate, but he will be the only answer for a party that contains so many widely separated elements.

Something that happened behind the scenes at Philadelphia last week throws a light on the dilemma of the Democrats who want another choice. In their desperation the extremists in the stop-Dewey coalition brought up the name of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

They went further than that. They tried repeatedly to get in touch with the general, who is now president of Columbia University, in the hope that he would at least not say a final no.

All their efforts, both by telephone and by personal emissary, were in vain. They could not break through the determined wall of Eisenhower's silence.

IT IS not hard to understand why the stop-Dewey cabal clutched at this straw of hope. A Roper Poll taken only a week before showed that Eisenhower could defeat any Republican or any Democrat by a wide margin. In other words, he is the favorite of a large majority of all voters. But Eisenhower is not in the least interested in rescuing any political faction for reasons of politics. Along with millions of independent voters, he might have preferred a Vandenberg - Stassen ticket to the choice of the GOP last week.

The important fact, however, is that the Republicans rejected the Taber-Martin-Bricker wing of the party and chose a ticket that most independents will feel is at least adequate. A victory by the nationalist wing would have put a grave responsibility up to the general.

Eisenhower, it is my belief, cannot be drafted by the Democrats. A forced draft, carried without consultation with Eisenhower, would subject the party to humiliating embarrassment.

THIS LEAVES as the only hope of the labor-liberal faction Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. In spite of his rather tepid public denials, Douglas is available.

For the same reason, however, that Senator Vandenberg could not be nominated by the Republicans, it would be all but impossible for the Democrats to nominate Douglas. The split in the Democratic Party on domestic policy is nearly as wide as the split in the Republican Party on foreign policy.

Douglas is a New Dealer who has consistently upheld the Roosevelt policies. It is impossible, for example, to imagine him compromising the civil rights issue.

This is written, of course, in the belief that President Truman has every intention of becoming the nominee of his party. That determination has become increasingly evident in recent weeks.

Today his friends represent him as being greatly encouraged by two things. One is the reception accorded him on the West Coast and the other is the nomination of Dewey, whom Truman will try to tag as a conservative.

The Democratic strategy in the coming contest is obvious. It is to represent Mr. Truman as a true liberal deserving the support of the great mass of independent voters who have no real party allegiance. This is the line Mr. Truman took in his tour through the West.

But the President will be under a handicap that has nothing to do with his qualifications or lack of them. He will be the candidate of a party in power for 16 years.

Courtesy To Foreigners

The incident of a "foreign-born wife" receiving unkind remarks from a fellow marketer in a local chain store is, indeed, unfortunate.

I think, however, Mrs. P. J.'s letter published June 26 has hit the proper point to consider when she refers to the matter as "a most disgusting display of human nature." Surely, after all, the source of these remarks must be considered. But, then too, don't such occurrences happen in every national capital? I am sure that wherever one finds people, one finds insults as well as overtures of friendliness. I ask a favor of Mrs. P. J., that she interpret the matter as one of individual bias and not a necessary exemplification of our national attitude. No, not even that of the city itself.

As an American . . . and a native-born Washingtonian, I would like Mrs. P. J. to know that I welcome her, as I know many others do. We Washingtonians are fortunate to receive her in our midst, to help us understand the ways of her native people, and to enjoy the traditions of which she undoubtedly must be proud. In the words of Otway, "Welcome as happy tidings after fears."

One more favor, that when Mrs. P. J. next chances to ask her way, in travel or in custom, and she receives in return a gracious reply, she says, "Ah, this too is the United States."

Truman Statement On Foreign Aid Bill

Text of President Truman's statement on his signing of the foreign aid spending bill yesterday.

I HAVE signed today H. R. 6801, the Foreign Aid Appropriation Act, 1949, providing funds for the first year of the European Recovery Program, for aid to Greece, Turkey and China, for meeting our occupation responsibilities in Europe and the Far East, and for our participation in the International Children's Fund and the International Refugee Organization. The total appropriation for these purposes included in the act is $6,030,710,288.

By far the largest item in this act is the four-billion-dollar appropriation for economic cooperation with Europe. I know that the American people share the deep sense of satisfaction which I feel in taking this final step to make the European Recovery Program effective. It furnishes concrete evidence and assurance to the free peoples of the world that we stand ready to work side by side with them to preserve free institutions in stability and peace.

In June of last year, the United States indicated its readiness to work with the countries of Europe in developing a program of joint action to achieve economic recovery. Representatives of 16 European countries drew up a program in response to this suggestion and submitted it to this Government in September. After careful study, I submitted to the Congress on December 19 recommendations for legislation to make the European Recovery Program a reality. Following full consideration by the Congress, this legislation was enacted on April 3.

THEN began the last step in the legislative process— the enactment of the necessary appropriations to make the law effective. Again the program was carefully scrutinized and its various elements weighed and tested. As finally enacted, this appropriation is substantially in accord with the program presented to the Congress six months ago. It represents the combined judgment and will on the Executive and the Congress. It was evolved in the spirit of cooperation and not of partisan conflict. It demonstrates the united determination of our people to make good our pledge of cooperation to those who, like ourselves, are striving to achieve enduring peace and prosperity among all nations.

Six Billion Aid Bill Signed

tablished for a joint recovery program based on European initiative and mutual aid; an organization is functioning and the United States has assured large-scale asistance.

"A continuation of the cooperation and effort of the people of the countries concerned, under these conditions, should achieve the success of the program."

Other Pacts Soon

An agreement with Great Britain, identical in most respects with the Irish and the Italian, was initialed last Saturday and will be signed after Parliament has debated it early next week. Agreements with others of the 16 countries and western Germany will be signed this week.

The agreement with Italy, the prototype of the others, is notable, firstly, for its repeated emphasis on self-help and intra-European cooperation; secondly, for its lack of evidence of the American "dictation" which many Europeans have been fearing.

For example, it outlines three main uses for the billion dollars' worth of lire which the Italian government will set aside as counterparts to the free grants that will come from the United States. These uses are (1) "promoting or maintaining internal monetary and financial stabilization in Italy"; (2) "stimulating productive activity and international trade"; and (3) "the exploration for and development of new wealth in Italy."

The second and third of these mean, according to the agreement, that Italy can use the lire to pay local costs of a "project or program" which is getting dollar help from ECA or from the World Bank; or can use the lire to develop production of strategic materials which the United States lacks and needs.

Other approved uses of the lire are for administrative expenses of American missions, or for "effective retirement of the national debt" to combat inflation.

The agreement contains no specific commitment on currency reform except a general pledge that Italy will do its utmost "to stabilize its currency, establish or maintain a valid rate of exchange, balance its governmental budget as soon as practicable, create or maintain internal financial stability, and generally restore or maintain confidence in its monetary system."

For Full Publicity

Among other commitments is one to lower trade barriers and discourage cartels; another, to give the United States any information that may be needed in carrying out the recovery program; and another in which both governments recognize the need of full publicity in both countries.

Claims will be arbitrated by the World Court or some other mutually agreed tribunal. The agreement will end June 30, 1953—one year after the projected four-year program ends—and the two governments can consult about earlier termination if either one wants it.

Italian Communists are expected to fight the agreement bitterly in the Italian Chamber, for they have declared war on the whole recovery program. In France there will be similar parliamentary fireworks, and in England the left wing of the Labor Party is expected to provide a lively debate on July 5 and 6, when Parliament discusses the matter.

Responsible foreign and American officials here are confident, however, that the agreements will be approved without serious trouble in every country. Under the American law, aid must be cut off from any country on July 3 if its agreement has not been made fully effective by that date.

Pravda Denounces Two Communists With 3 Wives Each

Moscow, June 28 (NYHT).—Two members of the Communist party were denounced today by Pravda, the party's newspaper, for disgracing fellow Bolsheviks by committing bigamy—described as a bourgeois rather than a Bolshevik practice.

D. G. Zhimerin, minister of power plants, was criticized for shielding one of the bigamists, Sergi Kalashnikov, a member of the party and head of the chancery of his ministry. When one of Kalashnikov's three wives filed charges of desertion and bigamy, Pravda came to her aid by publishing her story, exposing her husband and chastising the minister.

The second case disclosed by Pravda involved Ivan Vodolazov, also accused of having three wives.

Pravda called him "a vulgar, petty, bourgeois, cold-blooded, calculating scoundrel who soiled the title of 'member of the Bolshevik party.'"

Walter Lippmann is taking a short vacation. His column, "Today and Tomorrow," will be resumed next week.

Benes Aide Seen Among Refugees Fleeing Prague

Paris, June 28 (NYAT).—Three fugitive Czech army officers, their wives and an infant, were reported by police today to have made an emergency landing in France last night when the airplane in which they were escaping to England ran out of gasoline on the Channel coast near Cayeux-sur-Mer.

One of the women was described as the secretary of former Czech President Edouard Benes, according to the Paris newspaper, France-Soir, which quoted her as saying that the former President and his wife are being "treated" in separate clinics in Czechoslovakia.

Recognition Of Israel

By Sumner Welles

Behind-Scenes Shenanigans

THIS GOVERNMENT'S long delay in establishing full diplomatic relations with Israel is the culminating blunder in a record from which the Administration seems to have omitted no conceivable error.

Five weeks ago President Truman recognized the new state of Israel. Once that decision was reached, it was surely the part of wisdom for those in charge of our foreign relations to seek all of the advantages to be gained from that step. If an American Minister had immediately been sent to Israel, the beneficial results would have been promptly felt. The mere fact that the American flag would have flown over our legation would have had a tonic effect upon the people of that beleaguered land. It would have done more than anything else to convince the Jews of Palestine that they need not look to Moscow as the one source from which they can get help in their fight for liberty.

Because the United States has waited until after the Soviet Union had announced the appointment of a Minister, the establishment by the United States of diplomatic relations with Israel can only be regarded by the public opinion there as one more American attempt to "beat the Russians to it."

But that is not the worst of it. The Soviet Union has granted full "de jure" recognition. The United States has given only "de facto" recognition. The American special representatives in Tel Aviv will consequently be of lower rank than the Russian Minister.

WHILE THE officials presently in control of the State Department refuse to admit it, they have in fact been doing their utmost to impede the achievement of full sovereignty by the people of Israel.

The American people should realize what has actually been going on behind the scenes. While the Department of State was trying to delay the establishment of any kind of diplomatic relations, it was simultaneously insinuating that if the Israel government would agree to give up some of the meager territory allotted to the Jews by the United Nations resolution, "de jure" recognition by the United States would be forthcoming. Even the categorical statement of the provisional government that Israel would not cede 1 inch of its territory has so far failed to end these unsavory attempts at pressure upon a weak and struggling nation.

Such tactics as these have strengthened the belief in Israel that the United States is backing Britain's demand that Israel agree that King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan be given sovereignty over Jerusalem, and that it relinquish the Negeb—the only part of Israel where any large-scale resettlement of the European refugees can be undertaken—so that this region may be divided between Egypt and Trans-Jordon.

The State Department's policy has lent plausibility to the reports that the United States approves such British acts as Mr. Bevin's admonition, just before the truce, to Syria and Lebanon to intensify their military campaign as a means of helping Abdullah's Arab Legion, or London's indication to Syria of the strategic points in Haifa that should be bombed once the truce is ended.

AMERICAN policy has greatly increased the prestige of the pro-Russian factions in Israel. These extremist groups would never have dared to defy the authority of the provisional government had the masses of the people been given any reason to believe in the friendly sympathy of the United States.

Under present world conditions, the United States and Britain must unquestionably make every effort to agree upon common policies. But that surely does not imply that the United States need blindly acquiesce in a British course toward Palestine which can only result in sacrificing American interests, in undermining the authority of an Israeli government that has made cooperation with the Western democracies the very foundation of its policy, and a course which is clearly designed to block the freedom of Israel. It has long since been apparent that so long as Mr. Bevin continues to be Britain's Foreign Secretary there will be no British policy in Palestine that is marked by justice toward the Jews.

FORTUNATELY, no better selection could have been made in the appointment of this country's first envoy to Israel than James G. McDonald. As High Commissioner of the League of Nations, as Director of the Intergovernmental Committee on Refugees, and as a member of the Anglo-American Commission to Palestine, Mr. McDonald has for many years devoted his exceptional abilities to the relief of the Jews in Europe. His efforts in behalf of the creation of an independent Jewish state are well known in Israel.

The appointment of Mr. Eliahu Epstein as Israel's representative in Washington brings to that office a man of outstanding capacity, who is a fervent believer in the cause of the Western democracies.

Through the advice Mr. McDonald can now offer the Administration in Washington, he can do much to make American policy serve the true interests of both countries. He can thereby help to erase the unhappy memories of this Government's tragic mistakes during the last three years.

World Bank Advisory Council To Have First Meeting Here

Herbert Hoover, former President, and Edward E. Brown, board chairman of the First National Bank of Chicago, have been named to the advisory council of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Bank President John J. McCloy, also announced yesterday that the first annual meeting of the council will be held here July 19 to 23.

The bank's articles provide for a 10-member advisory council, with members representing banking, commerce, industry, labor, agriculture, science, economics and other activities.

Salter Chairman

The chairman is Sir Arthur Salter, British economist, former director of the League of Nations economic and financial section, and member of the league's economic advisory council. A member of the House of Commons since 1937, he was senior deputy director general of UNRRA for two years.

Other members are Pedro Beltran, Peruvian agriculturist; Col. R. Rickson Harkness, Canadian industrialist; Leon Jouhaux, French labor official; Michael Kalecki, Polish economist; Sir V. Venkata Raman of India, scientist; Lionel C. Robbins, British economist, and S. K. Alfred Sze, Chinese statesman.

The council's function, McCloy said, is to "advise the bank on matters of general policy."

For Sawmill Equipment

McCloy also revealed that the bank is discussing loans to provide sawmill equipment for eastern European countries. An official of the bank is being sent to Geneva, Switzerland, on the matter. The tentative plans would have the loan used to provide lumber for western Europe, with the countries getting the supplies, guaranteeing the loans.

He also said that a loan to help the Netherlands buy ships is "fairly close." Private banks will participate, and the amount will be "relatively small," he said—"more modest" than 26 million dollars—a figure previously reported.

The President's Calling List

President Truman saw the following White House callers yesterday:

12:00 Noon.—Paul Aregger, president International Committee of Red Cross.

12:15 p. m.—Rapheal O'Hara, retiring Minister to Liberia.

12:30 p. m.—Undersecretary of State Lovett.

1:00 p. m.—Lunch.

Royal Arch Masons To Fete Sigourney

Royal Arch Masons of Washington and northern Virginia will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the George Washington National Masonic Memorial in Alexandria to honor Daniel P. Sigourney of Richmond, grand high priest of Royal Arch Masonry in Virginia.

Sigourney, who is paying an official visit to the District 1 chapters, will address the group. The District 1 chapters which are sponsoring the affair are Mount Vernon Chapter No. 14 of Alexandria, Arlington Chapter No. 35 and the recently established Triangle Chapter of Arlington County.

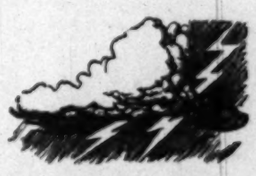
Where does a job come from?

from a storm?



Yes indeed! Every job had its beginning in somebody's brain storm—in a sudden, breath-taking idea for a new product, a finer service, a better method. But the idea alone is not enough—jobs come from the actual making and distributing of goods or services.

from a wire?

Certainly! It takes a live wire to find markets, design the product, specify materials, organize production, sell the finished goods at a profit. Without good management to direct all these operations capably, there would be no jobs worthy of the name.

from a log?

Absolutely! No company can operate without a backlog of working dollars, with which to build factories, buy materials and equipment, pay wages. Every job in modern industry represents an investment of at least $1,500 . . . in some industries, as much as $40,000!

Where do these working dollars come from? In a free country, they come from the people themselves. From millions of investors whose dollars make it possible for business to grow—to provide more and better jobs, to produce more and better goods. That's why the New York Stock Exchange believes it imperative that people have an incentive to save and invest. That's why our government's policies—particularly its tax policies—must be so shaped that investors are able, and willing, to put their dollars to work.

Black Resigns Post at Pepco For Editor Job

By S. Oliver Goodman

Fischer S. Black, Washington civic leader, has resigned as assistant to the president of Potomac Electric Power Co., to accept appointment as editor of the Electrical World magazine.

Black

Black will take his new post with the McGraw - Hill magazine on July 15. He will move with his wife and three children to Bronxville, N. Y.

His Pepco colleagues mourn his departure as a loss to the company and the city. He has been associated with Pepco since 1934—eight years as an engineer, four years as assistant system planning engineer and since 1946 as assistant to President Alfred G. Neal.

He graduated from the University of North Carolina with a B. S. degree in electrical engineering. He also graduated from National University Law School.

A member of the Washington Board of Trade, he served for two years as chairman of its City Planning Committee, vice chairman of its Postwar Planning Committee and as a member of the Municipal Finance Committee. Active in other civic activities, he also is a past chairman of the Washington section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

CHANGES: Appointment of J V. Sowers as general passenger agent here was announced last night by Pennsylvania Railroad. Sowers, now assistant general passenger agent at St. Louis, succeeds J. B. Dorrance, jr., who moves to Pittsburgh as general passenger agent. The appointment is effective Thursday.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Thomas G. Spates, vice president of General Foods Corp., last night received the first annual award of merit to be given by New York Personnel Management Association. Rear Admiral Harold B. Miller (retired) has been appointed director of the Department of Information of the American Petroleum Institute . . . A. F. Swinburne has been promoted to executive assistant of the Car Service Division of the Association of American Railroads . . . Wilbur C. Munnecke has resigned as vice president of University of Chicago to become administrative vice president of Encylopaedia Britannica, Inc. . . . Benjamin F. McClancy, who during the war served on the War Manpower Commission and on the War Labor Board, has been named general manager of the Associated Industries of Cleveland.

DIVIDENDS: Directors of Washington Gas Light Co. have declared regular quarterly dividends as follows: $1.12½ on cumulative convertible preferred stock; $1.06¼ on cumulative preferred and 27½ cents on common stock. Preferred dividends will be paid August 10 to stock of record July 24, while common dividend is payable August 2 to stock of record July 15.

ODD LOTS: Bache & Co. has issued a special survey of utility stocks with a favorable outlook. Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., is discussing plans for sale of an additional 200,000 shares of common stock to help finance production of cathode ray tubes . . . Stockholders of Texas Gas Transmission Corp. have approved an amendment authorizing the issuance of 100,000 shares of $100 par preferred stock and three million shares of $5 par common stock . . . An underwriting group headed by First Boston Corp. announced it will make a public offering of 600,000 shares of capital stock of Permanente Metals Corp. despite the possibility of litigation involving the company. The National Association of Manufacturers said the trend of bank credit in the first four months of 1948 did not indicate a serious inflationary threat at this time.

AWARDS: Yesterday was award day at the Southern Railway Building here. Three of the railroads in the Southern System received top awards of the National Safety Council 'for outstanding achievement in the field of employe safety in 1947." The Southern lines that placed first in their groups were the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway; the New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad, and the Georgia Southern & Florida Railway. In addition to these honors, the Southern Railway as a whole has received the council's Distinguished Service to Safety Award, the highest honor in the industrial field.

EARNINGS: Wesson Oil & Snowdrift, Inc., reported net income of $11,646,921 for nine months ended May 31, equal to $18.47 a common share, compared with $10,945,655 or $17.27 a share in same 1947 period. Other earnings reports:

Lewis Upsets Pattern Again; Coal Owners Could Use Krug

By J. A. Livingston

JOHN L. LEWIS has stolen another lap on his rivals in the labor movement. For the third year in a row, he has beaten the general wage pattern in the heavy industries.

Lewis got 20 cents out of the coal operators. Philip Murray, head of the United Steel Workers, couldn't get U. S. Steel to budge from its two-year contract. Lieutenants of bedridden Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, emerged from a conference with General Motors with an 11-cent increase—8 cents as a cost-of-living adjustment and 3 cents for improvement in the standard of living. Chrysler, Kaiser-Frazer, Studebaker, General Electric, Westinghouse, Firestone, and other companies followed with increases in this general 11-to-13 cent range, or about 8 per cent.

Livingston

Lewis snagged 12 per cent. Here's the arithmetic of his deal. He won a straight dollar-a-day rise (12½ cents an hour) to bring the miners' daily wage to $14.05. He got an increase in the health, welfare, and pension royalty from 10 cents to 20 cents per ton. Since bituminous coal production averages 6 tons per man per day, this last amounts to 60 cents a day or 7½ cents an hour. Thus daily pay plus royalty is now about $15.25, as against $13.65 under the contract Lewis won from Benjamin Fairless, president of U. S. Steel, and George M. Humphrey, chairman of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal, a year ago.

LAST YEAR Lewis got 31 cents an hour against the 15-cents pattern. Two years ago, dealing with Secretary of Interior Krug, he topped the 18½-cent-an-hour pattern with a 5-cents-a-ton royalty. At the time, the coal operators accused Krug of selling out to Lewis. Yet when Lewis tried to reopen the contract, President Truman and Secretary Krug held firm. Lewis struck, the government took Lewis into court; consequence: a $700,000 fine against the union, $10,000 against Lewis.

Krug's triumph was costly. Lewis declared war on James Boyd, former dean of the Colorado School of Mines, whom Krug named director of the Bureau of Mines. Senator Millikin (R., Col.), has held up Boyd's confirmation in the Senate. Boyd has received no Government pay for six months. He has used up his personal reserves and is now living on money borrowed from within his family. Boyd distinguished himself during the war as executive officer to Gen. Lucius Clay, when Clay was director of material procurement of the Army Service Forces.

ALL THIS goes to indicate Lewis' great power, politically and economically. His latest wage exploit twists the inflation spiral anew. Arithmetically, the wage boost will average 26 2/3 cents a ton. But the pass-along to the public will be closer to 40 or 50 cents and perhaps higher. The reasons are several:

1. In many mines, production per miner never approaches 6 tons per man per day. In Alabama, for example, production averages 3.8 tons. Thus, the increase of a dollar a day in wages would come to 26½ cents per ton. Add to that the 10 cents a ton royalty.

2. The highest cost mines will determine what the public pays. Lower-cost mines will tend to charge what the higher-cost mines have to bear.

3. The increase will double back on the coal operators. As coal prices go up, so will the cost of the supplies, materials and electric power.

4. Higher wage rates will mean higher Social Security costs—payments into unemployment compensation and pension funds.

SINCE THE WAR, both miners and mine owners have done well. The miner is the best-paid worker in America, both on an hourly and weekly basis. Labor's share of mining costs jumped from 60 per cent in 1946 to 63 per cent in 1947. The coal owner didn't suffer because of that. Gross margin per ton of coal went up from 14 cents in '46 to about 58 cents last year. And after Federal taxes, net income, according to sample data, comes to about 6 cents on the dollar as against 2½ cents.

What has happened is part and parcel of the seller's market. Lewis and the operators find it profitable to agree, expensive to disagree. The fact that crude oil prices are rising makes agreement all the easier for Lewis and the operators. Competitive pressure is off coal.

Yet coal isn't unique. The great demand for United States goods and services has put all management and labor—negotiating across the table—in a position to impose their own terms on the public. Lewis has simply proved himself the grand master in this postwar tactic.

Tax Assessors Go to School In Maryland

By The Associated Press

It will be pretty hard to get a tax assessment on your house this week—perish the thought you should want one—because nearly all of Maryland's assessors are going to school to learn how to do a better job.

The school opened this morning and continues until Thursday noon, when those who complete the course will get certificates of their achievement.

William E. Hutchison of Upper Marlboro, chairman of training for the Maryland Association of Assessing Officers and one of the moving spirit of the annual school, counted 96 enrollees when he assessed the opening class.

Dr. Joseph M. Ray, director of the University of Maryland Bureau of Public Administration and another organizer of the course, said this was "about everyone in the business."

This year they are concentrating on "building appraisal." They have a new text to work on, fresh from the pen of Wilton T. Allen,, supervisor of assessments for Montgomery County.

Dr. Ray said Allen's manual is a complete and thorough application of scientific tax assessing principles—principles that are being slowly adopted throughout the country to replace the time-honored "by-guess and by-gosh" method of putting the value on a house or building.

They are based on the floor space of a building, the costs of replacing it under 1942 conditions, an adjustment for increased costs, and another adjustment for deterioration.

Most counties are represented by at least three assessors, the supervisor and two deputies. Prince Georges County has six in attendance, Montgomery County 11.

Radio Man Fights Plan to Gag Crime News

Maryland radio stations have been urged to give widespread publicity to a proposed gag rule on crime news in the State.

This urging came yesterday from Joseph L. Brechner, general manager of Station WGAY, Silver Spring, who has circularized the State radio stations with the proposed Rule 9. The rule, proposed by the standing committee on rules of the Maryland Court of Appeals, would bar newspapers and radio stations from using crime news after a suspect had been arrested, and would prevent State's attorneys, defense attorneys and persons officially connected with a criminal case from commenting.

Brechner said a copy of the rule also had been sent to National Broadcasting Association officials for possible action in support of a fight against the news gag. The rule would be binding on all Circuit Courts.

Montgomery County and Prince Georges County Press Associations went on record last Thursday night as unanimously opposed to the rule.

Brechner said these two organizations feel the rule is a "violation of the rights of free speech, free press and the rights of defendants."

A joint committee for the Montgomery and Prince Georges press groups, headed by Joseph M. Mathias, is preparing a formal resolution opposing adoption of the rule.

Griffin Habeas Corpus Petition Discharged

Baxter Griffin, 42, yesterday lost another round in his fight to escape the electric chair July 9 for the fatal shooting of Lee Hunter in February 1947. Justice Edward M. Curran discharged a petition for a writ of habeas corpus sought by Griffin. The grounds for the writ were that Griffin's trial and sentence were illegal.

Jap City, Towns Damaged by Quake

Tokyo, June 29 (Tuesday, (AP).—A violent earthquake jolted western Honshu late Monday, but Allied headquarters said today initial reports of damage to Fukui and other towns "were greatly exaggerated."

A statement by headquarters' public health and welfare section said later reports from Japanese police and Red Cross units, and disaster workers indicated the disaster was not as severe as at first reported.

However, an earlier report from a United States military government team at Fukui described the city of 85,000 about 70 per cent destroyed by the earthquake and fires which followed. (The city was rebuilt after being nearly destroyed by American Superfortress raids in July, 1945.)

Headquarters said it had no confirmation of a report of 600 casualties in Fukui. The statement said seven were killed at neighboring Daishoji, instead of 300 reported by the Japanese press; and no one killed at Kanazawa, which earlier was reported destroyed.

All earlier indications pointed toward a heavy toll.

The small American Army outfit in the area 200 miles west of Tokyo escaped safely but lost all possessions except a few jeeps.

The series of earth shocks began at 5:14 p. m. Japanese daylight time (3:14 a. m., Monday, Est.), and continued intermittently for nearly 12 hours, but occupation officials said the tremendous damage was largely done in just 60 seconds.

In Fukui the first shock was followed immediately by fire which destroyed almost all the city's 37,000 buildings. American and Japanese reports from the scene said only the city hall, telephone exchange and prefectural government offices remained relatively undamaged.

Japanese reports said the last of three major fires finally was brought under control shortly before dawn today. At their height, the flames were visible 30 miles.

Cracks in the streets eight inches wide burst water mains and hampered firefighting.

One Japanese eyewitness said he saw a seven-story department store collapse instantly into rubble, while destruction of a theater and the Fukui and Kanazu railway stations also pointed to heavy casualties.

Flames in Fukui were visible for 30 miles.

Japanese papers estimated 5000 casualties—an admitted guess—but neither American nor Japanese officials would hazard a figure.

That the loss of life might be extremely large, however, was indicated by Lieut. Ben Evans of Crawfordsville, Ind., of the Fukui military government team.

Crowded Theater Collapses

Reaching Takefu, 12 miles south of the stricken city, he reported by telephone that one crowded theater in Fukui had collapsed, with only three persons known to have escaped, and that the busy railway station was demolished, with no known survivors.

Fukui, with 85,000 population, is 200 miles west of Tokyo near the Sea of Japan. By Japanese standards the area is sparsely populated.

The Japanese welfare ministry in Tokyo said it had a report that 350 persons were killed at Daishoji, a seashore town 20 miles northwest of Fukui. Occupation headquarters had a report of 10 dead and 60 hurt there.

(Unless Japanese figures are absolutely official, they usually should be considerably discounted, as they have proved unreliable in previous disasters).

The welfare ministry estimated the number of "sufferers," including homeless, might reach 400,000.

Fukui, an industrial center near the central north coast of Honshu—Japan's main island—was 85 per cent destroyed by American B-29 bombers in June, 1945. It since had been largely rebuilt, mostly of wood.

A Captain Gurlick, commanding a Thirty-fifth Infantry patrol in the stricken area northwest of Fukui, reported by radio that at one time fires were visible for 30 miles.

He said the towns of Mikuni, Maruoka, Matsuoka and Kanazu, ranging from ten miles north to five miles east of Fukui, were all destroyed and were without water. His report indicated the disaster strip was about ten miles wide, east-west, while other accounts indicated it ran 15 to 20 miles north and south, with Fukui as the epicenter.

First excited Japanese accounts mentioned tidal waves on the coast, and the welfare ministry vaguely relayed one, but could not give the location. American sources at the scene and at occupation headquarters said they had no word on any waves.

The Takefu police chief said the road and railway were blocked for the 12 miles from his town northward, but the relief train carried jeeps in anticipation of this contingency.

A second relief train was held at Tokyo when it was determined that the disaster area was not as extensive as had been feared.

Brig. Gen. Crawford Sams, chief of the occupation's health and welfare section, said ample help was being sent. Neighboring Japanese prefectures sent police, firemen and doctors.

Early Tuesday, however, the military detachment in Fukui sent a message to Kyoto requesting that no more troops be sent.

Colonel Hyland reported the Japanese already had the situation well in hand and that his technicians were setting up a radio network.

Governor Obta of Fukui prefecture was quoted by the Japan Broadcasting Corp. as asking Premier Hitoshi Ashida for "measures of assistance" in three counties of the prefecture.

The governor said the casualty toll was unknown.

Honolulu Jarred By Series of Quakes

Honolulu, June 28 (AP).—A series of sharp earthquakes starting at 1:38 a. m. (7:38 a. m. EST) jolted Honolulu today but did no appreciable damage.

The shocks came approximately 4½ hours later than the major earthquake in Japan, but Laurie Burgess, observer at the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey seismograph station, said there was no connection between the two.

'Quake Laid Fukui Flat, Witness Says

Tokyo, June 29 (Tuesday) (U.P.).—A refugee from earthquake-stricken Fukui described today how he watched the destruction of the city of 85,000 inhabitants.

Akira Yamada, city official from Tsuruga, was in a Fukui broadcasting station when the quake struck.

He walked 25 miles back to Tsuruga and sent his story to the Tokyo newspaper Mainichi.

"I was standing in the studio when suddenly the building began to shake," he said. "I was terrified when the walls began to crumble and I rushed out.

"A sudden dust storm seemed to blanket the city. When it cleared away, I saw the whole city before me was flat, except for a tiny cluster of military buildings."

"The road in front of the radio station had a crack in it 18 inches wide. Railroad tracks were twisted like pieces of candy," Yamada related.

"Cries of women and children pierced the dismal atmosphere. Buildings were a mass of ruins.

"I saw a mother crying and shouting for help to save her child who was pinned underneath the wreckage of a building. I went to her rescue and saved the child.

"The bridge near the station had gone down. There were numbers of injured persons there. A policeman, apparently injured and covered with blood, was trying to help them.

"A seven-story department store was leaning like the Tower of Pisa and burning as I left the doomed city."

Straw-Hat Straw Loves Mary, Too

By Richard L. Coe

ALL OVAH THE MAP: So far Olney hasn't scheduled it, but it 'pears as though "John Loves Mary" will be this year's summer theater champ . . . The Norman Krasna comedy of two seasons ago (which hasn't played our town) is the attraction this week at some seven summer spots we've pinpointed from Maine to Delaware . . . Closest—and with the original lead—is the one which opened last night at Rehoboth Beach, the first production of the Henlopen Playhouse . . . The Henlopen folks, headed by Norma MacHardy, have been beating the drums for their new project aiming a lot of their beats this way, for Washingtonians must be at least two out of every five of Rehoboth's boardwalk strollers . . . William Prince, who's done right well in the movies and who created "John" in the New York production, is the Henlopen's first star, fresh from Chicago, where the comedy is having a summer run . . . Just to give you an idea how thoroughly Rehoboth is going all out for its first year of summer stock, Mayor Shaffer has commissioned himself employment officer for two Delaware University students who want to study at the theater and latch on to some food dough while they're at it.

OTHER SUMMER THEATER bills make titivating reading . . . Up at Sea Cliff, Long Island, you'll find Buddy Ebsen doing "John Loves Mary," while at Princeton Guy Madison is about to play the Krasna comedy . . . At East Hampton, Long Island, Jose Ferrer and Mary Anderson are doing, of all things, "Romeo and Juliet," and at Westport June Havoc and Joan McCracken are playing the Gilbert Seldes version of "Lysistrata," now fully titled "Lysistrata '48." . . . In the supporting cast of this one are Bibi Osterwald and Maria Gambarelli, whom old Roxyites will recall as "Gamby." . . . Gamby is doing the role Lawrence Langer offered Washington's Mrs. John Davis Lodge, who had to turn it down because during rehearsal week she wanted to be with her husband at the Philadelphia convention.

MOVIE NAMES are topping the playbills and there'll be more as the summer gets under way . . . One of the busiest companies will be the Joan Caulfield-John Payne duo for "The Voice of the Turtle", with Jean Castro doing the Olive Lashbrooke role . . . Edward Everett Horton is still faced with a full calendar for "Springtime for Henry" and Mischa Auer and Hailia Stoddard are set for a circuit tour in "Twentieth Century", which Olney gets with Eugenie Leontovich in a few weeks.

MOST NOVEL of the bills is that offered by the Putnam County Playhouse: its eight plays have all been chosen by New York drama critics. . . Ward Morehouse of the Sun chose the first one, William Gillette's "Secret Service," but who's responsible for picking "The Whole World Over", which comes next? That, which we caught in its Wilmington tryout, is from hunger . . . "Life With Father", which began its career as a summer play, now is back to the circuit; it's sequel, "Life With Mother", got raves in Detroit and 'tis said it's a cinch for a Gotham smash in October . . . A good novelty, too, is Keene, N. H.'s revival of "Knickerbocker Holiday," that beguiling Maxwell Anderson comedy to which Kurt Weill contributed a swell score.

FROM LOS ANGELES comes a merry letter from Marjorie Gateson, who's just reopened with Bobby Clark in "Sweethearts". . . "Maybe you don't know it," hunt-pecks Maggie, "but the Philharmonic Auditorium is really a church, so many colorful lines had to be deleted, including some of our best exits . . . I asked my maid why she didn't use a small wardrobe in my dressing room for some of my clothes and she said: 'Oh, that's filled with hymnals and prayer books!' . . . It was a very gala opening audience . . . I had the most gorgeous flowers and one of the boys came in and commented, 'Well, Gateson, you couldn't do better if you were dead.'"

MEANWHILE, in New York the players keep busy, adding television to the summertime heat . . . Bess Winburn, who used to play leading roles so effectively at the Cross Roads (where "Parlor Story" reopens Wednesday night for four performances), having televised "The Royal Family," has now latched onto "Foolish Notion," which you can catch with Bess on your set at WNBT Wednesday night from 9 to 10.

AND TONIGHT, of course, rings up the curtain on "The Philadelphia Story," which is keeping Diana Barrymore and her friends busy this summer . . . In the role of the brat will be Mary MacArthur, playing her final role before sailing for London to hold her mother's hand when, for the first time, the name Helen Hayes shines across a West End marquee . . . Yes, if you've missed anything from "Lysistrata" through "The Beaux Strategem" and "Romeo and Juliet" to the "John Loves Mary," summer's the time to catch up on your playgoing.

THE RETURNEES RETURN: Hoagy Carmichael, Fredric March and Harold Russell in a scene from "The Best Years of Our Lives," the Sam Goldwyn prize-winner which returns Wednesday morning for a run at Keith's

Ray Robinson Defeats Docusen in 15 Rounds

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE PICTURE IS NOW a bit clearer in the American League with the Boston Red Sox coming into sharp focus as the team that could take it all. They were the joke team of April and May, bedeviled by horrible pitching and shackled by the batting failures of all the guys that were supposed to hit, except Ted Williams who was developing stoop shoulders from his attempt to carry the club.

POVICH

But look at the Red Sox now. You may be looking with interest, but for the Indians the Yankees and the A's there's another word for it—apprehension. At this point the Red Sox are no longer to be laughed off. Their transformation has been astounding. They won only 14 of their first 37 games. They've lost only five of their last 22 and for the past month have been the hottest club in the league. At their current pace they could be leading the league in 10 days.

That Boston pitching staff still isn't much. Joe Dobson is the only consistent winner. But badly-pitched ball games aren't stopping the Red Sox these days. The fragrance of the Boston hitting has been overpowering the odor of the Boston pitching. Williams' batting average has zoomed to .415, and he's hitting home runs again. Verne Stephens is rifling bullets again and Johnny Pesky, Dom DiMaggio and Stan Spence are starting to hit.

A MONTH AGO, Boston fans and some of the newspapers were inviting Joe McCarthy to retire again to his Buffalo farm. The genius of McCarthy was very much suspect. He was never a jolly Joe and he wasn't getting a good press. But in Boston now, all is forgiven. McCarthy is being hailed in concert with the other Red Sox heroes in the magical reformation of the club. Matters look bright indeed. The Sox will be home, in their favorite park, during most of July.

McCarthy has been forced to juggle his club. He hasn't had a first baseman all season. Jake Jones, last year's man, was replaced by Stan Spence. There was no complaint with Spence's performance at first base, but McCarthy was confronted with a weakness in the outfield when Sam Mele, hard-hitting rookie of last year, wasn't hitting. He moved Spence into right field and turned the first base job over to Bill Goodman, a second-sacker by trade, who doesn't field as well as Jones but hits harder.

Within the last month, the Red Sox have gained five full games on the league-leading Clevelands, and six on the second-place A's. They've cut the Yankees' margin by three games, and Bucky Harris isn't happy. He maintained all during the early-season slump of the Red Sox that "Boston is the club we have to worry about."

WILLIAMS WAS NEVER a more popular figure in Boston. His hitting kept the club out of last place in the early weeks, and he hasn't slowed down. In fact, he's splurging, boosting his batting figure to .415, ahead of his pace of .406 in 1941 when he became the first American Leaguer in 18 years to reach the .400 mark.

He's leading the league in runs batted in this year, too

It's a new Williams who is now belting American League pitching. Almost half of his hits this year have been blows to left field, where he wasn't supposed to hit. Dead-pull hitter Williams who last year stubbornly attempted to hit to right, has now changed his tactics and is making a mockery of the Boudreau shift that leaves the left-field spaces open.

Most of the clubs have abandoned the Boudreau defensive shift for Williams, but the league's pitchers are so wary of his extra-base power they're pitching him on the outside corners, willing to settle for singles and doubles against the threat of his homers and triples to right. To quote Williams himself, "I've discovered it's fun to hit to left."

. MEANWHILE THE YANKEES are having their pitching troubles, with Bucky Harris grateful for the consistent performances of Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds. Otherwise, Yankee pitching is uncertain. Frank Shea, the prize rookie of last season, has been so ineffective the Yankees are considering releasing him to a farm team under their privilege of optioning him out one more time without getting waivers.

The other day Harris in desperation started Tommy Byrne, a left hander who has never been considered better than a relief pitcher and Byrne shut out the Tigers. But eight walks he issued marred that job, and his wildness has always been his chief handicap.

Neither Harris nor Joe McCarthy are concerned particularly about the first-place Indians or the second-place Athletics. Harris has said that if he could beat out the Red Sox, his club would win the pennant. With McCarthy it's undoubtedly vice versa.

5 of 9 D. C. Entrants Survive

Bogley, Wesley Clear First 2 Hurdles in National Tourney

Charlottesville, Va., June 28 (AP).—Five out of Washington's nine entries survived the first day of the National Interscholastic tennis tournament here today.

Leading the Capital City parade in a field of 57 were Gilbert Bogley of Landon School, and Ed Wesely of Georgetown Prep, first and second ranking Washington schoolboy netmen. They both passed their first two hurdles.

Bogley, seeded second because he was runnerup for the title last year, drew a bye in the first round, and then thrashed Don Curtis of St. Mary's, Menasha, Wis., 6-0, 6-2, in the second.

Wesely whipped Parks Duffey, St. Christopher's, Richmond, 6-0, 6-0, and Alan Strand of Darlington School, Rome, Ga., 6-3, 6-2.

Two Calvin Coolidge High boys gained the second round. Winston Sutter, District public high champ, defeated Alan Schwartz of Andover, 7-5, 6-3. His teammate, Dennis Hevener, rallied to down Jerome Schmidt of St. Mary's, Menasha, Wis., 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Jackie Yates of Landon remained in competition as he won by default.

Eliminated after winning in the first round was Carlton Hoffner of Central High. Hoffner trimmed Robert Trone of St. Paul's, Garden City, N. Y., 6-0, 6-1, but was knocked out in the second, 6-1, 6-0, by Charles Devoe of Park School, Indianapolis.

Those kayoed in the first round were Ray Lewis, Meredith (Smokey) Stoever and Ted Rogers of Landon. Lewis lost to William Bastian, Broad Ripple High, Indianapolis, 6-0, 6-2. Stoever was the 6-3, 6-0 victim of Gil Rothrock, Hill School, Pottstown, Pa. And Rogers suffered a 6-0, 6-1 setback at the hands of Tony Trabert, Walnut Hills High, Cincinnati.

Falkenburg, Mulloy Gain Semifinals

London, June 28 (AP).—Gardnar Mulloy, and young Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood, Calif., carried American hopes into the semifinals of the Wimbledon tennis championships with sparkling victories today as two of their teammates, Tom Brown and Budge Patty, bit the dust on the center court.

Mulloy, playing beautiful, heady tennis knocked out the last British player, Tony Mottram, by 6—2, 1—6, 7—5, while Falkenburg attended to the tall Swede, Lennard Bergelin, 6—4, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, in a match frequently interrupted by a chill rain.

Brown, the San Franciscan who was a finalist against the great Jack Kramer last year, fell to the amazingly steady back court game of Josef Asboth, a lean Hungarian, by scores of 4—6, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1, 6—1. Patty, of Los Angeles, succumbed to the Australian star, John Bromwich, in straight sets, 6—4, 7—5, 6—1.

Wednesday's semi-finals will pit Falkenburg against Mulloy and Bromwich against Asboth, so there is no possibility of an All-American final. Off their form today, Mulloy and Bromwich should fight it out for the title on Friday.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, Del., the defending champion, romped past Mrs. E. W. Dawson-Scott of Britain, 6—2, 6—2. Doris Hart of Miami ousted Joan Curry of Britain, 6—2, 6—3. Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., put out Mrs. Mary Halford of Britain, 6—3, 6—3. Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., smacked Edith Middleton of Britain, 6—0, 6—1, and Shirley Fry of Arkon, Ohio, beat Mrs. Suzy Kormoczy of Hungary, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Mrs. Dupont wil! meet Mrs. Jean Nicoll Bostock of Britain in the quarterfinals. Miss Hart draws Nelly Landry of France. Mrs. Todd faces Jean Quertier, British youngster, and Miss Fry will run into Miss Brough's searing drives.

College Golf Deadlocked

Palo Alto, Calif., June 28 (AP).—Playing his home course, Tom Lambie of Stanford shot a three-under par 68 to tie Fred Sampler of Purdue, Big Nine champion, who posted a 33, 35—68 today in the first qualifying round of the National Collegiate golf championships.

Lambie put together 34, 34 for the par 36, 35—71 Stanford course.

A stroke back was Charles Coe of University of Oklahoma with a 69. Coe, one of the pretournament favorites, carded 36, 33. He dropped an 18-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the 445-yard eighteenth hole.

Bo Winninger of Oklahoma A. & M. was close up with a 33, 37—70, just ahead of Lou Stafford of the University of Oregon, with 37, 34—71.

Defending Champ Dave Barclay of Michigan knocked out a 35, 38—73, while two strong tournament choices, Charles Lind of Denver and Harvie Ward, jr., of North Carolina, posted 73 and 74, respectively.

Pugliese, Comer Pace Handley Win

Charles McHenry, Don Comer and Vince Pugliese made strong bids for berths on the Washington junior all-star baseball team yesterday as they paced Handley Motors to an 11-6 victory over Costello in a Junior City League game at Turkey Thicket.

McHenry turned in a splendid one-hit relief job and for his two-innings work received credit for Handley's first win in five games. Comer and Pugliese each blasted two-run homers, each had a single.

Sandlot fans are invited to send in their candidates for the Washington team before Wednesday night to The Washington Post, Sandlot Baseball Editor, Sports Department, Washington, D. C. They'll be considered by managers of the teams in the Junior City League for the game at Brooklyn, July 12.

Lieutenant Kohl Sets Pace Record at Laurel Raceway

Lieutenant Kohl, a 4-year-old from the Edgar Richards Stable in Selbyville, Del., set a new track record before nearly 7000 fans at Laurel Raceway last night in the feature race, a six-furlong pace.

The Richards colt, driven by Tom Lewis, won by several lengths in the good time of 1:34 3/5 over eight rivals. It was Lieutenant Kohl's first triumph since the 1947 and he paid a $32.20 win mutuel.

G. D. Woolen, owned and driven by Len Applegate of Richmond, Va., made a strong bid but wound up second while a 24-1 shot, Night Bomber, driven by Charlie App took third.

Frank Hanna, the 70-year-old Aylett, Va, driver piloted Prince Vonian to an easy triumph in a $500 pacing event. Favored, he paid $3.00.

Hanna merely breezed the Prince to victory for his fifth straight in as many attempts.

There were plenty of long shot winners. Guy McElwyn, driven by Tommy Walters, won the first race, a mile $400 trot and paid $18.60.

Chief Modere, driven by Alan Meyer, won the third, a six furlong pace, to pay $53.80, $17.60 and $12.20. Tom Lewis also scored on Allie Up, which paid $23.40, $8.40 and $6.00.

The daily double combination of Guy McElwyn and Lance Hanover paid $75.20.

New York, June 28 (AP).—Carl Voyles, coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers of the All-America Football Conference, today announced the signing of Bob Chappuis, University of Michigan All-America.

Voyles said the Dodgers had given up the draft rights to three players to the Cleveland Browns for the rights to Chappius.

Hursey Bores In

By Harry Goodwin
—The Washington Post

The boring-in tactics of Smuggy Hursey (right), local middleweight, paid off last night in his bout at Griffith Stadium. After considerable flopping around, in and out of the ring, Smuggy was awarded a 10-round decision over his opponent, Cecil Hudson (left) of San Jose, Calif. Hudson was the early favorite

Jersey Skater Wins Crown, Shares Two

Patricia Ann Johnsto.. of Elizabeth, N. J., won a championship and shared in two others yesterday as the National A. A. U. roller skating championships began at the National Arena.

She first teamed with Diana Lanzotti, 13, to win the junior ladies pairs title. Miss Lanzotti won the title in this class last year while teamed with Patricia Kennedy.

Miss Johnston combined with George Cummings of Elizabeth, N. J., to win the mixed pairs competition. Then she stepped out to defeat Ruth Henrich of Mineola, N. Y., and Katherine Althouse of Pasadena, Calif., and win the juvenile girls free style championship.

Ruth Henrich's brother, Frank, successfully defended his boys' freestyle championship and earned the biggest cheers from the capacity crowd of 600. Alma Garaffa and Henry Balschneider of Perth Amboy, N. J., captured the novice mixed pairs crown.

The championships continue at National Arena this morning at 9 o'clock.

Today's schedule—9 a. m., Novice men's school figure skating; 1:30 p. m., juvenile dance eliminations; 3:30, junior ladies' school figure skating; 5, juvenile dance semifinals; 6, novice men's free style; 6:45, juvenile dance finals; 10, junior ladies' free style; 10:30, fours; 11, speed skating.

Yesterday's results and general scoring:

JUNIOR LADIES' PAIRS—Won by Patricia Ann Johnson and Diana Lanzotti, Elizabeth, N. J., 5 points; second, Carol Wiegand, N. J., and Carol Freitag, Bergenfield, N. J., 11½ points.

JUVENILE BOYS' FREE STYLE—Won by Frank Henrich, Mineola, N. Y., 5 points; second, David Freitag, Bergenfield, N. J., 14 points; third, George Cummings, Elizabeth, N. J., 20 points.

JUVENILE GIRLS' FREE STYLE—Won by Patricia Ann Johnston, 10 points; second, Ruth Henrich, Mineola, N. Y., 13 points; third, Catherine Althouse, Pasadena, Calif., 15 points.

Nats Tackle Macks With Eyes on Fifth

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 28.—The Nats were idle here today, but can't afford to be tomorrow night when they open a series with the sizzling Athletics.

After a successful Western swing, the Mackmen find themselves only 10 percentage points behind the league-leading Indians and aim to improve their position at the expense of the Griffs.

Manager Joe Kuhel's flock has ambitions of its own—fifth place at least, before entertaining these same A's at Griffith Stadium July 5.

5-6 Record on Road

The Nats ended their Western trip with a 5-6 record, only one game behind the fifth-place Tigers and have high hopes of nudging out the Bengals before this present trip is over.

The Western excursion reemphasized the Nats' need for more hitting. There's not a regular batting over .270 and few approaching even that mark.

Stewart Best Hitter

Ed Stewart is the best looking hitter in the lot, but Kuhel has been alternating him with Tom McBride against southpaw pitching. In view of Stewart's ability to hit for extra bases, Kuhel may leave him in the game at all times, irregardless of the pitching.

A source of keen disappointment to Kuhel has been the recent flop of Walter Masterson. The bespectacled right-hander has been plagued with wildness in his last four starts and hasn't been able to finish a game.

Masterson pitched batting practice in Cleveland yesterday and said he believed he had a remedy for his wildness.

"I've been throwing too much slow stuff," he said. "It's my best pitch when I can control it, but I haven't been able to do that recently. I'm planning to lay off of it in my next game and go back to the fast ball and curve. I'll use the slow stuff as a change of pace from now on, not as a basic delivery."

El Mono's Owner Refused License

New York, June 28 (AP).—The New York State Racing Commission and two stewards of the Jockey Club, meeting in joint session, have denied the appeal of Daniel Lamont for an owner's license in 1948.

Lamont is the owner of the horse, El Mono, winner of the Widener Handicap and the McLennan Handicap at Hialeah Park last winter.

The board ruled that the applicant has been engaged in bookmaking as a banker prior to the adoption of the mutuel system of betting in this State.

3031 Fans on Hand

Hursey Is Upset Victor Over Hudson

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Smuggy Hursey flopped like a wounded walrus around the Griffith Stadium ring last night and came up with a unanimous 10-round decision over Cecil Hudson.

A warm gathering of 3031 saw the local middleweight hopeful, outweighed by two pounds at 159, win despite five or six tumbles to the canvas, a solo flight upside down out of the ring; and another trip into the ringside seats accompanied by his opponent from San Jose, Calif.

The gate was announced as a gross $8025.06, net $5,934.52.

Hudson Slows Up

Hudson took charge of the early rounds but in the fourth he was using his right sparingly and at the end his right was all but encased in glass. His flickering left, however, was almost continually in Hursey's face.

The Smug apparently won on his bull rushes, some of which left him in ludicrous positions when Hudson sidestepped. The Smug got in just enough near-misses, however, to seal the verdict.

The first real action of a five-bout preliminary card saw Puggy Lyons and Kid Willie, both local products, stand toe to toe and slug for six rounds. Lyons won a split decision. He weighed 136½ to Willie's 136.

In a scheduled six-rounder after the main event, John Hansbury, 155, won on a TKO after 1.45 of the first round when Al Wright sprang a deep cut in the forehead.

In dull four-rounders, involving all Washington boys, John Holt, 161, decisioned Big Sid Gerald, 163; Garland Edwards, 153, decisioned George Clark, 154; and Buster Hawkins, 131, earned a split decision over Jackie Lord, 137.

Navy's Herring Kayo Victor

Boston, Mass., June 28 (AP).—Welterweight Horace Herring of St. Petersburg, Fla., fighting for the United States Navy team in the Olympic Boston trials at Boston Garden, today knocked out Art Davis of Mount Holly, N. J., in 1 minute and 36 seconds of the second round.

Herring forged ahead in the opening round, landing hard lefts and rights to Davis' head and body.

Early in the second round Herring dropped Davis with a left hook to the chin. Davis took a count of seven and was groggy after he regained his feet. Two more left hooks and Davis went down for good.

In a dull bout, marred by frequent clinching, Frank Daniels of Bakersfield, Calif., was awarded a split decision over James De Pena of the United States Navy, whose home is in Brooklyn.

Bantamweight Bill Bossio of the Navy, whose home is in Pittsburgh, swarmed all over A.A.U. Champion William Morgan of Newark, N. J., to gain a unanimous decision.

John Kamber, United States Navy sailor from Des Moines, Iowa, was eliminated from the featherweight competition by Joe Lopes of Sacramento, Calif.

Champ Keeps Title; 8500 See Fight

By Charles Dunkley

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—Leg-Weary Ray "Sugar" Robinson, world's welterweight champion, successfully defended his title tonight by defeating Bernard Docusen, New Orleans challenger, in a blistering 15-round battle in Comiskey Park.

The decision of the two judges and Referee Walter Brightmore was unanimous.

The 21-year-old challenger, never before floored in 60 bouts, gamely survived a 9-count knockdown in the eleventh round to bring cheers from a slim crowd estimated at 8500.

Rain Threatens

Intermittent showers all afternoon and low ranging clouds laden with rain tonight kept down the attendance. The take was estimated at $45,000, of which Robinson received 25 per cent and Docusen 20.

The weather was so threatening that it was sprinkling when the first preliminary was started and the championship fight was started a half hour earlier than planned in an attempt to beat the threatened downpour. The rain, however, held off.

The lean and hungry Robinson, forced to reduce 8 pounds in as many days to make the required 147-pound weight limit, looked like the Robinson of old in the first four rounds. He punched with precision and speed. He was accurate with his right and left hand shots to the head. But Docusen gamely withstood the champion's superior attack without breaking ground.

Robinson was guilty of throwing low blows in the second round and the ninth was taken away from him because of another barrage that landed in foul territory.

Docusen Sags

Docusen, heretofore beaten only twice, traded punches with the titlist and stayed on top of him until the tenth. Then he lost ground in a furious exchange just before that round ended. Robinson was punching desperately to the body and head, with the "dook" failing to make a return.

The tenth started the youngster's downfall and in the eleventh he was nailed.

Robinson opened that round with a vicious attack which drove Docusen into the ropes. He was unable to lash back at the champion but suddenly managed to wriggle off the ropes and into midring. Then Robinson let fly with a left hook to the chin that dropped Docusen heavily. He lay motionless for seconds. Then doggedly tried to struggle to his feet. He got up at the count of nine and collided with another volley, but Robinson was so leg weary and tired from the flurry he was unable to finish him.

From the 11th, Robinson was completely the master. He was dead tired and rapidly losing his speed. However, he had enough experience at his command to rest in clinches and take advantage of Docusen's weakening condition.

Oatman Wins Pro-Amateur

Quantico, Va., June 28 (AP).—Harold Oatman, Norfolk Country Club professional, today tied the course record of three-under-par 69 over the Quantico Golf Club course as low scorer among the professionals in the Middle Atlantic Professional-Amateur Golf Tournament.

Two pro-amateur teams tied for best ball honors, with a 64. They were a team composed of Don Miller of Kenwood Country Club, Washington, and George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood professional, and another team of Lieut. Col. H. J. Mitchner, amateur of the Quantico club, and Ralph Beach, pro of Suburban Country Club, Baltimore, Md.

In shooting a 69 for the 18-hole course, Oatman tied the course record set this year by Lew Worsham, former National Open champion.

One-Armed Norfolk Golfer Gets 'Birdie'; Too Small to Eat

Norfolk, Va., June 28 (AP).—Karl Ellington, a one-armed golfer, got a genuine "birdie"—and on nothing more than a driving range, to boot.

Ellington whammed his drive right into a bird in flight.

The bird plummeted to the ground but was too small to eat, but Ellington had his "birdie" nevertheless.

Triadelphia Lake Opens On Thursday

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

TRIADELPHIA, not a classic typographical error for the city of nearly the same name, but a well-stocked artificial lake, opens Thursday and the bass fishermen, particularly, can hardly wait.

The reservoir of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission is located in Howard County, Md., about 12 miles beyond Silver Spring on the Colesville road.

In addition to bass, anglers may expect to hook Susquehanna salmon, pike, pickerel, perch and the inevitable catfish.

Triadelphia is private property and therefore has a list of rules and regulations as long as the average fisherman's arm.

Here's a brief resume of the principal ones. The season opens July 1 and continues through November 30 with hours from sunrise to sunset.

A fee is charged for the privilege of fishing. There doesn't seem to be any refund if you get "skunked." The permit may be obtained at the office of the caretaker after you produce a State license and costs $5 a season, $1.50 a week or 50 cents a day. Small fry, under 14, may fish for free.

Permission also may be obtained to use your own rowboat. It must be of safe design, though, and canoes are barred. Fishing from shore is allowed only in certain specified areas.

Daily limits and minimum sizes include bass (10-10 ins.); Susquehanna salmon, pike or pickerel (10-14 ins.); perch (15-8 ins.).

Total catch of all species shall not exceed 15 in any one day. Fishermen must check in at the caretaker's office when entering the property and, upon leaving, report the number of fish taken. Failure to do so is sufficient cause for losing the fishing privilege for the season.

STARTING JULY 1, fishermen will be able to get complete information on conditions in the waters of the northern Virginia peninsulas.

According to W. Tayloe Murphy, an association will coordinate reports from seven points along the Potomac. Rappahannock and York Rivers and the Chesapeake Bay.

They will be transmitted to an information center at Warsaw, the kind of fish and the size of the catch for the preceding day and will make available weather conditions, wind directions and data on tides.

Sport fishermen may obtain the dope by calling WArsaw 177. Toll from Washington is 45 cents. The service will operate from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each weekday and 9 to noon on Saturday. It's being conducted on an experimental basis through July. It will be continued after that only if enough inquiries are received.

TODAY'S TIP—For rockfish you might try the lower Potomac at Tall Timber, Md. Doc. Ayers of Turner's Arena, and party took 375 pounds of rock there recently, using soft crab meat as bait.

Thomson, De Vicenzo Stroke Back

By Glenn Williams

Muirfield, Scotland, June 28 (AP). Frank Stranahan, the Toledo amateur who wants to emulate the golfing deeds of Bobby Jones, had to take a back seat with the other "name" golfers today as one A. S. Tibbles, a virtually unknown pro from a suburban London course, set the pace with a 67 in the British Open golf tournament.

Touring the Gullanke links shortly before sunset, the last of 275 contestants, Tibbles seized the course record from Jimmy Thomson, long-driving American, and Roberto de Vicenzo, an Argentine pro.

Thomson and De Vicenzo set the early pace with a pair of 68s in this first qualifying round for the British title.

Stranahan hung up a 70 on the Gullane course, sharing his position with a couple of Britons, A. G. Lacey and W. S. Collins.

The players switch courses tomorrow for the final 18-hole qualifying round. Those who played near-by Gullane today come to Muirfield. When all the returns are in tomorrow night, the field will be sliced to 100 who will advance into the 72-hole championship.

Cotton Has 69

The 30-year-old Tibbles, who never played in a major tournament and was unknown even to veteran British golf writers, was all alone at 67. Then came De Vicenzo and Thomson.

Henry Cotton, aging but able British pro, had a 69, only two strokes over Walter Hagen's record 67 that has stood for 19 years.

Mario Gonzalez, a Brazilian amateur with a buggy whip build, also had a 69—but over the Gullane course. So did Tom Pearson, a Scottish football player and John Carroll of Dublin.

California's Lawson Little was crowding Cotton with a 70 at Muirfield, a score also marked up by Britain's Alf Padgham, the 1936 open champ, and Jack Jacobs.

American Pro Johnny Bulla, taking it easy in qualifying rounds, shot a 71 at Gullane—the same score as Fred Daly, the Irishman who edged Stranahan out of the championship by one stroke last year. Art Clark, a Huntington, W. Va., pro, also shot a 71 at Gullane.

Claude Harmon fo Mamaroneck, N. Y., the Masters Tourney victor, came home with a 73.

Frank Tatum of Los Angeles, now a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, finished near nightfall with a 75. Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Virginia professional, managed 76 over Muirfield and Bob Sweeny, jr., New York amateur who won the British Amateur in 1937, shot a loose 77 at Gullane.

Pays $16.20 at Charles Town

It Takes 12 Races to Prove Iron Penny's No Counterfeit

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 28. A. C. Stanfield's Iron Penny, after acquiring a reputation as a counterfeit after running 11 times without winning this year, ran true today by getting home a length ahead of the closest opposition.

The son of Isolater found his initial success in the James W. Bean Memorial Purse, named for the late prominent breeder, owner and trainer of Washington, D. C.

Iron Penny preceded G. Y. Booker's Oyster K into the wire with E. P. Price's Omaha Mike a distant third in the field of eight.

The winner was a $16.20 shot after the crowd made Wayne Kendricks' Fleetest the favorite and then watched her go so wide at the turns that she was eliminated.

Jockey Bobby Shirey, who has improved in the saddle business with leaps and bounds of late, was aboard Iron Penny and made no mistakes although he had to cleverly get the horse out of trouble approaching the stretch. Iron Penny was clocked in 1:54 3/5 for the mile and one-sixteenth over a rugged track.

Jockey Jimmy Rankin, who ran up a string of winners as the leading apprentice here before "losing his bug," rode two good races on the card. He was aboard T. A. Foley's Fernlet in the first event and brought the mare home ahead ofof Rodes K and Worries to the tune of an $11.40 mutuel.

When Johnny Tammaro kicked W. B. Casilear's Boy Larkmead home in the second event, there was a daily double payoff of $21.20. Boy Larkmead was a $5 favorite.

Rankin rode his second winner on S. J. Corral's Love My Gal, an $18.20 shot in the fourth race. The mare, trained by Dion K. Kerr, sr., of Washington, was off poorly, but Rankin never gave up and pushed her through on the inside to win going away.

The day's top riding exhibition was that of Sammy Palumbo.

R. N. Boerner's Run Bud Run stumbled leaving the gate in the fifth race, a purse affair. Palumbo, however, sent the gelding along only to be bumped back at the first turn. Then Palumbo went to work in earnest. He skimmed along the rail, showing a total disregard for the heavy track, and finally arrived in front to hold on to win by a length. It was storybook stuff.

Boy, 3, Wounded By Young Playmate

JAMES KURTZ
Critically wounded

Three-year-old James Kurtz was critically wounded in Arlington yesterday by a shot from a .32-caliber pistol accidentally discharged by a playmate.

Harris

Police said the accident occurred at 1029 N. Vermont st., Arlington, where the child had been placed under the care of Mrs. Louis C. Thompson while his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kurtz, was at work.

Young James' playmate, Danny Harry, 7, who lives next door at 1021 N. Vermont st., told a Washington Post reporter the .32 pistol "looked just like my cap gun, except it didn't have Gene Autry written on it."

According to the police, the two children were playing in a front room when Danny climbed some shelves in the closet, found the pistol on the top shelf, and pulled the trigger.

The youngster told police he had not aimed the pistol, but that after the shot, young Kurtz, who was across the room, "fell down."

Mrs. Thompson said she heard the shot while hanging clothes in the back yard, found the boy on the floor and took him to Arlington Hospital.

Bullet Not Located

There, doctors said that James' wound, in the left side next to the hip, looked more like a knife wound than one caused by a bullet. They said they had been unable to locate any bullet by X-ray, adding that the missle, if any, was not in the body.

Mrs. Kurtz, mother of the wounded boy, rushed to the hospital from her work in the Navy Bureau of Personnel in the Navy Annex after hearing of the accident.

She said she and her son had roomed at the Thompson's home until about June 16, then had moved to their present house at 203 S. Oak st., Falls Church, where she was awaiting arrival of her husband, J. F. Kurtz, and their two other children from Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. Thompson, with whom the child was staying, told police the .32 pistol, from which one shot had been fired, had belonged to her husband's father. She said she did not know it was loaded.

Danny Harris, the playmate, is the son of Lee Harris, an Arnold Line bus driver, and Mrs. Harris.

Bandit Gang Eludes Trap in Big Manhunt

Chicago, June 28 (U.P.).—Wisconsin authorities tonight sprang a "trap" for Chicago bandits who have eluded a vast manhunt since last Saturday, but the plan misfired.

Acting on a tip from Chicago suburban police, a band of heavily armed deputies converged on a cottage at Camp Lake, Wis., just over the State line from Illinois. Residents reported seeing three men enter the cottage.

Deputies found the cabin empty. They were maintaining a watch.

Amputee Admits Part in Robbery

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—A 23-year-old amputee said today he was a member of a robber band which held up a suburban gambling place Saturday and shot two policemen in a running gun fight.

Malleck

The man in custody is Jerry Malleck, who has no left leg. Police said he told of firing at least 15 shots from a high-powered rifle at pursuing policemen from a punched-out rear window of the fleeing car.

Police Chief Clarence Buehl of Western Springs, scene of the robbery, said police of surrounding States have been asked to search for three other members of the band named by Malleck.

Despite his handicap, Malleck was able to elude the biggest mantrap in Cook (Chicago) County history. Buehl said Malleck told him his companions fled to Wisconsin after slipping out of a ring of more than 200 policemen who surrounded a stone quarry southwest of Chicago.

Chief Buehl said Malleck identified other members of the gang as Jerry Mnacek, Ernest Filbab and George Mudra, all of Chicago.

Newspaper Guild Conference Opens With 200 Present

San Francisco, June 28 (AP).—More than 200 delegates attended the opening meeting of the fifteenth annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO) today. The sessions will run through Friday.

Speeches today included a welcome by Mayor Elmer E. Robinson and reports by Vernon O'Reilly, president of the San Francisco-Oakland Newspaper Guild; C. M. Baker, president of the San Francisco Typographical Union, and Tim Flynn, regional CIO director for northern California.

Driver Hurt As Auto, Bus Collide Here

The 21-year-old driver of an automobile which collided with a bus was in Gallinger Hospital last night in undetermined condition from head injuries.

A nine-year-old boy was struck and injured by an auto, and a motorbike driver, who collided with a pedestrian, sustained a fractured skull. The 88-year-old pedestrian hobbled off, refusing treatment.

Hurt in the auto-bus collision was Richard Rector, 21, of 5308 Illinois ave. nw. Police said his automobile collided with a Capital Transit Company bus at 3 p. m. yesterday at 17th and Franklin sts. ne. He suffered a possible fractured skull and cuts on the face and hands.

Delbert L. Cross, 21, of 56 I st. nw., suffered a fractured skull at 11:30 a. m. when thrown to the street after his motorbike collided with the pedestrian. The mishap occured in the 200 block of H st ne.

Accident Investigation Unit officers identified the pedestrian victim as Tony Luckete, 88, of 220 H st. ne. He thought his right knee was injured, police said, Luckete declined treatment.

Nine-year-old Jean Luke, of 4018 S. Capitol st., was admitted to Casualty Hospital at 10:30 a. m., with possible concussion. Police said he stepped from between two parked autos near his home into the path of a car driven by Victor R. Link, 27, of Presidential Gardens, Alexandria, Va.

In two late Sunday night collisions in nearby areas eight persons required hospitalization. Six of the injured were hurt in head-on collision of two automobiles on Mount Vernon blvd., south of Alexandria.

They included: Mrs. Barbara Gaunt, 32, of 2311 Pennsylvania ave. nw., multiple fractures of both legs and a compound fracture of the right wrist. Ira Fields, 30, of 1012 12th st. nw., fractured ribs and cuts of the right ankle; Mrs. Marjorie Fesperman, 24, of 2313 Pennsylvania ave. nw., fractured right shoulder and possible fracture of the left hip; her daughter, Marjorie L., 4, fractured right leg and head injuries.

Also, Carl Glassbrenner, 45, of 1335 P st. se., possible internal injuries and cuts about the face, and Lieut. Robert C. Tipton, 28, stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va., cuts to the face.

In the second Sunday night mishap, Mrs. Anne Hagner Christmas, 29, Washington Times-Herald columnist, and her husband, Frank, 26, were hurt seriously when their automobile struck a culvert on the Laytonsville-Olney road not, far from Gaithersburg, Md., near midnight.

Mrs. Christmas, who said she and her husband were en route to their home at 4827 Willett pkwy., Chevy Chase, Md., sustained head injuries. Her husband, a horse trainer, suffered a fractured jaw, fractured right foot and multiple contusions.

Drivers Exonerated In Fatal Collision

Drivers of an automobile and a bus in fatal collision June 17 at Peace Cross, Bladensburg, Md., were exonerated yesterday of charges of manslaughter and reckless driving by Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens in Hyattsville Police Court.

Owens declared he could find no case of negligence and that the drivers apparently hadn't seen each other because of natural obstructions when their vehicles collided. Mrs. Betty Jane Martin, 19, wife of the automobile-bile driver, was killed.

Freed of responsibility were her husband, John D. Martin, 24, of 7400 Hopkins ave., College Park, Md., and W. C. Breidenbough, 30, of White Hall, Md., driver of a Greyhound Lines bus.

Owens also exonerated Howard Raymond Martin, 22, a carpenter of Barbersville, near Laurel, Md., of responsibility in the accidental death of a three-year-old child, but fined him $50 for operating with an instruction permit unaccompanied by a licensed Maryland driver.

The child, Marion Jarboe, jr., of 3107 Lancer dr., Queens Chapel Manor, Hyattsville, ran out in front of Martin's car, it was testified. Further testimony showed Martin, accompanied by a Virginia-licensed driver, was passing a parked automobile, and did not see the child.

Owens declared there was no evidence of gross negligence, and that the driver did everything he could and all that the law required for safe operation of his vehicle.

Hospitals Ask $1,153,760

hospitals could ask only the $9 a day rate for which they contract for the care of District indigents, the sum needed would total $907,000.

In answer to a question as to how the hospitals could justify seeking $14.48 per patient-day for nontax-eligible patients while agreeing to take $9 per patient-day for the care of tax-eligibles, numerous members of the council declared the new contracts authorized by recent congressional appropriation were "an emergency expedient."

"We knew if we didn't agree to this figure, we'd wind up getting nothing," said one hospital administrator. "Next year we'll ask payment on a full-costs basis."

Yesterday's meeting in the conference room of federation headquarters, at 1101 M st. nw., was attended by many of the area hospitals' chief administrators, who gave detailed explanations to show the rise in hospitalization costs.

Frank Birgfeld, chairman of the federation budget committee, who presided, said the requests would be considered by a subcommittee on hospitalization, which would make its recommendations to the full budget committee, which would in turn send its recommendations to the executive committee of the federation for final action. He estimated that the executive committee would have the budget recommendation by mid-July.

HSA Will Change Its Name Thursday

Health Security Administration here will change its name, effective on Thursday, to the Hospital Service Agency, it was announced yesterday.

Willard C. Smith, administrator, who made the announcement, said, "Hospital Service Agency more nearly describes our organization, a nonprofit corporation acting as a central admitting bureau for hospitals, especially for medically indigent and semi-indigent patients. Too many people think of us as a Federal agency under our preesnt name."

with the understanding that she return promptly.

He said that when she had failed to return shortly after 5 p. m. he started to search for her.

He said he walked along 17th st. to Colorado ave., then to the playground a short distance inside the park.

Failing to find her he returned home where Mrs. Bardwell advised him there was another playground near the first one. He returned to his futile search but on the way home again stumbled upon the bicycle.

Reports to Police

Picking up the vehicle, he went to the home of Kenekes, phoned his wife, and then reported the matter to police.

Bardwell said he had heard of an indecent exposure report in the neighborhood several weeks ago and had warned Carol against talking to strange adults.

"I am positive she would not have talked to anyone she did not know," Bardwell said.

"The only help anyone can give us now is to stop him—that's all we're interested in now. There are too many kids like her in the neighborhood . . . " his voice trailed off.

The child's body was first noticed by a park stroller, John Breen, 1419 Rhode Island ave. nw., who called the attention of Daniel W. Johnson, 4409 17th st. nw.

Johnson was a member of a search party of 25 neighbors scouring the area for the child.

"She was lying in a pool of half-dried blood," Johnson said. "She must have been dead some time. Her dress was just above her knees, but she was not exposed," he said.

Man's Hat Picked Up

Some whisky bottles found near the death scene and a brown felt man's hat discovered about a block away in the park were taken to police headquarters for examination.

The murderer must have worked with silent speed, police pointed out, for within earshot of the scene, dozens of picknickers frolicked unconscious of the tragedy.

All dry cleaning establishments in the Greater Washington area were notified to look out for blood-stained clothing.

Dr. Maurice Protas, a neighborhood physician, of 4807 Colorado ave. nw., who was called to the scene, pronounced the girl dead at 8:20 p. m. He estimated the child had then been dead about two hours.

"I was scared when I heard it was a child murdered," he said. "I thought it may have been my own daughter—8 years old."

Injunction Sought To Close Camp On Rockville Pike

An injunction to close down the Blandy Trailer Camp on Rockville Pike, near Montrose, Md., was sought yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

The injunction petition was filed by Felix C. Montouri and Drusilla K. Montouri, adjoining land owners, the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commissioners and Montgomery County Commissioners.

The suit claims the camp is being tion, is operated by Sussanah B. and Rockford Blandy, who, the petition says, have run the camp on a seven-acre tract since 1938.

hTe suit claims the camp is being conducted in violation of the Maryland-Washington metropolitan district zoning ordinance. The camp consists of 60 trailers and 15 cottages.

British Helicopter Sets New Record

Maidenhead, England, June 28 (AP).—Britain claimed the world's helicopter speed record today.

Pilot Basil Arkell said his Fairey Gyrodyne did 124.3 miles an hour in an official speed trial over a three-kilometer course.

(The United States Air Force set a record of 110.5 miles an hour for an R-5 Sikorsky helicopter over a 20-kilometer course in June, 1946, said officials of Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio. An unofficial record of 114.6 was established in the United States last year by a Sikorsky military two-seater.)

Meat as you want it?

THE lady living in this house doesn't want her meat delivered "on the hoof." Nor do you. You want a nice roast of beef for dinner—not a steer.

Actually you can buy just the kind and amount of meat you need because we have meat packing companies to turn livestock into meat and deliver it to retailers. You can buy what you want when you want it.

Next time you shop take a good look at all the different kinds of meat your retailer has for your selection—a great variety made available through efficient operation of the meat packing companies that serve you.

What do you think the meat packers earn for their services of converting meat animals into meat and by-products, and delivering meat to your retailer? Most people guess pretty high. Actually, the meat packers' profit (after paying all expenses) averages only a fraction of a cent a pound.

AMERICAN MEAT INSTITUTE

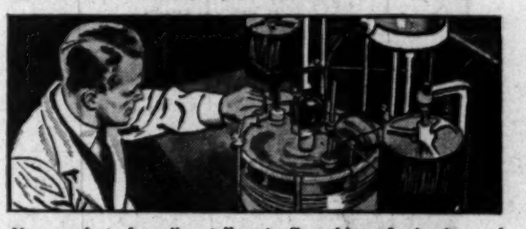
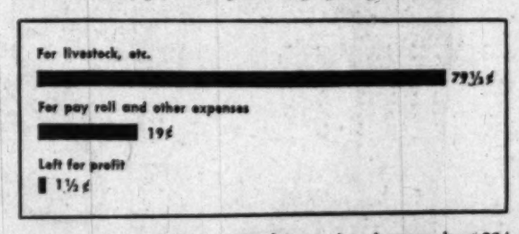
● For help on your meat problems — listen to the Fred Waring Show—NBC stations—Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Not all meat. Slightly more than half an animal is meat. The meat packer "dresses" it, processes a great variety of products, and delivers meat, as needed, to your retailer.



New products from "waste" parts. Everything of value is saved and sold to make over 100 by-products. And the money received for these usually pays the expenses of preparing fresh meat.



From the average dollar meat packers receive, they pay about 80¢ for livestock and livestock products. Out of this, farmers must meet their costs. Nearly half of what the packer has left goes for pay rolls. Profits average only about 1½ cents on each dollar of sales.

GAO Profits Held Warranting Paying Of Fabulous Salaries

General Accounting Office could pay its employes fabulous salaries if they were based on income produced. For example:

GAO was given $680,000 by Congress a few hours before it adjourned. It fully expects to use this money to put 100 million dollars in the Federal Treasury. Further, GAO already has collected 250 million dollars since 1945 from the same sources.

The sources are the railroads, trucks, planes and ships—common carriers that hauled freight and people for the Government during the war. An audit of their accounts by GAO revealed the Government had been overcharged by them in the war rush of business. So, 250 million dollars in overpayments has been collected and a spot check indicates 100 million dollars more can be recovered.

GAO will use the money to expand its transportation division by 164 employes and about 50 more will be taken on in its Reconciliation & Clearance Division. In some instances, former employes of these units will be called back to work. Most of the increase will be in this city.

FREE LUNCHES: That's the way the $330 pay raise for classified employes is being characterized by some employes. I asked one of them why he called the $330 increase a free lunch program. This was his answer:

"I get a $330 increase on paper. The Government takes 6 per cent, or about $20, and puts it into the Civil Service retirement fund. Uncle Sam will take another $40 or $50 in income taxes. I'll have a net increase of around $265 a year which will be enough to pay for my lunches."

PS: Employes will need the lunch money what with prices rising for some food items in Government cafeterias.

STORY: A member of Congress recently received a letter from a girl who applied for a job as a congressional secretary. She wrote:

"I believe I'd like to have a job as a secretary to a Congressman. But first, I want to know if Congressmen treat their secretaries like businessmen do, or if there is a law against it?"

UNION: John Green, the outspoken anti-Communist leader of CIO's Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, is in the city to confer with Federal workers. He will hold a press conference this afternoon. It's a good bet he'll announce plans to organize Federal people in his union.

A group of former United Public Workers members who could not stomach the left wing antics of that outfit, have already voted to affiliate with Green's union.

Meantime, there is talk among Federal workers generally of forming a new union to represent them before Congress After the well-organized postal workers were given $450 by Congress—$120 more than the unorganized classified employes—there is new interest in employe unions.

PAY BILL: Don't believe the rumors that the President either has or will veto the pay raise bill. He'll sign it. The President has until July 5 to act on it. His signing is now tentatively scheduled for either Thursday or Friday.

CHANGE: On the subject of the pay bill, the postal groups aren't pleased with it either. In fact, the big postal unions are at work on a plan to persuade Congress to re-create its Postoffice and Post Roads committees to handle postal rates and pay problems. And they have strong support lined up behind the proposal. The postal unions believe their members would be treated better under the old committee system.

70-YEAR: The Civil Service Commission will investigate reports that several Federal agencies are forcing out employes who reach 70 and who haven't completed 15 years of service. The order was given yesterday by Donald Dawson, administrative assistant to the President, who wrote the commission that the forced ousters, if true, were contrary to the spirit of the law.

These are among the agencies that are reported to have terminated 70-year-olds without cause: Library of Congress, Interior, Treasury, Government Printing Office, Smithsonian Institution, Bureau of Standards, Bureau of Engraving & Printing, and Internal Revenue.

NOTES: Caroline Bradford will retire tomorrow from Navy's Bureau of Supply & Accounts after 30 years of service. She was a World War I yeomanette. . . Next Monday, July 5, is a holiday for Federal workers. You'll have a three-day holiday this weekend. The Federal employe population jumped up a net of 15,865 during May, an increase of about 500 persons a day. And it will continue to rise what with the larger Army, Navy, and Air Forces appropriations.

POSTOFFICE Department last year made a profit of $25,793,736 on the postal savings system. It pays 2 per cent interest on these savings. The department takes the money and invests it in Government bonds and makes money on the deal. The people who put money in postal savings could get the higher interest rate themselves if they would buy savings bonds themselves.

Recruiting Of Teachers Slow Due To Low Pay

Failure of Congress To Act on Increases Held Apt to Cause Much Difficulty

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Failure of Congress to grant teachers a pay raise will result in "serious difficulty" in recruiting teaching personnel, a committee of the Board of Educatior declared yesterday.

The committee on legislation approved a letter to congressional committees concerned with District affairs asking for reconsideration of an increase for teachers.

The measure was one of a half a dozen considered by board committees which met all afternoon in an effort to clean up committee business for the final meeting this school year of the full board at 10 a. m. Thursday.

Renew Leave Efforts

Committees also renewed efforts to give District teachers sick and emergency leaves and dropped from the board's agenda a proposal that would have made it cause for dismissal for a teacher to lobby on a school issue before Congress unless the issue first had been considered by the board.

Calling the action of Congress in not giving District employes including school teachers the pay raise it gave Federal workers a "serious discrimination," the committee on legislation in its letter to Congress said new teachers with bachelor degrees will receive less money than grade 4 government clerks who usually are just high school graduates.

The salary of a new teacher is $2500 while a clerk receives $2724.

"A grade 5 clerk will receive a beginning salary of $2975 or only $25 less than the beginning salary of a teacher with a master's degree," the report said.

Shortage Anticipated

The committee said it also anticipated a shortage of classified workers and laborers since the Federal Government can pay $330 more a year for such help than can the schools.

Teachers are the only District employes who do not receive sick leave with pay, the legislation committee noted in a letter to be sent to the Commissioners.

Several months ago the Commissioners turned down a board request for sick leave for teachers declaring that the measure would be too expensive for the District to meet.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning told the committee yesterday that the probable cost would be $150,000 a year. Retroactive provisions of the sick pay bill which would give teachers a day of sick leave for every year in the service up to 20 would cost a maximum of $387,220, Corning said.

At present teachers must pay the salary of substitutes when they are out because of illness.

Negro Faces 5 Big Issues, Johnson Says

The Negro electorate "should constitute a mobile and thoughtful group of independent persons," Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, Howard University president declared last night, "and must not end by becoming the slavish and docile member of political parties."

Dr. Johnson spoke before an audience of 500 delegates to the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers, and their friends, at the Charles Young School, 24th and Bennings rd. ne.

Negro youth must be taught to think independently on major issues and to determine attitudes toward political parties by the actions of those parties, Dr. Johnson said.

The major issues which the Negro faces today, he listed as the fight (1) for the ballot, (2) for fair employment practices, (3) against segregation and restrictive covenants, (4) against segregation and discrimination in education, (5) against segregation and discrimination in health facilities.

Two hundred delegates came from 21 States to attend the three-day convention. They heard an address by Roscoe C. Brown, Chief of the Office of Negro Health Work yesterday afternoon, and listened to representatives of the Mental Hygiene Clinic discuss that group's work.

Tamm Takes Oath as Justice; Status of Salary Is in Doubt

The Washington Post

NEW JUSTICE—District Court's newest justice, Edward Tamm, is shown receiving couple of family kisses from his two children, Grace, 10, and Edward, jr., 12, after being sworn in yesterday. Mrs. Tamm is in background

Edward A. Tamm, former assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, was sworn in yesterday as Associate Justice of District Court amid differing opinions over his salary.

Tamm holds the position under an interim appointment made by President Truman after confirmation of a regular appointment had died in the Senate Judiciary Committee at the close of Congress.

According to some legal experts, the justice may not legally receive the $14,500 salary under a statute covering such recess appointments, or, if he is paid and later should not be confirmed, would have to pay back the amount drawn.

However, an authority who had a part in drafting the statute in question declared yesterday that Justice Tamm may legally be paid at least until 40 days after the start of the next senatorial session. If he should fail to be confirmed, according to this opinion, he could still retain what he had drawn. However, this course would necessitate a new nomination before the 40-day deadline.

Justice Tamm, who was presented by General Philip B. Pearlman to the 11 jurists sitting in a general term of the District Court, was given the oath by Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws. He was accompanied by his wife and two children.

The appointment of the new justice was strongly opposed by the District Bar Association, and while local attorneys were included in the 300 attending the ceremony, the majority were Government lawyers. Lowrie N. Coe, George McNeil and Austin F. Canfield, present and past presidents of the bar association, said they were unable to attend.

One Day Left To Get That Chest X-Ray

Washingtonians who have continually delayed getting their X-ray examination for tuberculosis here can put it off just one more day—today.

The lung health survey campaign ends Wednesday regardless of who missed out, officials of the drive to uncover t. b. said last night. Everyone of the city's estimated 600,000 persons 15 years of age or older has had ample opportunity to be X-rayed since the drive started last January 12, they said.

By last weekend, they reported some 490,000 residents and workers here had been screened by Roentgen rays to determine if their lungs harbored tuberculosis germs.

Goal of the campaign is to bring tuberculosis under control here, and eventually eliminate it, by the discovery of heretofore unsuspected active cases of the disease in early stages when it is most easily cured.

Alexandria Case

First Polio Case of Year Treated Here

The first Greater Washington polio case to be treated in a Washington hospital this year was reported yesterday by the Health Department.

The patient, a 5½-year-old boy whose home is in the 1400 block of Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria, was admitted to Children's Hospital Sunday, health officials said.

First nonresident polio case to be treated in a local hospital was a 2-year-old Chincoteague, Va., girl admitted to Children's Hospital Thursday.

No cases of polio in the District have been reported, health officials revealed.

Last year at this time, three Washington area and four nonresident polio cases had been reported to the Health Department.

Man Held In Shooting Policeman

Pvt. Crenshaw of Capitol Police Still In Critical Condition, Hospital Reports

Cleveland Shrad, 22 of 321 Virginia ave. sw., yesterday was ordered held under $10,000 bond on a charge of assault with intent to kill in the shooting of a Capitol policeman early Sunday.

Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey continued the case to July 28, after learning the policeman, Pvt. Fred Crenshaw, 66, of 1429 B st. ne., is in critical condition at Casualty Hospital.

Crenshaw was shot once in the chest and once in the spinal region, while taking Shrad to the guard room in the Senate Office Building for questioning as a yoke-robbery suspect.

On duty guarding the House Office Building, the elderly policeman had been relieved to get some fresh air, when Shrad was turned over to him about 2:30 a. m. by Lieut. Bernard L. Flanagan, who with several other Capital policemen, was questioning suspects on the Capitol grounds.

About a half hour later, the policemen found Crenshaw semi-conscious on the grounds in the west front of the Capitol Building.

Shrad was arrested about an hour later near the Botanical Gardens. Police said he has not admitted the shooting, but that he has been identified by both Crenshaw and Flanagan.

2 Held as Suspects In Robbery-Beating

District police arrested two suspects last night in a robbery-beating of a 55-year-old woman.

Police said the woman, Harriet Abbott, 509 E st. sw., was robbed of her pocketbook containing $60 and beaten about the face and head about 9:30 p. m. at 7th and H sts. sw.

Held for investigation were a Fort Belvoir soldier who yesterday celebrated his twenty-fifth birthday, and a 28-year-old laborer.

They were arrested by two policemen assigned to the Accident Investigation Unit, Pvts. Bradford A. McClendon and John C. Vinson.

Police, who said the two suspects had been seen together before the robbery, said $60 in bills was found in the soldier's possession. Both men will face a police lineup today, and questioning in connection with other possible robberies.

Policeman Proves Equal to Occassion

Put down Metropolitan Police Pvt. Remy G. Ducote in your book as a man equal to any situation.

With one arrested man standing beside him on the corner at 13th and H sts. ne. last night, waiting for the paddy wagon, another man came sprinting down the street, arousing Docute's suspicion.

The officer nailed the sprinter, tossed him into the paddy wagon, which had just arrived. Then Ducote went after his first arrest, who had wandered off—and caught him sneaking out a window in a nearby tavern.

At the station, police charged the sprinter, Francis E. Jackson, 29, employed cook, 4501 Jay st se., with grand larceny — a wedding ring set snatched from Feldman's Jewelry Store, 1251 H st. ne.

President Kills Rebuilding Of Francis Scott Key House

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday killed, by pocket veto, a resolution to memorialize Francis Scott Key by erecting a replica of his Georgetown home.

President Truman acted on the recommendation of the Budget Bureau, which in a memorandum had declared they thought Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," had been memorialized enough with erection of the Francis Scott Key Bridge at a cost of $16,000,000, and the provision of Fort McHenry as a national monument in Baltimore, with an annual maintenance cost of between $15,000 and $20,000.

The budgeteers questioned whether the $65,000 which Congress had authorized for the project would be enough for the purpose. The house now has been razed because of the construction of the K street viaduct, and the materials salvaged, the report said, would represent only a small portion of those required for rebuilding.

The bureau estimated maintenance of the proposed replica would run to about $19,000 a year. They said the original Key house, occupied by Key from 1808 to 1828, had been remodeled so many times that by its last days it bore little resemblance to the Key residence.

In addition, the bureau said, the site proposed for erection of the replica, on a Government-owned plot between M st. nw. and the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, the Francis Scott Key Memorial Bridge and 34th st. nw., is "quite removed" from the site of the original house. The proposed site is on the east side of the entrance to Key Bridge, while the original building was 100 feet to the west of the bridge.

In recommending rejection of the resolution, the bureau suggested that "if it is desired to further memorialize" Key, it could be done by erecting a tablet near Key Bridge and the site of the Key house, making a reference to both bridge and house.

13,000 Cases in '47

All-Out Drive On Social Disease Set

Health officials yesterday readied their heavy artillery—education—for an all-out, year-long drive against gonorrhea.

At a meeting in the Municipal Center, representatives of hotels and rooming houses, drug and liquor dealers, bars, taxis, barber shops and others were called upon to help lay down a barrage of pamphlets.

The leaflets provide information about the prevention and treatment of the sex disease which last year claimed some 13,000 known victims—and at least as many more unreported casualties.

Aim of the campaign is to warn those who have signs of gonorrhea to go to their physicians for treatment, or to one of three free clinics operated by the District, Dr. S. Ross Taggart, head of the venereal disease bureau of the District Health Department, explained.

He warned that gonorrhea, which infected six times as many persons last year as in 1941, can cause blindness, paralysis, heart disease, even death. But one painless injection of penicillin cures 9 out of 10 cases—and the tenth usually is cured by another injection.

Those asked to distribute the information pamphlets can "serve as torchbearers," Dr. Theodore Bauer, venereal disease director of the United States Public Health Service declared.

Private physicians have also been enlisted in the drive. Penicillin will be made available to them free for treatment of gonorrhea patients.

The pamphlets, of seven different types designed for seven classes of business groups which deal directly with the public, advise persons who suspect they have symptoms to see their own physician or call the VD information number, Metropolitan 4600.

Truman Signs Bill On College Housing

The bill granting colleges and universities ownership of temporary housing placed on campuses by the Government to house student veterans was signed yesterday by President Truman. The measure was sponsored by Representative McGregor (R., Ohio).

Takoma Park Fire Chief To Get $4500

City Council Approves Figure Over Objection Of 7 Civic Groups

Over the objection of seven Takoma Park civic organizations, Takoma Park city council last night set the salary of the city's first full-time fire chief at $4500—$500 more than the figure provided in the town's tentative $239,175 budget.

At the same time, the council raised the salary of Police Chief C. Earl Thomas from a proposed $3120 to $3320.

Public Budget Hearing

The council acted after hearing representatives of the civic organizations at a public budget hearing in the Takoma Park Community Hall, No. 8 Columbia ave.

Spearheaded by Robert G. Mohr of the Spring Park Community Association and Rupert Dunn of the Community League, the citizens groups argued against setting the fire chief's salary so far above that of the police chief, who has held his post 16 years.

Councilman J. H. Nies replied that M. E. McBride, a member of the D. C. Fire Department, who had been offered the town's fire chief's post, rejected an offer of $4000 annually.

Police Salaries Raised

The council set salaries of the Police Department with a range of from $2400 to $2640 annually, compared to last year's flat $2310 figure. It created a new post of assistant chief of police, with a salary of $2880.

Several citizens present questioned the recent promotion of Policeman Frank Bell to Assistant Chief. They said he is a resident of the District and claimed he had not received as high a score on a recent State Civil Service retirement as Policeman John Whiddon, a Takoma resident.

Moonlight Cruise Tonight

Servicemen from nearby stations will go on a moonlight cruise aboard the S. S. Potomac from the 7th st. wharf at 8:30 p. m. today as guests of the Logan Fellowship Club. The cruise is open to the public, with tickets on sale at the dock. Proceeds will be used for welfare activities.

Health Probe In Alexandria Will Begin Wednesday

State Staff Due To Take Several Weeks Surveying City Department

By Richard Lyons
Post Reporter

Virginia State health authorities will start work Wednesday on the investigation of the Alexandria Health Department requested two weeks ago by Alexandria City Council.

State Health Commissioner L. J. Roper told The Washington Post yesterday the survey will require several weeks work by a staff of about six men. More time after that will be needed, he said, to study the findings before recommendations can be made to the City Council and the results made public.

Dr. Roper said specialists in various phases of public health will make the study under the supervision of Dr. J. C. Neale, director of local health services of the State Department.

"This is the third time in 10 years we have been called in to investigate the Alexandria Health Department," the commissioner said. The city adopted several recommendations growing out of these previous surveys, he said, notably one to finance specialized training for the city health officer.

This time, the State department was called in by the City Council after a report by the Alexandria League of Women Voters, charging widespread unsanitary conditions in the city and pointing to alleged serious shortcomings in the city's health program.

The league pointed, among other things, to low pay of health department personnel, little use of expensive equipment in the department and lack of a well-baby or maternity clinic.

A check by The Washington Post into one phase of the league's report confirmed the charge of unsanitary conditions throughout the city.

The Washington Post also found lax enforcement of city laws pertaining to covering of trash and garbage cans, weed control and the control of private dumps, with the result that rats roamed unabashed among dirty trash cans and piles of debris in back yards and alleys in many older parts of the city.

Last Sunday the Rev. Thomas Fraser, jr., rector of Alexandria's St. Paul's Episcopal Church, called for community action to eliminate the conditions.

There was some indication yesterday that action is now being taken to eliminate some of the unsanitary conditions. The private dump on Notabene dr. near Four Mile rd., pictured in The Washington Post June 21, had nearly disappeared.

City Health Officer Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, jr., said he had mentioned the dump to the manager of the Beverly Park Apartments across the street. Manager Charles Lewis told Schafer his trash went to the city dump, but that he would clean it up anyhow. Yesterday a Washington Post photographer went back to check the dump and met a truck driving off with one of the last loads of trash.

School Work To Be Speeded

Alexandria City Council last night named a five-man committee to speed up construction of a new elementary school in the northeast section of the city.

The council, meeting jointly with the City School Board, acted after school board members complained many families living on the site had not moved, although a contractor has been engaged.

The school is to be built between First and Second sts., near Royal st.

According to City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast the families have received notices to vacate. Pancoast said he had written Federal officials to determine whether eviction of the families would violate Federal rent control laws.

The committee will report at the next regular meeting of the council.

Dear Boss: Why Not Me, Too?

D. C. Workers Sent Home Early in 95-Degree Heat

District Building Press Room
4:45 p. m. Monday.

Dear Boss:

If this typing is sloppy, it's because perspiration makes my fingers slip off the typewriter keys.

We're really "sweating it out" to quittin' time today. That slightly green look I'm wearing comes from watching District employes stream out of the building at 3 p. m.

When the old mercury hit 94 degrees, the Commissioners told the boys and girls to go home (or wherever they could keep cool), a little early.

Commissioner John Russell Young, who's been ill with a cold for about a week, got right into the spirit of the thing, too. He took a late lunch and didn't come back.

Commissioner Guy Mason left about 3:15 p. m., but Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said he didn't mind the heat much (he actually was drinking a cup of HOT coffee) and didn't knock off until almost the usual time.

Most of the city employes moved pretty nimbly, despite the heat, when they headed for the elevators. But some were more leisurely, hanging around for an extra hour or so to finish up odds and ends.

And a few, including some of the swamped workers at the District Rent Control Administration, kept right on plugging and mopping their brows. They were glad for a chance to "catch up" a little on work.

Just had my left ear scorched, talking over the phone to a city employe at Municipal Center. Seems they have air-conditioning there and had to keep right on working. This gal seems to believe that air-conditioning is not an unmixed blessing.

Had the Weather Bureau on the phone a minute ago. (Excuse me while I wring out my shirt.) Seems we're in for more of the same tomorrow. Here's what the gal said:

"Some cloudiness . . . quite warm and humid Tuesday . . . with chances of scattered afternoon or evening thunder showers . . . "

She said the mercury was really energetic today—crawled all the way up to 95 degrees at 3:55 p. m. (top for the day) after starting with a low of 72 degrees at 5:15 a. m.

My typewroter's steaming, so I guess I'll quit now, boss, and get myself a cool drink—water, so help me.

Your faithful servant,
JIM FICKEN.

P. S. A public information fellow at the Labor Department just told me the workers in Labor's Temporary "U" building on the Mall at 12th st. and Constitution ave. went home at 1 p. m. because of the heat! Guess working in that building WOULD be a poor way to get boiled.

2 Men, Woman Held In Weapons Cases

Two men and a woman were held under $500 bonds each yesterday on charges of carrying deadly weapons.

All three cases are scheduled for jury trials in Municipal Court July 2.

Mrs. Oceola Gray, 41, of 1776 6th st. nw., was charged with carrying a pistol in a taxicab. The driver, Ertha B. Fridie, 1927 E st. nw., said that she pulled the gun on him when she contended he was taking a circuitous route to her home. He got out of the cab on the pretext that he was going to look at a leaking tire and instead called police, he said.

Leroy Lassiter, 26, of 2117 1st st. nw., was charged with carrying a knife on a streetcar and stabbing a fellow passenger, Arthur L. McCrary, 336 U st. nw.

Woodrow W. Carmichael, 33, of 432 L st. nw., was charged with carrying a pistol. A policeman said he saw the pistol while awakening Carmichael who was asleep Saturday night in Judiciary Square.

Still on Critical List

Robert G. Hunter, 22, of 713 4th st. ne., who was shot early Sunday when he fled from police who wanted to question him about a housebreaking, remained in critical condition yesterday at Gallinger Hospital.

Hunter broke and ran from the rear of the Camden Tavern at 13th and H sts. ne., when Pvts. Warren C. Dameron and Sherwood H. Herring, of the Ninth Precinct, drove up in a scout car about 2:30 a. m.

28 Playgrounds Open

A 10-week summer recreation program for school-age Montgomery County children opened yesterday at 28 county playgrounds and recreation centers.

Recreation Director Blair Smith, in charge of the program sponsored by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said there was "a large turnout" but enrollment figures were not compiled.

A summer swimming program will begin July 6 at Glen Echo and Takoma Park pools.

$20,000 Damage Suit Filed

A drugstore proprietor asked $20,000 damages yesterday because, he said, his landlord won't provide adequate heat in winter or let him operate an air-conditioning unit.

The suit was brought in District Court by Morris Shapiro, 3307 Military rd. nw., through Attorney Milford Schwartz. The defendant landlord is Solomon S. Siegle, 452 M st. nw.

Shapiro says that he has a lease on the basement and drugstore at 1124 4th st. sw., and wants damages and an injunction because the landlord doesn't provide proper heat in the winter so his employes get colds and customers shun the place, and the landlord now won't let him into the basement to install a water meter so he can operate an air conditioner. So, he says, it's so hot he is again losing trade.

Sworn In for New Terms

A. J Driscoll and Mrs. Radford Moses were sworn in yesterday to serve third and second terms, respectively, as members of the Board of Public Welfare.

Oaths of office were administered by Geoffrey Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, in the District Building office of Commissioner John Russell Young.

Library Closing Times

All branches of the Public Library will close at 1 p. m. Saturdays, beginning this week. The Saturday early closing will continue through September 25, according to Harry N. Peterson, chief librarian. All agencies of the library also will be closed next Monday, Independence Day.

Miller Hatch Act Views Misquoted

Arlington Better Government League Chairman Malcolm D. Miller said yesterday his views on the Hatch Act had been "deliberately" misquoted by County Board Candidate Harold L. Schilz.

Schliz resigned from the league Saturday, complaining that Chairman Miller and the group had opposed any change in the Hatch Act which would permit Federal workers to participate in local party politics.

But Miller said he had told a Civil Service hearing on the issue: "I am opposed to all Hatch Act restrictions upon the exercise of the privilege of citizens to engage in party politics, even though they be Federal employes."

School Committee To Meet Tonight

The Fairfax County School Emergency Committee will meet at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Annandale Elementary School, Annandale, Va., to collect petitions and to expand committees.

The petitions which have been circulating throughout the county ask Gov. William M. Tuck to grant an emergency loan to the county for school construction.

Committees to be expanded are studying the possibility of a county bond issue to raise funds for schools, the county tax structure, and the advisability of requiring builders of multiple housing units to provide land for schools and recreation..

Armory Board To Hold First Meeting Today

First meeting of the three-man District Armory Control Board will be held at the Armory today at 3 p. m., Commissioner John Russell Young announced yesterday.

Meeting with Young will be Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard unit, and Attorney Leonard P. Walsh, named third member of the board by the chairmen of the House and Senate District Committees.

General Cox said there have been about 20 applications for a manager to promote sports events, conventions, dances and other activities at the Armory.

Among the candidates, he said, is Jack Epsey, former general manager for both the Washington Redskins and Baltimore Colts, professional football teams.

General Cox said members of the board appear to agree that the manager's salary should be set at $10,000 a year.

Beetles on Way, Expert Warns

Farmers and amateur gardeners of the area who have enjoyed a Japanese beetleless spring were warned yesterday to look out for an entomological Pearl Harbor attack in the near future.

In other words, according to Dr. George S. Langford, specialist in insect control at the University of Maryland, the bugs are on their way.

Boys and Girls, 200 Strong, Off for Camps

More than 200 Washington youngsters got off to camp yesterday, first of the summer contingent.

About 175 of them, loaded into three buses, started off for two weeks at Camp Brown, Scotland, Md., the Police Boys Club camp now in its fourteenth season. There they will go swimming, get the best of food, work in the gardens, go fishing and boat riding.

Forty more—all girls—went to Wild Rose Shores, Annapolis, Md. where the Christ Child Society's camp is located.

For both boys and girls it was a rare treat to get out of the city's heat. Many of those who started off for two weeks in the country yesterday had never been to camp before. Both organizations try to include children who are underprivileged among those selected for the camp visit.

No fee is charged for the two-week stint at Camp Brown. The Christ Child camp has a fee of $20, but a family's financial status is taken into consideration when an application for camp is made.

The society's camp for boys at Maryland Point, Md., will open on July 5. It is open to boys all over the city, and admission is free. The camp is supported by businessmen of the area.

Alexandria Police Search for Slayer

Alexandria police yesterday continued searching for the man who shot to death a drinking companion and wounded another Sunday during an argument.

Detective Inspector Russell A. Hawes announced the killer had been identified by witnesses. He fled from the scene—a garage at 528 N. Alfred st., on a bicycle immediately after the shooting, Hawes said.

The wounded man, Alvin Colbert, 35, of 813 Madison st., Alexandria, was reported in "satisfactory" condition yesterday at Alexandria Hospital. The dead man was Jose Elzie, 34, of 528 N. Alfred st.

Artificial Respiration Saves D. C. Youth

Prince Frederick, Md., June 28 (AP).—Paul Rogers, 20-year-old son of Mrs. William Rouse, 200 Rhode Island ave. ne., Washington, D. C., was revived after an hour and a half of artificial respiration by companions on a swimming trip yesterday.

They were playing ball in the water at Breezy Point on the Chesapeake Bay when Roger started ashore. The others did not know he had become ill. Another member of the party stumbled across him in shallow water.

Pvt. Clarke To Be Reburied At Arlington

The body of Pvt. Alfred Edmond Clarke, Army Air Corps, who was killed in a plane crash in New Guinea in March, 1944, will be reburied in Arlington Cemetery Wednesday at 2 p. m.

The services will be by the graves of his father and mother, the late Capt. Henry N. Clarke, USA, and Marilla Clarke.

Clarke, who was 36, was a native of Arlington County and attended Western High School for two years before transferring to Uniontown High in Uniontown, Pa., from which he was graduated in 1928. He returned to Washington and worked for a number of years for the Sanitary Grocery Co., as a clerk, before enlisting in the service on December 26, 1941.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Marjorie W. Clarke, and two children, Gay Ellen and Henry Wilson, all of 2709 Hartford st. se.; a brother, Astor, of Florida, and three sisters, Mrs. Eva Kelly of Florida, Mrs. Inez Burke and Mrs. Edith Quinn, both of California.

Convicted of Indecency

Kenneth A. Gregory, 26, a salesman, 1512 Jefferson st., Hyattsville, Md., was convicted in Bethesda Police Court yesterday on a charge of indecent exposure. Arresting officers said the offense involved a 16-year-old girl. Judge Warren Browning continued final disposition of the case pending psychiatric examination of the defendant.

C. W. Burch Silver Spring Rites Today

Funeral services for Charles W. Burch, 75, of 631 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring, life-long resident of Montgomery County, will be held Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

The Rev. Phillip Edwards, pastor of Woodside Methodist Church, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Monocacy Cemetery, Bealsville, Md.

A resident of Silver Spring for 40 years, Mr. Burch died Sunday after a long illness. He was born in Dickerson, Md. and for many years had lived at Poolesville. Six years ago he retired as a salesman for Hunter Brothers, now Maloney, Inc., a hardware and farm equipment firm in Silver Spring.

He is survived by his wife, Lula W. Burch, four children, Jesse, 909 Columbia blvd., Silver Spring; George W., 768 Quebec pl. nw., Washington; Mrs. Myrtle V. Hood, 731 Sligo ave., Silver Spring and Carroll A. Burch, 4 Park Valley rd., Silver Spring, 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Hugh Siddall

Chicago, June 28 (AP).—Hugh Siddall, 63, railroad passenger authority, died yesterday while vacationing in Las Vegas, Nev., his office reported today.

Siddall was chairman of the Transcontinental and Western Passenger Associations and was honored by the Government for his work in moving troops during the war.

Charles H. Moritz

Boston, June 28 (AP).—Charles Holland Moritz, 72, retired vice president of the Aluminum Co. of America, died last night. He had undergone an operation here.

Moritz was a close associate of the late Charles Martin Hall, inventor of the first commercial process for extracting aluminum from bauxite. The process placed aluminum within the price reach of commercial users.

2 Teachers Hired For District Receiving Home

Children at the District Receiving Home are assured of educational instruction during the 1949 fiscal year, under terms of the welfare appropriation approved by Congress, it was disclosed yesterday.

John W. Tramburg, Welfare director, said yesterday two full-time teachers already have been hired for the home, to work under the direction of Carl Oliver, principal of Industrial Home School.

Tramburg said he hopes also to supplement educational facilities offered at the home by starting a practice teaching program, if that can be worked out with local teachers' colleges.

Counselors, to supervise both classroom instruction and recreational activities, also are planned, Tramburg said.

Picknicker Drowns in South River

HAPPIER DAYS—Robert J. Cameron is shown with Kathryn Alexander, friend who saw him drown yesterday

As his fiancee and several close friends watched helplessly, a young Washington Navy veteran drowned Sunday in the South River, Anne Arundel County.

He was Robert Joseph Cameron, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Cameron, 605 Gallatin st. nw. His father is a veteran District fireman.

According to Kathryn Alexander, 18, of 627 Farragut st. nw., who was to have married Cameron in October, he "sank so quickly the other boys just couldn't pull him out."

Kathryn said Robert, a good swimmer, jumped over the side of a rowboat at Riva and it seemed to "knock the wind right out of him."

Kathryn, Robert and two other couples were on an all-day crabbing, swimming and picnicking holiday.

Cameron served in the Pacific with the Third Fleet during the war and received combat stars for three major engagements. He was a machinist's mate, third class.

Since his discharge, he had been serving as a plumber apprentice.

His father, a District fireman for 25 years, is now attached to the administration division at headquarters. Other survivors include his mother and two sisters, Mrs. David H. Dickerson, 10027 Greenock rd., Silver Spring, and Mrs. Raymond R. Disanti, Pittsburgh.

Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. Wednesday at the Church of the Nativity, 6005 13th st. nw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Y. Irving Bullard

Charlotte, N. C., June 28 (AP).—W. Irving Bullard, 66, nationally known manufacturer of textile mill supplies, died here today.

Bullard, a native of Waltham, Mass., learned to fly an airplane in 1910, and later became the first president of Colonial Air Transport, the first airline between Boston and New York.

Earl Carroll

Hollywood, June 28 (U.P.).—Showman Earl Carroll's "most beautiful girls in the world" wept today at funeral services for the famed theatrical producer.

More than 400 persons jammed into the Church of the Recessional for the rites. The largest single group was made up of the beauties Carroll featured in his theater-restaurant.

The funeral was combined with memorial services for Beryl Wallace, 32, Carroll's leading lady, who died with him 10 days ago when an airliner crashed in Pennsylvania. Funeral services for her were conducted last week.

The showgirls sent two life-sized floral pieces shaped to resemble chorus girls.

Lady Franks Meets the Press; Cuban Envoy Decorates Prelate

By Elizabeth Maguire

The new chatelaine of the British Embassy, Lady Franks, received ladies of the press at tea yesterday. Enthusiastic exclamations followed hand clasps, as it was generally agreed that the Ambassadress is charming.

She has brown curly hair worn in a short bob, a fresh English complexion and lovely voice. Yesterday Lady Franks wore a black and pink cotton print, and plain black pumps with French heels.

Her little daughters, Alison, age 3¼, and Caroline, age 9, captivated everyone. Dressed in blue smocked cottons, they introduced themselves around, passing cakes on silver plates.

Caroline has never been in such a hot climate; says she feels she is "dripping to pieces every day." Asked if she had met any little girls her age, she answered "yes," adding thoughtfully, "But none I know well enough to count as friends." In the fall she will attend a Quaker school.

Embassy staff members assisting Lady Franks at the tea yesterday included Miss Irene Boyle, attache; Lady Balfour, wife of the Minister Plenipotentiary; Mrs. F. R. Hoyer Millar, wife of the new Minister, and Mrs. Gerald Meade, wife of the new Counselor.

A long table of refreshments was set up in the ballroom. There were sandwiches and cakes and tall glasses of coffee cooled with ice cream. Guests wandered out on the terrace and across the wide lawn bordered with gardens of pink roses.

AT the Cuban Embassy an hour or so later, a colorful ceremony took place. Archbishop Caruana of Cuba, in flowing robes of royal purple, was awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes. The same honor was also bestowed on the Ambassador of Haiti, Joseph D. Charles, the First Secretary of Haiti, Mauclair Zephirin, and the Minister-Counselor of Venezuela, Dr. M. A. Falcon-Briceno.

The Archbishop was Apostolic Delegate to Cuba, and when Cuba established diplomatic relations with the Vatican, he became Papal Nuncio, as well as Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. He is a friend of long standing of the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt.

The youngest Belt child, Juan, was baptized by the Archbishop. Juan is aged 3 and has spent all but one month, the first one of his life, in Cuba. Yesterday he and the other Belt children were on hand for the reception which followed the ceremony.

Sanora de Belt and the Ambassador received their guests after 6 o'clock. Tall blue and white flowers decorated the room, and long French windows were thrown wide open to catch any passing breeze.

The Minister of Finland greeted beautiful Senora de Echegaray, who was gowned in flowered print silk, and laughed, "The more hot, the more colors." Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Biffle attended the reception with Mrs. Claude Pepper. Father Edmund Walsh was a guest, as well as the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Caceres.

Others in the gathering were Senora de Espinosa de los Monteros, wife of the Mexican Ambassadar; Senora de Elanco, wife of the Minister Counselor of Cuba; Senora de Garcia Osuna, wife of the Cuban Attache; Senora de Falcon-Briceno, and the Second Secretary of Cuban Embassy and Senora de Rivero.

Mr., Mrs. H. L. Brite Give Dinner at Hotel

MR. and Mrs. H. Leigh Brite entertained at a dinner last evening on the terrace of the Shoreham Hotel. Their guests of honor were Flying Officer George Mattusch and Mrs. Mattusch and Wing Commander F. E. Lambert and Mrs. Lambert of Ottawa, Canada. Mrs. Mattusch is the former Miss Anita Cajigas, and the two couples are house guests of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

Last night's dinner also celebrated the double birthday anniversary of Commander and Mrs. Lambert. Ranking guests at the party were the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Caceres.

Mrs. Gustave Weidel Is Entertained

MRS. Gustave Weidel, wife of the Swedish Minister to Portugal, is in town for a day or two staying with Miss Margaret Frazer. A number of years ago Mrs. Weidel was a resident of Washington when her husband was stationed here as Counselor at the Swedish Legation. Mrs. Edgar L. G. Prochnik entertained for her yesterday inviting a few of her intimate friends in for tea.

LITTLE ALISON FRANKS, age 3½, puts down her plate of cakes to pose with her mother and older sister, Caroline, age 9. Lady Franks, wife of the new British Ambassador, stands with them, happy to have their help during the tea hour in the garden of the Embassy

Miss Daphne Mahon Married To Duncan Waldo Holt, Jr.

Metropolitan Methodist Church was the setting yesterday for the wedding of Miss Daphne Mahon, daughter of Representative and Mrs. George Mahon of Texas, and Duncan Waldo Holt, jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Holt of Greensboro, N. C. The Rev. Edward G. Latch officiated at the ceremony.

Representative Mahon gave his daughter in marriage. She was costumed in white marquisette, trimmed with val lace, and cut with high neckline, bishop sleeves and train. Her fingertip-length veil was held with a poke bonnet headdress and she carried white orchids and gardenias. Mrs. Charles F. Benlow was matron of honor, and Miss Betsy Holt the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeanne Palmer and Miss Martha Abernethy. All wore white frocks of marquisette and carried blue delphinium.

Carl B. Lowe served as best man and ushers were Martin Edward Jenkins, Frank Jones, and Robert Holt.

A reception followed in the garden of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Carter. The newlyweds left later for a wedding trip to Virginia Beach. They will reside in Durham, N. C., where the bridegroom is a senior in the Duke University Law School. The bride received her degree at the same university. Her father has been a member of Congress for 14 years.

D. C. Federation Urges Tightening of Pure Food Law

By Genevieve Reynolds

The D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs, at its final meeting of the season yesterday, indorsed bill H. R. 4071 to restore the Government's authority to seize and confiscate contaminated food. Members also called for a law requiring packers to distinguish on labels whether dextrose or corn sugar had been used in frozen fruits.

Action came following a report by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, legislation chairman, about two recent attacks on the Pure Food and Drug law, which her late husband, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, fathered and wrote about 38 years ago.

She explained that bill H. R. the House of Representatives and was up before the Senate when that body adjourned, was designed "to correct" the 1938 Pure Food and Drug law. The 1938 act, she said, omitted the phrase "that any adulterated food which remains unloaded unsold, or in its original unbroken package shall be liable for seizure and confiscation if found contaminated by rats or insects, whether or not it be the first sale."

Key words, she emphasized, in the phrasing are "first sale," and "unbroken packages," which had been in the original act but for some reason were excluded in the 1938 law.

The pending congressional bill would provide Federal food and drug officials the authority to protect food, not only in transit, but until the original package was opened. "This was the custom for 38 years until interrupted when the language of the '38 act failed to interpret the exact duties and authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission," explained Mrs. Wiley.

Mrs. Wiley further reported that she had sent telegrams in the name of the D. C. group, requesting Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to include the equal rights amendment in the GOP 1948 platform. Jubilantly she said that the Republican Party had indorsed the amendment.

Report on Convention

Mrs. Edward C. Magdeberger, president of the District group, recalled the resolutions passed by the General Federation of Women's Clubs at the recent Portland, Oreg., convention.

"I spoke on the resolution pertaining to the reform of the Indian Affairs Office, pointing out that the District group had voted against calling for a drastic reform of the Office of Indian Affairs," she said. "The motion was changed and passed to conform with the District's suggestions.

Originally GFWC favored immediate reform of the Office of Indian Affairs, both as to policy and as to the administrative organization, and quickest possible release from Federal control.

The local group's substitute resolution deleted "immediate reform" and urged that the policy of the United States with respect to its Indian population should have as its objective the encouragement of Indians to assure full management of their own resources and affairs and full participation in American life, without being required to relinquish existing guarantees as to the inalienability or tax examption of their land or property; that the United States refrain from acting in any manner affecting Indian land titles without the consent of the Indians; that the United States reaffirm its historic pledge to assist the Indians in becoming educated and in adjusting to the ways of the white man by supplying proper health, welfare, educational, industrial opportunities; and that the BID organize its legislative and administrative program and reorganize its staff, so as to bring these objectives to early accomplishment.

Mrs. Magdeberger said that convention delegates had postponed action on the Human Rights bill until the bill has been completed.

At the morning session Mrs. Lucien Sanders, president of the Excelsior Literary Society, which was organized in 1887, reported that the group had sent more than 200 books to Walter Reed plus clothing for needy persons in all sections of this country.

Club members also voted to invest $2500 in Series G. Saving Bonds, following a report by Mrs. Henry F. Sawtelle, treasurer.

Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, one of the delegates to the GFWC conclave, said that Miami, Fla., has been selected for the 1949 May national conclave. And the following year, Boston, Mass., will be the site of the annual powwow.

Married 16 Months, Expecting Child Soon, Wife Is Wroth Because Her Mother-in-Law, Installed in Home, Sidesteps Housework

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Andy and I have been married 16 months and are expecting our firstborn in a few weeks. The problem is Andy's mother, who has been staying with us the past two months.

Although she is always talking about my "doing too much," she never lifts a hand to help me with the housework. I do all the cooking, and when we have finished eating she either finds something to do in her room, or else walks out somewhere—we live in a sunny Southern clime—and doesn't return home until bedtime.

If I start clearing the table to wash the dishes immediately after a meal, she may offer to dry them, but doesn't do it. Always I find them just where I left them, in the drying rack, next morning.

Mom Won't Cook Or Wash Dishes

IN ORDER to see what she would do, if put to the test, I have tried rising early to fix myself a quick breakfast and clear the table before she's up. In that case she just drinks hot jello-water and goes without food until dinner (at 7 p. m.) unless I fix her something to eat in the meantime.

I asked Andy one night why she does me like this, and he says it's because she is just so slow; but I believe she is just lazy. I've let things slide until tonight; but I just can't take it any longer.

This afternoon I cleaned up the kitchen and went to my mother's for a few hours, and when I came home the sink was full of dirty dishes and she was gone. How can I put a stop to this? Please advise me soon through your column.

D. B.

Is Mom a Guest? Then Be Patient

DEAR D. B.: What is the status of Andy's mother in your home? Is she a guest, who is spending a season with you to give herself a vacation from living costs and household duties? Or is she slated to live with you permanently?

If she is a guest, you are being foolishly tense about her uncouth manners and more or less studied goat-getting tactics. In that case, the tolerable solution would be to deal with her in terms of her childish behavior: (1) By expecting no service from her. (2) By coaching Andy, in private session, to help with the dishes and lend a hand with other chores made heavier by her presence.

This policy would be much easier on your nerves than the hate-feud you've been fomenting, in a misguided effort to make her feel your raging resentment at her slacker performance. Also, if Andy were to don an apron, figuratively speaking, to compensate for her lack of accommodation, in all probability she would pitch in to save him the trouble—just to endear herself to him, of course.

If a Squatter, Have a Showdown

INASMUCH as your first child is soon to be born, you should be storing up all possible reserves of energy, physical and nervous, for the ordeal; and Andy should recognize his responsibility to conserve your strength in the interim, insofar as he is able. He can do much by settting his mother a dignified example of special consideration for your welfare at this time.

And may I remind him not to back down in the event she sniffs that "Having babies is natural, why make a fuss over it," etc., etc., as jealous Moms are wont to argue when daughters-in-law are facing accouchement.

Incidentally, it occurs to me that much of her contribution to strain stems from compulsive drive to "bring out the worst" in you, if she can, to put you in a bad light with Andy, just because she is furtively jealous of the parental bond you are forging with him.

The business of leaving a sinkful of dirty dishes to greet you in a kitchen you had left spotless is a gesture of pure malice, I think, not an absent-minded or lazy oversight. That sort of thing is best overlooked in a visiting mother-in-law; but if this is a case where she's come to stay, my advice is to have a showdown and refuse, absolutely, to share your home with her.

The situation is bad enough now, with dishes and cooking the focal points of feuding, but after a baby appears in the midst, Mom will make your existence hell-on-earth if you don't get her out. There is nothing worse in human relations than a Mom-grandma playing her cards in that set-up. M. H.

Make Your Own 'Coolers'

EVER wish you had your own private soda fountain these sweltering days? It would be nice, but you really don't need one to make delicious fruit sodas at home. Just put a spoonful of canned mixed fruits in the bottom of a glass. Pour in citrus juice and top with a scoop of ice cream. All these "makings" can be bought already prepared and stored in the refrigerator until you're ready to use them

Hanging Sheets

If you do not have time to iron the sheets, hang them on the line dripping wet and pinned out straight. The dripping will pull out most of the wrinkles and with neat folding the sheet will look quite well.

Ammonia to the Rescue

A dash of household ammonia in the dish water when washing fishy dishes not only will cut the odor on the utensils but will prove a more pleasant aroma to the housewife's nostrils during this irksome job.

Where to Buy Bolsters for Couches

I would like to know where I can buy bolsters to be used on living room studio couches. They seem to be shown in most of the new house magazines, but I haven't seen them for sale at any store. I would also like to know what to use in stuffing the bolsters if I make some myself.
M. F. H.

Two Washington department stores sell bolsters; one store (NA. 5100) has them uncovered and the other (DI. 5300) has them already covered. If you wish to make them yourself, kapok is a good filler and it can be purchased by the pound at an upholstery supply store on E st.

How can I remove reddish-brown varnish from a white sharkskin dress? (The stain came from one of those country churches where the seats were done over.) F. C. B.

Soaking the spots in turpentine may loosen them, or rubbing lard into the stains and leaving it overnight to "soak" in. Sponge with additional turpentine next day, then either launder or use cleansing fluid to remove the grease spots.

I own a Meissen figurine from which a piece has been broken off. I believe the figurine could be mended since the break is a clean one, but I do not know of any place in town which mends fine china. Can you suggest a place that could mend the figurine? P. M. G.

An art shop that does excellent repair work of this type can be reached by telephoning Adams 5795.

Plump Chicken Is Winner of Poultry Prize

IF you've ever spent hours pulling pin feathers out of a chicken and wound up with a skinny drum stick on your plate as your only reward, you'll be interested in a contest that ended last week.

It's the "Chicken-of-Tomorrow" contest, whose big aim was to develop a chicken with shorter, meatier drumsticks, a broader breast, shorter neck and no pin feathers.

After three years of effort on the part of poultry raisers all over the country, the contest wound up in a blaze of glory with a festival at Georgetown, Del., last week. Judges handed a plump prize to the Vantress brothers of Marysville, Calif., then stood off to admire the plump entry—a cross-bred bird (Red Cornish and New Hampshire) with a remarkably high percentage of meat to the bone. Judges were experts from the United States Department of Agriculture and the poultry industry and the prize money was given by a large food chain.

The first of the "Chickens-of-Tomorrow"—but only a few of them—went on sale in Washington last week. A larger supply is promised in the not-too-distant future.

Barth Urges West's Big 3 To Quit Berlin

The western powers should withdraw their occupation armies from an "intolerable" position in the City of Berlin, Alan Barth, editorial writer for The Washington Post said last night.

United States forces today are remaining in Berlin largely because "we feel that we shall lose face if we move out," Barth told the annual meeting of the District Chapter of the American Council for Judaism.

He urged withdrawal from the "pocket" at Berlin to the East-West line created by agreement with Russia, a line he described as "cutting Europe in half."

Marshall Plan Reprisal

This line, he said "is the line Russia knows it may not cross without provoking a world catastrophe."

The Russian rail embargo on western power shipments into Berlin is "in reprisal" for the west's adoption of the Marshall Plan, Barth said.

"If we choose to hold the line in Berlin, we shall do so at the expense of two and one-half million Germans," now living in the city's western zones, Barth said.

He told the annual meeting of the chapter at the Wardman Park Hotel that the Marshall Plan is "the best hope of peace in the world today," and urged that the United States help "make it work."

Adopt New By-laws

In last night's council meeting, the group adopted a new set of by-laws, and also elected the following to the new board of directors:

S. Meyer Barnett, R. B. Behrend, Sol Bennett, Mrs. Henry S. Bernton, David Bress, David W. Dreyfuss, Maurice L. Greenberg, Gilbert Hahn, B. Franklin Hofheimer, Mrs. William G. Illch, Henry J. Kaufman, Joseph D. Kaufman, Mrs. Henry King, Alfred M. Lilienthal, Wallace Luchs, jr., A. C. Mayer, Mrs. Robert Meyer, William Silberberg, Mrs. Edward Sonneborn, Mrs. Colman B. Stein and Mrs. Arthur Stephens.

Arab League To Consider Peace Offers

Cairo, June 28 (AP).—The Arab League will meet tomorrow to consider permanent Palestine peace proposals advanced by Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator.

Syrian Premier Jamil Mardam Bey, who announced the league meeting from Damascus, said the proposals "will in no way modify our attitude of rejecting partition and a Jewish state in Palestine."

The proposals also have been forwarded to the Jews in Tel Aviv.

Aviv.

Bernadotte, who affected the four-week truce in Palestine, said he had asked both parties to refrain from suggestions or publishing the proposals until he had received their replies.

Irgun Forces Prepare To Rejoin Israeli Army

Tel Aviv, Israel, June 28 (U.P.)—The Jewish extremist organization Irgun Zvai Leumi announced tonight that it would rejoin the Israeli army.

Irgun disassociated itself from the Israeli forces after its failure to land arms from a gun-running ship in violation of the Holyland truce.

Many thousands of new soldiers will take the oath of loyalty to Israeli as the result of the Irgun action.

Defying Bishop, Catholic Girl Wins Beauty Title

Wheeling, W. Va., June 28 (AP).—An 18-year-old Catholic girl who participated under threat of excommunication won a local beauty contest tonight.

Miss Mariruth Ford, daughter of a Wheeling grocer, was named "Miss Wheeling" to participate in a State-wide beauty pageant at Moundsville in August. The winner there will enter the "Miss America" contest at Atlantic City.

She remained in the contest despite a declaration from Bishop John T. Swint of the Wheeling Catholic diocese that he would expel from the church any girl who participated. Two other Catholic girls withdrew after his stand became known.

Miss Ford declared she would remain in, however, and her father commented that it was "just a case of the church having one view and the parents another."

Fire in Empty Building Jumps to Next Door House

Fire yesterday burned out the south side and roof of an unoccupied three-story frame house at 504 21st st. nw., and swept into another house next door before firemen brought it under control.

The blaze, which began about 3:30 p. m., started in a pile of debris at the base of the south side of the house. Seven occupants of the house at 506 21st st. nw. fled into the street as the flames swept through its roof and into a third-floor bedroom.

Firemen, who ripped out third-floor ceilings in both buildings, were unable to determine the cause of the fire immediately. Three engine companies, a truck company and a rescue squad were on the scene.

Grant Offers Defense for Attack by Air

It would be "out of the question" to protect the entire Federal Government in case of air attack in another war, Maj. Gen Ulysses S. Grant 3d told 70 members of the Society of American Military Engineers yesterday.

The best protection would be underground, he said, and would be possible only for such important centers as communications.

Dispersal should be the first countermove in case the city were attacked, Maj. Gen. Grant, who is chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said at the meeting in Hotel Burlington. The master plan which the commission is now mapping out for Washington must take the possibility of an air attack into consideration, he added.

Calling World War II techniques "antiquated,' General Grant advocated a nucleus in the Department of National Defense to work out civilian defense techniques in case of saturation bombing, self-propelled missile, and atom bomb attacks. The Federal Government should also maintain training schools for local leaders, operate a Nation-wide warning system, and grant priority to local communities for special equipment, he recommended.

Many Stores Without Sugar; Price Rise Due

Many Washington stores haven't a lick of sugar to sell despite a country-wide surplus, it was revealed yesterday. The supply is expected to take an upward trend shortly, however.

The situation, divulged in a spot check of local retailers, came to light as the Associated Press announced in New York that "refined sugar prices are on the way up again . . . with hikes in retail stores possible later."

One authoritative source, who supplies a large portion of the commodity locally, attributed the shortage to a recent three-months' strike of the American Sugar Refinery in Baltimore. He said that in the last few weeks Washington wholesalers having been getting about one-quarter of their "needs" and supplies won't be replenished for another two months at least.

The sugar broker announced that prices to wholesalers will remain stable for four to five weeks and then they will feel the price boost just announced for refined sugar—an average of 25 cents a hundredweight.

This, he predicted, will be reflected in a boost in retail prices—about 2 cents on a 5-pound bag and 3 cents on a 10-pound bag.

Greeks Stop Rebel Attacks

Athens, June 28 (AP). — Greek army troops lashed out near the Albanian border today in a renewed offensive against the Communist rebels, military sources said.

Strong artillery and air attacks supported the dawn offensive.

Rebel Chieftain Markos Vafiades' guerillas launched determined counterattacks. Savage fighting broke out when rebels tried to storm Boufa Heights and retake it from nationalist troops. They were repulsed, army sources said.

Informants said the Greek army's renewed offensive may exceed in power the opening blows in the army's all-out campaign to smash the rebellion.

Press dispatches from Ioannina said 1000 rebels attacked the Greek army's Ninth Division northeast of Konitsa, a mile from the Albanian border. The accounts said the rebels suffered 180 killed and 200 wounded.

Minister of Public Order Constantin Rentis reported a secret Communist organization with international merchant marine affiliations has been shattered. He said 10 men and a 23-year-old woman were arrested. Police said the Communist group had affiliations in New York, Marseille, Genoa, Cardiff and Buenos Aires.

Man Faces Rape Charge Today

A defendant charged with raping a nearly blind 72-year-old widow is scheduled to go on trial at 9:30 a. m. today in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

He is Joseph (Dupe) Ross, 54-year-old Takoma Park garbage collector. The State Board of Mental Hygeine has described Ross as "feeble minded." The alleged crime was committed May 12.

The case was originally scheduled for June 21. A one-week postponement was granted to permit Defgnse Attorney Leon A. Ransom, who took the defense late, to prepare his case. Ransom was retained for Ross by the Montgomery County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Argentine Admiral To Be U. S. Navy Guest

San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 28 (AP).—Vice Admiral Juan M. Carranza, chief of naval operations for Argentina, left by plane today for Pensacola, Fla. He will be guest of the United States Navy for about three weeks.

Carranza will visit naval establishments and ships at Pensacola, Washington, Quantico, Va., Bethesda, Md., Annapolis, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, New London, Conn., and Newport, R. I.

I think we finally convinced Barnaby we aren't trying to ship him to his Grandma's farm to save money. Hearing us talk of the high cost of living gave him the idea, I guess. But how does he manage to mix up that imaginary Pixie in everything?
He's worried. He makes up that Pixie whenever he feels a lack of security—
I understand your parents' plight! A terrible thing, breaking up a family—
But I WANT to go to Grandma's farm this summer, Mr. O'Malley.
Ah, yes. You're all putting on a brave front. But let's not give up hope! I may yet ward off this catastrophe—

Wrong Guy, Wrong City, But She Got Him

Malora R. Christman of the Allied Realty Co. writes:

"This morning one of your operators made a mistake and connected me with the wrong department.

"Only then did it occur to me that I have been calling The Washington Post for 15 years, and that was the first time I'd ever been given a wrong connection. How can your operators be so accurate?"

I'm sure I don't know, Malora—but they're positively wonderful.

Handling thousands of calls and hundreds of messages for Post people every day, they seldom make mistakes and never fail to give every assignment the old college try.

I remember one day when Wayne Coy, now chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, picked up his Post phone and said, "Molly, get me Mike Cowles in Boston."

Five minutes later his phone rang. "So soon?" said Coy. "Good work, Molly."

"I'd have gotten him sooner," chided our chief operator, "except that you threw me off the track by using his nickname. I had to find out for myself that 'Mike' Cowles is actually Gardner Cowles—and that he's not in Boston today, he's in Chicago attending a convention. Here's your party."

NEWS ITEM

If Jerry (WINX) Strong and I had lost our golf match to challengers Dutch Bergman and Steve Douglas, you wouldn't have read about it in this space.

But inasmuch as we gave the NBC sports authorities a golf lesson, permit me to announce that we won.

It was a friendly sort of contest, with all putts of 3 inches or less cheerfully conceded.

WHAT A BUY!

Harvey Brown of 1620 C st. se. is intrigued by a Hill & Tobitts classified ad which says:

"DODGE—1946 4-door, black; seats and steering wheel available at no extra cost."

Do they throw in the clutch, too? Or does it have fluid drive?

MEMO TO MR. KENEIPP

Ordinarily, we complain about too many No Parking signs. Today I'd like to complain that we have one too few.

Street repairs have been in progress in the neighborhood of 6th and G sts. nw. for weeks. Additional work is being done on 6th st. between E and H.

The result is that 6th st. traffic moves at a snail's pace. In many places only one lane is available.

Couldn't temporary No Parking signs be put up in these blocks, to untangle the mess? And couldn't something be done about the double parkers who infest this area?

It's bad enough to be reduced to a single traffic lane, without finding even that blocked by some oaf who's waiting for Aunt Matilda to finish her shopping.

GOOD STORIES NEVER DIE

Last fall, a few days after Halloween, I printed a story contributed by a local law professor. He said this incident had actually happened to a woman of his acquaintance.

The lady had answered her doorbell and found two neighborhood children dressed up in adult clothing. The little girl introduced herself as Mrs. Smith and said the little boy was her husband, Mr. Smith.

As the hostess fell in with the gag and went to get some milk and cookies, the little girl suddenly announced that they would have to be leaving. "I'm afraid," she explained, "that Mr. Smith has wet his pants."

No sooner had the story appeared than I began to get a steady stream of letters, telling me just how old the story was, and where it had appeared in print before.

It was impossible for me to acknowledge all these letters individually, so perhaps I can accomplish the same purpose by referring the authors to the current (July) issue of the Reader's Digest.

On page 105 they'll find the same story, this time credited to Cedric Adams of the Minneapolis Star, who acknowledges borrowing it from a colleague named Gordie Gammack.

FOR MEN ONLY

The gang in the claims division, General Accounting Office, will probably remember John Hughes. Johnny is now with the Philippine War Damage Commission, in Manila.

He recently wrote a letter to his friends in the claims division, and M. Kotkin of 119 Anacostia rd. se. passes along an excerpt:

"Since the first of this month we've had three typhoons and one earthquake.

"I find that the weather bureau meteorologist who first discovers the depression area which eventually becomes a typhoon gets the privilege of naming it.

"Thus, the first one we had was called Cathy, then came Dora, and finally Flora. According to today's paper, Gladys is now making up, out in the Pacific.

"The custom of giving typhoons feminine names seems entirely fitting and proper. Like all women, typhoons are unpredictable, devastating and dangerous."

District Liner Kotkin adds a careful footnote: "Kindly make it clear that the opinions expressed are those of John Hughes, and not necessarily those of this correspondent, who happens to be the only male in a family of five."

BY THE WAY

The day after the GOP convention ended I wisecracked that so many daytime serials had been canceled "it was a black day for the soap industry."

Many a true word is spoken in jest. Now that the bookkeepers have just about counted up all the losses, it appears that commercial cancellations cost the several networks almost a half million dollars.

NEW YORK—"Life With Father" is being offered for radio as a half-hour serial, with Howard Lindsay and Dorothy Stickney playing their original roles. Co-authors Lindsay and Russel Crouse would write the show the first year, and supervise it the second . . . The Rose Bowl is asking for bids to the television rights to the New Year's Day football game. The asking price is $100,000.

One of the distinguished partners in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. married a young lady ten years his junior. Her financier-groom suggested that the friends with whom she had been associating were of the frivolous young . . . A few days later the dutiful bride telephoned her husband and accurately reported: "Guess whom I'm lunching with right now? Albert Einstein."

Last week George Jessel, the 20th Century-Fox producer, telephoned his fiancee, Abigail Adams, who is staying in New York and assured her that he would fly East to see her. Jessel, whose extra-curricular job is that of a good-will emissary for the studio, then had a conference with Darryl F. Zanuck and proposed that he visit the Philadelphia convention. His presence there, he explained, would help studio-relations. Zanuck approved the trip . . . "Then the studio will pay for it?" asked Jessel . . . "Of course," said Zanuck, "but only in the event that Abigail Adams gets the nomination."

At 4 a. m. one morning last week, Speaker Joe Martin banged the gavel to announce the convention's adjournment to 12 p. m. Speaker Martin pounded his gavel tirelessly throughout the night undisturbed even by a shout from someone: "With all that hammering, you could've put up housing!"

Don Taylor, Universal studio's new film star, is vacationing in New York. He was here last when he had a leading role in the Air Force play, "Winged Victory." The young actor, who starred in the movie, "The Naked City," is recognized by people who see him in the subways or walking on the street. This recognition, he says, is different from the recognition he received when he played in a show. "People go to movies more often than they go to plays," he said. "Plays therefore, are remembered better. When I was in 'Winged Victory,' a few people would stop me and say, 'Aren't you in "Winged Victory"?' Now that I've been in a movie, everybody stops me—but they ask, vaguely: 'Don't I know you from somewhere?' "

NEW Scientific Treatments
Help You to GROW THICKER HAIR

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae.

First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff and other disorders, through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to attack the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

When the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments. After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth. Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care that helps revitalize hair to virile activity.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

GOP Picks Well, but It Forgets

By Drew Pearson

(Ed. Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter.)

Washington, D. C.
June 29, 1948

Mrs. George L. Arnold,
Los Angeles, Calif.

My dear daughter:

Last week I attended the Republican National Convention. And I could not help but wonder as I watched the parades and the enthusiasm and the milling delegates whether they realized that what they did at Philadelphia might affect the lives of your son and millions of other youngsters almost as much as the Declaration of Independence which other delegates signed in the same city 30 blocks away a century and a half ago.

Pearson

It was quite a respectable convention—no excessive drinking, no under-the-table deals that I could discover except on patronage; not even any rebel yells or that passionate frenzy that makes Democratic conventions more exciting. The pillars of hometown respectability were there, uninspiring perhaps, but determined.

They nominated two good men—among the best in the country. Furthermore they nominated them in free and open competition, the healthiest thing about the Republican race and the exact opposite of the dog-in-manger attitude of certain Democratic Presidents.

Unlike the Democrats, the Republicans have developed some tough, hard-working leaders, and their convention benefited from it.

Atomic Energy Forgotten

Of course the lady who runs our house was disappointed that her candidate, Senator Taft, wasn't nominated. And I have to agree with her that Bob Taft will go down in history for his spunk, courage and honesty.

But I think Ta/t forgets one great thing—the thing, incidentally, that was missed by nearly all the speakers and delegates at this convention—namely that we are living in an atomic age—an age that moves so fast we dare not take one false step for fear we get left behind.

Squeezed almost off the front pages by the political news was alarming word from Berlin that the Russians once again were trying to push us out of Berlin. Almost squeezed off the front pages also was news that President Truman had signed the peacetime draft—probably the most momentous legislation in recent history.

In other words we face the prospect of war again within our generation. We face the prospect that that son of yours, and thousands of other sons, may have to march off to another war.

This was the most important thing the Republicans overlooked.

Isolationists Bore

They overlooked it partly because they couldn't afford to face it, partly because they were so busy fighting a rearguard action against the isolationists within their own ranks—the leaders who still think the United States can remain aloof from the world. Your cousin Bertie McCormick put up the chief fight on this point. That was the reason he walked out of the convention at the end rather than vote for Dewey—also why he refused to let the Illinois delegation, over which he remained supreme, support anyone but Taft.

To the bitter end, Cousin Bertie and his Chicago Tribune remained aloof and alone — the way they would like to have the United States.

That is one issue the Democratic Party hasn't had to worry about, and is one reason its leadership on foreign affairs has been much more farsighted.

Though the Republicans at Philadelphia finally defeated the isolationists, they dared not move forward. Instead they looked backward. Most of the speakers spent their time lambasting their favorite whipping boys, Roosevelt and the New Deal.

Dangerous New Deal

One would have thought, from hearing their orations, that no other problem existed in the world, no Russian squeeze in Berlin, no race to develop atomic energy, no danger of bomb raids over the North Pole—only the deadly danger of the New Deal.

GOP orators talked as if they actually and seriously thought the American people would stand for the repeal of the Securities and Exchange Commission Act, the Wage-Hour Act, the AAA Farm Act, old-age pensions, rural electrification or the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Those are some of the things which Republican orators, so busy whipping the New Deal, neglected at Philadelphia.

I am reasonably sure broad-gauged leaders such as Dewey and Warren will not neglect them.

That was the most important fact that stood out at Philadelphia, and that is what the American people will have to watch when they go to the polls next November.

Love from,
THE OLD MAN.
